To Eat, Speak, Dance. Science Helps Industry. Consider the Termite. Nelson's Wrong Blind Eye.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

TOMORROW the President passes fifty-two and begins his fifty-third year, feeling old, as men always do at fifty-two, for some queer reason.

The nation will celebrate the event with dinners in many cities all over the United States. Each Roosevelt birthday gathering will eat, and all will have speeches, presumably, for Americans must have speeches.

Some diners will dance between courses, on little spaces of floor well polished. That is comparatively new.

Benjamin Franklin did not get up after the soup, and hop around, ruining his digestion.

Some diners will eat, speak, dance and watch "entertainments," consisting, usually, of young ladies, not too much dressed, and singing light airs, more or less lugubriously.

No matter what else the diners do, they will contribute to a useful purpose that interests the President, and they will drink, something, to his health, long life and continued success, in perfect sincerity.

PROF. CHARLES A. KOFOID, chairman of the department of zoology at California's Berkeley University, reports that the intensive study of destructive termites, carried on for several years, has been completed.

The findings of the learned Berkeley zoology staff are embodied in a book, "Termites and Termite Control," which is recommended to intelligent men, generally, and especially to those interested in wooden building construction, or any other use of wood or lumber.

TERMITES are gradually spreading throughout the country, and whereas regions of extreme cold were supposed to be safe from them, the destructive creatures are acquiring adaptability to climate, almost as great as that of man himself.

Many still ask a foolish question:

"Of what REAL USE is science?"

The book on termites answers that, being an admirable example of co-operative effort between industry and what is usually called "pure research."

EVERY MAN interested in the lumber industry, building, preservation of timber from termite attack, should buy this book. Proceeds from its sale will be devoted to further research. Any book store or book department will procure it.

Services rendered by the scientists of Berkeley will save hundreds of millions, and lumbermen now may know about the termite far more than that determined, destructive little creature knows about itself. It eats wood, lives on it, bores through it, but left to itself and its own digestive processes, it would die of hunger in a lumber yard.

INSIDE THE termite, itself so small you can hardly see it, there dwell innumerable creatures, parasites, quite invisible to our eyes.

These really eat and digest the small fragments of wood as the termite swallows them down, and the termite lives on by-products of the parasites. He does not know that, but the professors know all about him and how to protect wood against him under varying conditions.

ULTIMATELY, a smaller parasite might be found to destroy the termite's digesting parasite, and all the termites would die of indigestion. That is far off, although California did develop the lady bug to destroy the fruit tree scale, and thus preserved the citrus groves.

Nothing could be more admirable than the combination of science, industry and engineering skill at Berkeley, for instance, where materials for the great Boulder Dam have been tested; cement proved as to quality; great ingots of hard steel torn apart, testing their tensile resistance.

It is interesting to learn that the vast bodies of cement poured at Boulder Dam would require two hundred years to cool off, and be safe, except for quick cooling methods devised by science.

SUCH FACTS should reconcile even the most "practical" mind to scientific experiment. For every dollar spent on its faculty and students, the University of California returns the money tenfold in practical, scientific knowledge.

Builders, architects, men interested in scientific progress for any reason should get that book "Termites and Termite Control."

BY THE way, the cow, eating in the meadow, might be interested in the termite beneath her feet. They are sisters, in digestion.

The cow's grass and hay are "cellulose," in the language of science, and that cellulose no cow's stomach could digest. In her interior reside untold millions of living creatures, tiny bacteria, that attack the cellulose and make it digestible for the cow.

Haldane, teacher of bio-chemistry at Cambridge University, tells you about that. Many farmers did not know it. Yellow spring butter comes from the nice green grass, only after the bacteria have done their work.

THIS IS GOOD news. The Army expects to build up the national defense with one thousand new fighting planes. It will take five years to get them ready. Russia's five-year idea seems to have spread widely, but, for us, peace will probably last at least five years.

It would last longer if we had five thousand fighting planes ready NOW instead of planning

Ice Perils Traffic As Cold Snap Rivals Season's Record

Bitter cold intensified by a slashing wind, gripped this district today, on the heels of a raging blizzard that dropped the mercury 45 degrees and converted highways into sheets of ice.

The thermometer fell to an official one above zero at the Weather Bureau, equalling the season's low mark, and to two below in Mt. Lebanon, the lowest unofficial temperature reported.

A spring-like rain yesterday was followed by snow borne by a 36-mile-an-hour wind. By nightfall a blinding storm had developed which periled motorists and kept most people indoors.

MERCURY ZOOMS DOWN

The mercury began falling steadily from a high point of 46 at noon yesterday until the near-zero minimum at 8 and 9 o'clock this morning.

The sudden onslaught of the cold wave caught everyone unawares, caused widespread suffering and brought a sharp upturn in activities of relief agencies.

A similar record of 1 above was made on December 27.

Only a third of the planes scheduled landed at the County Airport yesterday. Pilots report temperatures as low as 30 below in the air. Plane service is on schedule today, H. R. Bazley, airport manager, said.

COLDER TONIGHT

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman warned that tonight probably would bring the coldest weather of the season. He predicted an official low of around zero and several degrees lower in outlying districts.

The fast-moving frigid belt overspread most of the country east of the Rockies today, spreading southward to Florida and toward the Atlantic seaboard. Chicago reported 6 below and points in the Canadian Northwest as low as 36 below zero. By Wednesday the cold will moderate, Brotzman indicated.

Unofficial temperatures reported were: Sewickley, zero; Coraopolis, 2; Homestead, zero; Mt. Lebanon, 2 below; Crafton, zero; Wilkinsburg, zero; McKees Rocks, zero; Bellevue, 2; East Liberty, 6, Braddock, 1; Millvale, 2; Oakmont, 6.

Boulder in Road, Four Autos in Crash

Four automobiles crashed when one of the cars hit a boulder hidden by snow near the Westinghouse Bridge, East Pittsburgh, last night. The boulder, about one and a half feet in diameter, fell from a cliff on the Lincoln highway. One of the automobiles struck the boulder and the cars following in a line bumped into the automobile in front.

Queen Mary Rides To Town With Beer Man

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Percy Titmous, who works for a brewery, drove into town this morning with Her Majesty, Queen Mary, riding in his little automobile.

The townsfolk stared in amazement from the sidewalks.

Queen Mary's automobile had broken down between Ely and Cambridge while she was motoring from Sandringham to shop for antiques.

Titmous saw Her Majesty's plight as he drove down the road. He offered his aid. The Queen accepted.

Curfew Clamps Night Club Lid At 12 Saturday

Sad news today for the lads and lassies who have been seeing the milkman home.

Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall announced a final warning to the night clubs that any further violations of the closing hours will mean revocation of licenses.

The order was issued last week for the cabarets to close at 1 p. m. during the week and Saturday at midnight. But the proprietors of the clubs, apparently have weak memories, for the order was ignored this last week-end.

But, Marshall threatened, there'll be no more of that.

There'll be no more "strip" dancers at the downtown burlesque theater, either, Marshall announced. Coincident with the cold wave, he ordered the strippers to keep their clothes on.

CITES WEIRTON STRIKE FEAR

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A strike of 75,000 steel workers was predicted today by W. J. Long, Weirton representative of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, as a group of Weirton employes met with Hugh S. Johnson, recover, administrator.

Unless the National Labor Board succeeds in bringing the Weirton Steel Company to hold another election, Long said, the present number of 600 strikers will be increased to more than 5,000 in the Weirton district alone.

He told Johnson that 8,000 of the 10,000 employed by the Weirton company were holders of union cards and were determined to hold an election without the influence of company officials.

Long and the Weirton delegation met with Johnson after they failed to meet President Roosevelt at the White House. The delegation later met with Edward F. McGrady, of the Labor Board, and Long said he was unable to promise to keep the union workers at their posts much longer unless some definite action was taken by the administration.

13 Firemen Injured, Buildings Leveled

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Thirteen firemen were sent to hospitals today following two raging fires that leveled row on row of frame buildings in Canarsie and destroyed eight two-family dwellings in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn.

The Canarsie fire, fanned by a bitter-cold wind, caused injury to 10 firemen. Three fire fighters were hurt in the Flatbush blaze.

Ex-Wife Seeks Ban On Willits' Passport

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits asked the state department today to withhold the issuance of any passport to her divorced husband, John McGregor Willits, who she feared, might atempt to sail for France with the two daughters whose custody a Chicago court has awarded her.

U. S. Flying Couple Crash in Rumania

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—An American flier, Gordon Mounce, and his wife escaped injury today when their airplane was forced down and damaged in a fog near the village of Stanesti, near here.

They were flying to Bucharest from Istanbul.

NEW DEATH LINKED TO TUT CURSE

Dr. Lythgoe, Present At Tomb Opening, Dies in Boston

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert M. Lythgoe, noted Egyptologist, who was among those present at the opening of the inner chamber of Kink Tutankh-amen's tomb in 1923, died today in Boston, officials of the Metropolitan Museum of Art were informed. He was 65.

He had been suffering for some time with an attack of cerebral arterio-sclerosis.

His illness had revide the story of a "curse" that was supposed to have dealt death and misfortune to many people connected with the opening of the Pharaoh's tomb, but officials of the Metropolitan Museum recently produced statistics to support their conetntion that the "curse" was a myth.

Lythgoe was the founder and curator emeritus of the Metropolitan Museum's department of Egyptian art, and was one of the foremost men in his field.

In 1906 he became curator at the Metropolitan. For the next 20 years he divided his time between New York and Egypt. Herbert E. Winlock, who succeeded Lythgoe as curator in 1929, said that the museum's Egyptian collection, one of the most important outside of Cairo, is due in large part to the excavations directed by Lythgoe.

Lecturer Accuses Science Of 'Laughing Off' Tut Curse

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Tom Terriss, who lectures on King Tut and his curse, is pained.

A recent statistical volley, aimed at destroying the legend of death-dealing sorcery that has grown apace since little King Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb was opened in 1923, prompted Mr. Terriss to hint today that scientists may be in a sort of conspiracy of silence to play down the "curse."

The volley was fired the other day by Herbert E. Winlock, director of the Metropolitan Museum. Attacking stories of wholesale and mysterious slaughter among those who saw the Pharaoh's tomb opened, Winlock said that of 40 persons directly connected with the historic event only six have died. This, he implied, might almost prove the tomb to be a

Man Held, One Freed In Numbers Hearing

One man was held for court and another discharged at a numbers case hearing before Magistrate Howard B McNutt in Central Police Station today.

Maurice Tobin, 40, of 224 Dinwiddie street, and Nick Bezulezick, 35, of 824 Excelsior street, had numbers slips in their possession, according to police. Tobin admitted he was a numbers writer and was held. Bezuelzick, who said he was only a customer, was released.

Pinchot Improves, Leaves Hospital

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, who has been recovering from an attack of shingles at St. Luke's Hospital, was transferred yesterday to Leroy Sanitarium. Attendants there said that his condition was greatly improved, but that they did not know how long it would be necessary for him to remain.

Prosecutor in Slot Machine Probe

ANDREW T. PARK MAGISTRATE M'GOWAN

LIEUT. ALBERT E. FLORIG SUPT. MARSHALL CAPT. ALBERT BEEBE

Prosecutor Park with some of the slot machines seized in the South Side police raid on a police-described slot machine ring. Mr. Park: "This is the biggest haul from the city in the 12 years I . . . in the district attorney's office." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

CARRICK MAN ACCUSED AS LEADER

Racket Took $500,000 From 'Suckers' of Five States

A great slot machine ring that deluged not only Pittsburgh and Allegheny County but also five states with the sure-thing devices was revealed in a dingy police court on the South Side today by District Attorney Andrew T. Park and the city police.

Four hundred or more of the machines were in Pittsburgh stores and clubs, and 1,300 more were placed outside the city.

The ring collected hundreds of thousands of dollars in the last two years, according to the police.

Records identifying the proprietors of places where the machines were operated were displayed by the police.

BRANDED AS 'BOSS'

Gus George, 37, of Carrick, was branded as the boss of the ring by District Attorney Park, who declared:

"This is the biggest haul from the city in the 12 years I have been in the district attorney's office."

George and two reputed aides, Stanley Szynborski and Frank L. Janiak, were identified by 30 or more men—and two women—in the police station today as the men who either installed or collected from the machines.

The three were not arraigned formally because their counsel, Attorney Louis Little, waived hearing for court, but statements were taken from the witnesses, who were from various parts of the city.

Approximately 100 machines, into which the gullible had poured pennies, nickles, dimes and quarters, were turned over to the District Attorney. These machines were seized in George's home in Westmont street and from a truck found in Brownsville road.

MACHINES IN FIVE STATES

Three books reported found in George's home listed machines in every borough and township in Allegheny County, in many towns of Western Pennsylvania, in Maryland, in Ohio, in West Virginia, in Virginia.

After the name of each storekeeper was listed the method of dividing the profits. Some of the operators got as little as 25 per cent, others as high as 50 per cent. The rest was for George and his ring, according to the police.

The police station was jammed with witnesses and curious as Park and Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall arranged with Magistrate J. William McGowan to take the statements.

Lieut. Albert Florig, who raided George's place, estimated that the records seized indicated collections of perhaps a half-million dollars in two years.

PARK LAUDS POLICE

Park said the case would be presented to the February grand jury. He complimented:

"Inspector (Albert) Beebe and his men have done very good work in locating addresses in which the gambling devices have been in play. . . The evidence is complete. . . . George is the big-shot of machines of this type."

Kane Scores Real Estate Board For Opposition to Tax on Meters

RELIEF LEADER QUITS IN PROBE

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—Grotefend, executive director of the Westmoreland County Emergency Relief Board, and Miss Katherine Wilkey, supervisor of visitors, resigned today as the sequel to a fatal auto accident.

Shortly after the resignation, Miss Wilkey's place was taken by Mrs. Katherine Sarg, loaned temporarily to the local board by Allegheny County. No appointee has been named for Grotefend's place.

The resignations had been demanded by Alvin R. Guyler, field director of the State Relief Board, after a three-cornered probe into the auto accident which cost the lives of the two other local relief workers last Thursday.

The two who lost their lives were Robert H. Hamberg, 23, of Irwin, and Miss Barbara Magee, 30, of Mahaffey, Clearfield County.

The accident, which allegedly followed a party in Ligonier township, will be further investigated by Coroner H. A. McMurray at an inquest this week.

Charges Utility Link In Denouncing Fight On Levy Plan

Councilman John J. Kane lashed out at the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board today, declaring its opposition to his proposed public utilities meter tax was in line with its friendliness to big interests as against the "little fellow."

Kane declared he would ask J. Roland Brady, secretary of the Real Estate Board, at a hearing on the utility tax bills in Council this afternoon, if he had not lobbied in Harrisburg to prevent passage of a bill holding up foreclosure of mortgages on homes where unemployment prevented payment of delinquent taxes.

SEES 'SMOKE SCREEN'

The threat that the utilities would pass on the proposed taxes to the consumer was only a "smoke screen," Kane asserted, to fool the people. The Public Service Commission would not permit them to raise their rates, he said, adding:

"That is why the utilities and their allies are making such a desperate fight before Council."

The militant leader of the Democratic bloc in Council said:

"The controlling faction of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board is responsive only to the big trust companies managing

Greece to Check On Insull's Health

ATHENS, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—A medical commission was appointed by the Greek government today to examine Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, seeking to escape deportation from Greece on January 31 on grounds of illness.

The minister of the interior named M. Laskaris and M. Haniotis as members of the board, who will examine Insull when his formal petition for a new extension of his residence permit is received.

KIDNAP SIGNAL BLUE EAGLE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The kidnappers of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, are "sore" at members of the victim's family and this accounts for the lack of contact between the snatchers and those who are attempting to effect his release, according to confidential reports of federal agents who are working on the case.

According to these reports, the kidnappers instructed Bremer's father, Adolph Bremer, wealthy brewer, immediately after the kidnapping, to indicate his willingness to pay the $200,000 ransom by placing an NRA blue eagle insignia in a certain window.

After consulting with friends the elder Bremer posted the insignia, as demanded—but he tore it in halves, indicating that he was willing to part with $100,000 to obtain his son's release.

The kidnapers sensed the significance, according to federal agents' reports, and within a few hours sent a note to the elder Bremer which substantially was as follows:

"Getting smart, arent' you? Trying to pitch a few curves, eh? Well, now you can look for us."

Nothing has been heard from the kidnapers since.

Mrs. Roosevelt Bans Whisky in White House

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—There will be no "hard liquor" served at the White House, although light wines will grace the table at formal functions.

This was made plain today by Mrs. Roosevelt at her press conference.

When liquor becomes legal in the District of Columbia — about February 15, according to present estimates—light, simple wines will be served at the mansion.

But at no time, she said, will distilled liquor be served. Mrs. Roosevelt also expressed a preference for the serving of American-made wines.

Playboy All Cut Up After Punching Trolley

Harrison R. McCready has a bandaged right hand and two stitches in his wrist today.

The 27-year-old playboy, police reported, stuck his first through reported, stuck his fist through a glass door of an inbound Frankstown avenue car last night Harry, as he wants everybody to call him, tell it:

"I was in a big hurry—I wanted to see a midnight show in town. The motorman I thought was going without me, so I rapped gently on the door and my whole fist went through the glass and got cut."

He was treated at St. Francis Hospital, his sixty-fifth trip there. The other 64, however, were for booze. But regardless of the occasion, the hospital had a "home look" about it, McCready said, so he checked in for the night. He checked out this morning.

J. W. Firlie, of 502 Brushton avenue, motorman on the car, according to the traffic division of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, did not recognize the young man-about-town who drove a powerful right.

RUSS, JAPAN INCREASING ARMAMENTS, RAINEY SAYS

HOPES NATIONS WILL AVOID CONFLICT

Vote Roosevelt Power To Build 1,184 Planes For Navy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Speaker Rainey today told a delegation of 25 anti-war spokesmen that he hoped there "will not be a war between Japan and Russia this spring," but pointed out that both are increasing their armament.

Meanwhile, the House Naval Committee voted today to give the President blanket authority to provide an airplane contingent for the Navy commensurate with a treaty-limit fleet, involving 1,184 new airplanes closting 95 million dollars.

An amendment, providing only for the general authority without specifying the number of planes or time of building, will be offered tomorrow by Chairman Vinson (Dem.), of Georgia, when the House takes up his bill to provide building the fleet to treaty its.

OTEST NAVY BILL

The committee, without an objecting vote, approved the amendment after Admiral William H. Standley read letters from the budget director explaining this was considered more advisable than to specify the number of planes to be built by years.

The delegation protested consideration of the Vinson treaty naval bill, which Rainey said would be passed by the House tomorrow, and urged rejection of Army and Navy requests for further funds.

They favored abandonment of the ROTC, CMTC and CCC.

FAVORS PEACE

Rainey said that, while he favored peace, he thought it could not be achieved "by disbanding our Army and Navy and turning over the CCC to civilians. He added:

"To do so would greatly encourage Japan in her moves toward Russia. I hope there won't be a war between Japan and Russia this spring, but Russia has 800,000 men in her army and is turning out 25 airplanes a day while Japan has refused to accept a non-aggression pact."

U. S. Probes Mystery Ships For Munition Supplies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Several members of the Roosevelt cabinet were reported today by the Washington Post to be discussing the sudden chartering by unidentified persons of about a dozen vessels to load nitrates in Chile for delivery to unnamed ports.

The nitrates were presumably bound, however, the paper said, for Russia and Japan.

The ships, it added, are all of British and Scandinavian registry, and many of them have been lying idle for months in various parts of the world.

Federal agents are making inquiry at Norfolk, Va., and other ports, the Post said, in an effort to learn who has chartered the vessels and where they will make their deliveries.

It was pointed out that nitrate is produced in considerable quantities at Hopewell, Va., and the paper asserted thousands of tons had been transported from this point to Japan in the past two years. The Post said:

"There is only one explanation given to the sudden chartering of so many vessels to load nitrates, and that is that both Japan and Russia are planning intensive manufacturing of war munitions."

Shipping circles in New York and Norfolk, it was added, are excited over the move. It was said a cablegram had been received here from Norway in response to inquiries about the port of discharge for the 12 vessels, saying only "details unknown."

U. S. Denies Seeking Island Naval Bases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—This government is not seeking any Pacific islands as naval bases or for any other purposes, Under Secretary of State Phillips said today.

Denying London reports the United States was considering the acquisition of South Sea islands from Britain and France in partial payment of debts those nations owe this country, Phillips said such action had not even been considered here, much less discussed with any foreign nation.

CWA Enumerators Laud Co-operation

Theodore A. Veenstra and Edwin N. Montague, directing the real property inventory and unemployment census in Allegheny County, today expressed their appreciation to householders for assistance given to the "army" of CWA enumerators who are making the study.

Where Sympathy Isn't Needed -:- By QUIN HALL

PARDON SOUGHT FOR BERGDOLL

By CHARLES L. FLICK
Universal Service Special Cable.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, spectacular World War draft dodger, considers himself a "forgotten man."

His wife, Bertha, revealed this in an exclusive interview last night when informed Bergdoll's mother in Philadelphia had petitioned President Roosevelt to pardon him so that he might return from Germany to the United States and "see me before I die."

Bergdoll's wife said:

"I myself have petitioned President Roosevelt several times without result. I know nothing about any other petition for a pardon."

Bergdoll evidently remained convinced that the amnesty extended 1,500 less spectacular American draft dodgers by President Roosevelt would never be accorded him. His wife added:

"Grover wrote me that he believes himself a forgotten man. Naturally he would be overjoyed to return to America. He said he would like to gain admission for himself and his three children, whom he wants to educate there."

JAPS ANSWER STALIN ATTACK

Universal Service Special Cable

TOKIO, Jan. 29.—The Japanese foreign office spokesman today suavely answered the implied attack on Japan contained in Friday's speech of Joseph Stalin, Soviet dictator.

When Stalin bluntly hit at "swinish snouts" seeking to grub in the Soviet "potato patch," the foreign office spokesman smoothly rejoined that Japan has come to expect yearly attacks from Russia on Japan's so-called "imperialistic" ambitions.

Foreign Minister Hirota's address to the Japanese Diet emphasized that Japan was bent on pursuing a peaceful attitude toward Moscow, it was added.

Stalin's speech as received here marked several alleged instances of Japan's unfriendly attitude toward Russia. It mentioned Japan's failure to conclude a non-aggressive pact with Russia. The foreign office spokesman pointed out that Japan did not refuse such a pact, but merely declared the time premature.

TOM COYNE RUM APPEAL HEARD

Arguments on the motion of Tom Coyne, brother of State Senator James J. Coyne, to throw out the liquor charge against him, were heard in Criminal Court today. Coyne's counsel, Attorney John Duggan, Jr., contended that, with repeal, such charges were outlawed. Coyne was indicted as one of the "Three Toms"—Coyne, Dolan and Goslin—operating the Monaca Club.

Today's arguments do not affect gambling charges against the three.

FOUR FLY SEA, SAFE IN CRASH

FORTALEZA, Brazil, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Four Italian fliers who cracked up on the beach near here early today after spanning the South Atlantic, were brought to Fortaleza by a rescue party shortly after noon. Two of the men were injured slightly.

Mechanic Battaglia and Radioman Giulini required first aid treatment only for their injuries in the crash, which ended an attempt to blaze a new air mail trail to South America.

Capt. Francia Lombardi, commander of the flight, and Count Franco Mazotti, second pilot, escaped unscathed.

A Pan-American Airways rescue party went to the aid of the fliers, who crashed on the beach 12 miles from here.

GEN. SHANNON LAUDS WAR PICTURES

Brig. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, who, as colonel of the 111th Infantry, was the commander of many Pittsburgh soldiers during the World War, lauded publication of uncensored World War pictures—now being printed in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers—as a strong argument in behalf of preparedness.

Gen. Shannon said:

"Anything that will impress upon the nation the necessity for preparedness cannot be too strongly endorsed, and the publication of these pictures for such a purpose has my most hearty endorsement.

"I am staunchly opposed to arguments of pacifism that would imperil our national defenses, and these pictures serve to point out the dangers to which we would be subjected without adequate preparation for defense. The Sun-Telegraph is publishing these pictures in a worthy cause."

(Five more pages of uncensored World War pictures will appear in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.)

Stalin, Widow of Lenin End Political Rift

MOSCOW, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A rumored political coolness for several years between Joseph Stalin and the widow of Nikolai Lenin, the man he succeeded as leader of Soviet Russia, seemed today to have disappeared, as evidenced by her participation in the All-Union Party Congress.

The 64-year-old woman with a wrinkled, care-worn face and gray hair, known throughout Soviet Russia simply as Krupskaya, her maiden name, not only is sitting with Stalin on the Presidium, or ruling body, of the congress now in session—an honor accorded to only a chosen few—but she has made a speech praising highly the conduct of the country's affairs by the man to whom Lenin's mantle fell. In a speech yesterday she said:

"Lenin's policy is being successfully executed due to the brilliant leadership of Stalin."

The widow and Stalin were reported to have disagreed over educational policies, to which she has devoted most of her time.

COMPANY UNION BAN URGED BY GREEN

NRA Violated, Asserts Labor Leader at Mine Convention

International News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29.—Amendment of the NRA act to outlaw company unions was the chief feature of a 12-point legislative program of the American Federation of Labor which its president, William Green, outlined to the United Mine Workers' convention here today.

Green, a former secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, received a rousing welcome when he appeared before the 1,800 delegates.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY

The labor chief charged that many industrialists, a number of manufacturers' associations and the National Industrial Conference Board of New York City were violating the spirit of the NRA by using their funds to form company unions. Green thundered:

"Their combined efforts have increased the number of company unions 180 per cent in recent weeks."

"I charge this is a conspiracy."

Green praised John B. Eastman, railroad co-ordinator under the NRA, for a recent opinion forbidding the formation of company unions by certain railroads out of their funds inviolating Section 7-E of the NRA.

The speaker lauded President Roosevelt and pointed out the need for providing some means of enabling industry to absorb the 4,000,000 CWA workers who will be idle this spring. To best accomplish this he urged adoption of the 30-hour week and 6-hour day.

PROGRAM OUTLINED

The 12-point legislative program of the federation outlined by Green follows:

1—Amending the NRA act to outlaw company unions.

2—Old age pensions in every state of the Union.

3—Une mployment insurance in every state of the Union.

NRA Suspected of Letting 'Little Fellow' Suffer While Big Business Goes After Monopoly

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and American Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—It is no good service to the administration to hide the fact that the NRA, whatever its results and whatever its virtue, is today under one suspicion.

With what his critics call "browbeating," Gen. Hugh Johnson deems it necessary to defend the NRA from accusation that with the anti-trust laws suspended the "little fellow" in business gets the worst of it under the code system.

With characteristic frankness, however, the President has taken the final appeal of the "little fellow" out of Johnson's hands and put it in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice.

These defenses and changes DO NOT satisfy the progressive group nor some of the more independent Democrats like Carter Glass, and more will be heard here in Washington of the NRA and the "little fellow."

SOME indication of the major backbone support of the NRA comes, say the progressives, from the following facts:

The small businessman class has written some ten thousand letters to Senator Borah alone, expressing fear that big business under the NRA set-up will crush the little fellow.

Apparently the tide has turned: today the conspicuous SUPPORT of NRA, as it stands, is coming from the BIG FELLOWS.

With all this evidence at hand, the progressives and independent souls among the Democrats in the Senate are putting up a fight to restore anti-trust and anti-monopoly control by Uncle Sam to protect the unprotected.

There is no desire in men like Borah, Nye and Glass, and among others who have joined them to "scrap" the NRA, as the very sensitive Gen. Johnson would express it.

What the progressives want is a guarantee against the "big chiselers."

This guarantee they feel is far more important than Gen. Johnson's outcry against the small time "chiselers."

"CHISELERS," a bit of slang popularized by a super-blast, phrase making campaign, can be extended beyond those who try to evade duty under the NRA to those who in a "big way" try to capture monopoly and manipulate prices under cover of circumstances which SWAMP THE LITTLE COMPETITOR AND SOAK THE CONSUMER.

The bigger "chiselers" are "chiselers" of our national welfare.

No one wants, in this emergency, any demagoguery in Congress.

But, we all want the watchfulness of the progressive type which refuses to allow the NRA to ever become the smoke screen for the old pirate ships that sailed through our economic lives and shook us down during the good old heyday of monopoly.

DALADIER TRIES RULE IN CRISIS

PARIS, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Edouard Daladier, former Premier, was assigned again today to head the French government.

President Lebrun gave him the task of forming a "public safety cabinet" for a vigorous housecleaning of financial scandals and for restoration of the shaken public confidence in the government.

Daladier, it was understood, planned to take the portfolio of foreign affairs himself, ousting Joseph Paul-Boncour. To give the cabinet a strong position to face Germany in the disarmament tangle, it was said he would unite the ministries of war, navy and air into a national defense ministry.

The new cabinet will supplant that of Camille Chautemps, which resigned Saturday amid rioting and demonstrations in all parts of France as a result of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop scandal.

Daladier, minister of war in the Chautemps government, was summoned to the Elysee Palace early today after three others had declined to accept the office of Premier.

Doctors to Fight Appendicitis Peril

A state-wide campaign by the Medical Society of Pennsylvania is planned to lessen the mortality from acute appendicitis. One of the dangers, a bulletin of the society sets forth, is the giving of laxatives for severe abdominal pains.

Dr. John W. Shirer, of Pittsburgh, is a member of the committee on appendicitis mortality.

Ganna's Bad Cold Calls Off Concert

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—A severe cold which settled in her throat, confining her to bed, has made it necessary for Mme. Ganna Walska to cancel her concert at Carnegie Hall tonight.

The announcement came as a surprise to musical circles and society. In the recital the diva was to wear costumes of the second empire—part of her famed collection.

Imperial Bank Open; Deposits Insured

The Imperial Bank at Imperial opened today. The bank has a capital of $50,000 and a surplus of $25,000. Deposits are insured under the temporary Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Officers are Albert Weir, president; W. B. Bannister, vice president; Robert E. Wilson, cashier; James R. Smith, assistant cashier, and George P. Murray, solicitor.

Miners, Deputies Clash, One Killed

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—One man was killed and another wounded today in a clash between Deputy Sheriffs and striking miners of the Edgewater Coal Company's mine at Henry Clay.

Heart Sewed, Fight Victim Recovering

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—One of the rarest of surgical operations—the sewing together of a man's wounded heart—was completely successful today. Dr. Herbert L. Northrup, Philadelphia surgeon, performed the feat.

The patient, Joshua Graham, 23, was stabbed twice in a fight. Dr. Northrup removed two ribs, put two stitches in the heart muscle, sewed up the heart covering and then closed the outer wound.

486,926 VETS LOSE U. S. AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, told a Senate Appropriations sub-committee today that 486,926 veterans and dependents had been taken off compensation rolls under the Economy Act.

He said, however, that the principles of the revised act and regulations issued under it were "sound and should be continued."

Appearing on proposals to amend the economy sections of the independent offices bill in the interest of former soldiers, Hines said many veterans undoubtedly would be restored by review boards, and President Roosevelt wanted studies continued to eliminate inequalities.

Hines showed 388,102 non-service, World War disability cases were taken off the rolls between June 30 and October 31, 1933. The average monthly payments to the non-service disabled, however, increased between those dates from $13.35 to $23.83.

Check Old Mines After Boy's Injury

Police Capt. Jerry Deasy today started an investigation of all abandoned coal mines in the Hazelwood-Greenfield district. The investigation began following the injury of John Sullivan, 15, of Gladstone street, yesterday.

Sullivan was taken to the South Side Hospital with cuts on his head, suffered when he was trapped in a small landslide while playing with other boys in an abandoned coal mine near Gladstone street.

MISS PERKINS SEES JOB INSURANCE

Secretary of Labor Forecasts Tax on Employers

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The possibility of creating a nation-wide system of unemployment insurance within two years—designed to take the place of bread lines—was forecast today by Miss Frances Perkins.

The Secretary of Labor, addressing the National Conference for Unemployment Insurance at the Hotel Commodore, disclosed a bill will be introduced in congress shortly for a federal tax on employers.

The measure would promote state legislation on unemployment insurance, she said, by allowing offsets from the federal employers tax for all contributions to state unemployment insurance schemes.

The proposed federal law, she said, would not dictate to the states what kind of measures they shall pass but leaves entire freedom on this point to the states. She predicted that if congress passes the proposed tax plan the more than 40 legislatures in session this year and next year would have an increased incentive to pass laws setting up reserves.

Miss Perkins said:

"We must realize the necessity of setting up such reserves in the different states so that in the future they may take the place of the bread line or other charities as a systematic, honorable method of tiding over a slump period for those who want work and lack it.

"In urging unemployment reserves I realize that its adoption would not mean the throwing up of economic bulwarks for all wage earners. Properly safeguarded it will, however, constitute a certain definite measure of security for many workers and their families."

U. S. LAUNCHING CWA QUIZ HERE

A county-wide probe of alleged irregularities in connection with activities of the CWA, including charges of favoritism and excessive demands for union back dues, was to be opened here today by Robert W. Kelsoe, special CWA investigator, ordered here from Washington.

Federal officials who have been listening to allegations against activities of the CWA indicated that should Kelsoe's investigation substantiate the charges, evidence will be turned over to the Department of Justice for action.

Kelsoe, who has been making a tour of the New England states was ordered to Pittsburgh by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Civil Works Administrator. His probe will follow closely that of Robert Charles and S. M. Short, state investigators, who completed their inquiry last Friday.

He probably will center his attention upon charges that proteges of the Pinchot organization were given preference on CWA job assignments; the demands of trade unions that workers pay their back dues out of their first wages, and charges that politics was injected into the arrangement by Joseph F. Guffey, state Democratic chairman.

House Chiefs Reject Curb on CWA Funds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Administration leaders of the House today rejected proposals to place limitations on the $950,000,000 fund asked by President Roosevelt for the Federal Relief and Civilian Works administrations.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, said the House is expected to pass a bill carrying the fund this week.

Traylor Rallies After 3rd Relapse

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Melvin A. Traylor, banker, stricken with pneumonia, rallied valiantly during the morning hours today after a relapse which his physicians said was serious.

Dr. N. Clarke Gilbert said the patient had "gained a good deal of ground he lost," in the sudden setback. It was the third serious relapse during his illness of almost two weeks.

Marion Brunot Again Writes for Women Here

Marion Brunot, a former well known Pittsburgh writer, returns today to the Sun-Telegraph. She will answer any letter from readers in which there are heart and home difficulties to settle, besides writing articles pertaining to women's problems.

Miss Brunot conducted the "Eleanor Gale" lovelorn department in the Chronicle Telegraph from its infancy, and saw it grow to a huge bureau.

She also conducted the "Window of Wisdom," a special column for women, in which their problems were discussed. Miss Brunot also covered school news at Harrisburg during that period when the teachers salary raise bill was enacted. She received so many grateful letters from teachers that a special page in the Chronicle Telegraph was necessary to publish them.

Miss Brunot also will be remembered as the editor of "The Soldiers' and Sailors'" department during the World War. To this department mothers, wives and sweethearts sent the letters they received from over seas and camps, which were published along with sympathetic daily articles by Miss Brunot which helped the women at home to bear their war burdens. Among letters from outsiders complimenting Miss Brunot on this feature was one from Col. Theodore Roosevelt, which is prized very highly.

Her first article appears in the Sun-Telegraph today on Page 17 entitled "Self Pity."

GUARD AGAINST DILLINGER GANG 'HICK TOWN' JAIL BREAK

INDIANA POLICE IN ARIZONA FOR KILLERS

Desperadoes to Fight Court Ruling on Extradition

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 29.—John Dillinger and three other members of his murderous gang made new threats to "crack the Tucson tinder-box jail" today following the arrival of 11 Indiana officers with extradition papers to return them to that state to stand trial on charges ranging from robbery to murder.

Strange mumblings came from the tiny cells in which Dillinger, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley, Russell Clark and their "molls," Ann Martin, Mary Kinder and Opal Long, were locked up after their arrests in surprise raids by Tucson's "desert detective" force.

Arizona peace officers, with machine guns and pistols, kept vigilant watch, ready to "shoot to kill."

'TRIGGER MAN' RAGES

Only Pierpont, "trigger man" of the gang, was outspoken.

Glaring through jail cell bars at Capt. Matthew Leach, chief of the Indiana state police, Pierpont shouted:

"My one regret is that I didn't get back to Indiana to kill you. You locked up my mother in Terre Haute, Ind., to try to make her tell where I was."

Leach smiled as Sheriff John Belton, of Pima County, quelled Pierpont's impassioned outburst. The Indiana officer denied he had incarcerated Pierpont's mother.

EXTRADITION MOVES

Dillinger and his companions today waived extradition rights and agreed to return to Racine, Wis., on bank robbery charges.

Meanwhile Indiana pushed its claim and fight for the prisoners.

Accepting the challenge of the Dillinger gang that "you won't be able to budge us out of Tucson for a week, the Indiana officials prepared for a stubbornly fought legal battle. The desperadoes, held under heavy bond, will be given preliminary hearings tomorrow on fugitive warrants from Indiana. They have employed counsel to resist every move of the Indiana officers.

Capt. Leach said he had asked Arizona authorities to hold hearings on any petitions lawyers for the gang may file. He added:

"It is imperative that we return these men immediately to Indiana to get them behind prison bars. Their determination to fight extradition to Indiana is undoubtedly based upon plans for another jail break."

Capt. Leach recalled grimly that Dillinger had engineered the escape of 10 convicts from the Michigan City (Ind.) State's Prison, and that several of the gangsters had freed Dillinger from a jail at Lima, O., where Sheriff Jess Sarber was killed.

OLD TRAFFIC FINES UPHELD

Three judges in County Court today handed down a decision under which the city may collect thousands of dollars on old traffic tags.

The decision vacated the order of Judge M. A. Musmanno made December 24, 1932, in which he ruled the city could not collect traffic fines when there had been delay in serving summons.

Judges Richard A. Kennedy, Sara M. Soffel and Frank Pierkarski set aside Judge Musmanno's opinion in the case of Attorney Alexander J. Bielski, who appealed to County Court after fines were imposed against tim. The city appealed and a reargument was granted.

The three-judge court ruled sections of the vehicle code governing proceedings in traffic law violations do not apply where the city has power to make its own traffic regulations.

The court ruled that the information in the Bielski case complied with the requirements of the vehicle code and ordered the case to trial.

Prison Plot Foiled, Narcotics Seized

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Frustration of a delivery plot and discovery of $500 worth of narcotics in the Missouri State Prison were announced today by Warden J. M. Sanders.

Sanders announced the discovery of a concealed "dummy" pistol, which he said prison officials had information was intended for use by six convicts in a dash for freedom.

Attending Her Fiance

SALLY RAND . . FAIR THAT GAVE FAME THREATENS SORROW

SALLY'S FIANCE NEAR DEATH

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—Sally Rand, famous "fan dancer," has been secretly engaged for four years, and her fiance, Charles "Chizzy" Mayon, lies at death's door in a hospital here, it is learned by Universal Service.

For five weeks, ever since Mayon was stricken, Miss Rand has lived in a room adjoining his at the hospital. Miss Rand said:

"We have been engaged for four years, although there never was any such thing as a formal announcement to that effect. We expected eventually to get married, although we had never set any definite date.

"'Chizzy' was taken sick five weeks ago while we were at my mother's orange grove at Glendora to spend Sunday with her. His illness is a complication following an attack of amoebic dysentery contracted during the fair in Chicago.

"He is critically ill, I know, but today the doctors said his condition was slightly improved and I have renewed hope."

Shot Hunting Doves, Society Woman Dies

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. C. Merrill Chapin, Jr., New York society woman, died in a hospital here today from a gunshot wound in the abdomen accidentally inflicted while dove hunting.

Pray for Peasant Girl Making Film Debut

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A clergyman yesterday offered a prayer at high mass for Anna Sten, the Slavic peasant girl who will make her American motion picture debut this week.

He was the Rev. Nicholas Kedroff, archpriest of the Greek Catholic Church and dean of St. Nicholas Russian Cathedral.

Father Kedroff, in his prayer, pointed out that Providence should have a special interest in Miss Sten, who six years ago was a peasant girl in Kiev, the Ukraine. The congregation chanted an "amen."

Father Kedroff explained it was traditional in many sections of Europe to have invocations for persons about to undertake something new or difficult.

NEW WYNEKOOP TRIAL DATE SET

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—In the absence of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, too weak from another heart attack to appear in Criminal Court, Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan today fixed February 6 as the date for a new start of her trial for the murder of Rheta, her son's wife.

Informed by Dr. Francis J. McNamara, of the County Jail staff, that the elderly woman was bedridden, Judge Finnegan called a conference of state and defense attorneys and set a new date. Dr. Wynekoop's first trial was halted 10 days ago because of her precarious health.

The jail matron asked the prisoner this morning whether she felt able to dress. Dr. Wynekoop answered "yes," but as she sat on the edge of her bed she clutched at her heart and fell back.

BRIDE OF SLAIN SPY HELD IN KILLING

Police Not Satisfied With Story of Suicide

International News Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Jan. 29.—As his widowed, 47-year-old bride prepared to re-enact her story of his mysterious death, police led by County Detective Ellis Parker today sought to determine whether a mysterious California realty promoter and reputed foreign secret agent, took or was given poison before a bullet crashed into his brain as he sat in a parked car near Florence, N. J.

LIVED UNDER ALIAS

While he was known in California as Millard S. Edouard, Milan Filipie was revealed today as his real name.

Parker said the man's identity was established through the United States immigration authorities in New York. He was 44, a native f Macedonia and a subject of Turkey.

Mrs. Edouard, who told officers she was the former wife of a St. Joseph (Mo.) physician, said Edouard shot himself as they sat in an automobile on a lonely road near Florence because he feared deportation by federal authorities who learned he had acted as a secret agent for France and Turkey in the United States.

To police, the widow said Edouard had told her he was coming to New York to collect $110,000 he had on deposit in a bank there. Several times on the cross-country motor trip from Los Angeles, she said, her husband had appeared despondent and threatened to kill himself.

ANALYZE STOMACH

Parker, evincing dissatisfaction with her story, said chemists today would make an exhaustive analysis to determine whether Edouard had been poisoned. Medical examiners, he said, reported that from the nature of the bullet wound the man "might have been murdered or shot himself.

Parker said check of the New York bank where Edouard was supposed to have funds on deposit revealed no account in his name.

Mrs. Edouard today will be taken to the scene of the shooting, Parker said, and re-enact for police her actions following the occurrence.

HIGHBALL DEATH TRIAL OPENS

International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Jan. 29.—Accused of the "highball murder" of her former medical associate and alleged sweetheart, Dr. John Preston Kennedy, Dr. Sara Ruth Dean, 35-year-old baby specialist, went on trial here today.

The state contends Dr. Dean placed poison in a highball which Dr. Kennedy consumed and that the poison caused his death.

The motive, the state contends, is to be found in the breaking up of a romance between the woman physician and Dr. Kennedy.

Chief basis of the state's case against Dr. Dean is a deathbed statement made by Dr. Kennedy at a Jackson, Miss., hospital, in which the dying physician accused Dr. Dean of putting poison in a drink she served him.

Defense counsel will attack Dr. Kennedy's deathbed statement on the ground it was made while the physician was under the influence of opiates.

John D., Jr., Marks Sixtieth Birthday

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, idea of celebrating his birth anniversary is "work as usual."

He had no special plans for observance of his sixtieth birthday today.

COLL'S WIDOW FIGHTS CHAIR

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Broken in spirit and tearfully reiterating her plaint, "I've been framed," Mrs. Lottie Coll, gun-girl widow of Vincent (Mad Dog) Coll today was to begin a desperate fight to escape the electric chair.

The ever-tearful widow of one of gangdom's most ruthless killers was slated to go on trial in Bronx County Court with two accomplices for the slaying of Lillian Schwartz, 19, during a hold-up.

There was a possibility that start of the trial would be delayed by illness of one of the defendants, Albert Gurino, also known as Tom Pace, who with Mrs. Coll and Joseph (Windy) Ventre, are alleged to have mowed down Miss Schwartz while shooting wildly at a holdup victim.

Miss Schwartz was killed as she and a sister were returning home from a walk. Police who took Mrs. Coll and Gurino and Ventre into custody shortly after the shooting, are holding four witnesses who, they claim, will identify the trio as the persons who held up Isadore Morah, a jewelry salesman, and wantonly killed the girl when Morah fled from the automobile in which Mrs. Coll and her companions sat.

HOTEL STRIKE CONTINUES

Six waitresses of McKeesport's Penn-McKee Hotel were still out on strike today and in their places Manager Ralph Furlong had hired another set.

The strikers had two grievances. They said that one waitress, Miss Hazel Lineberg, had been excused from serving whisky, and that they all worked too long.

Furlong explained that Miss Lineberg, who was still on duty today (but not serving whisky) had "conscientious scruples" against serving the hard stuff.

Weather Conditions.

The skies are clear this morning over much the greater portion of the country due to a vast high pressure area, centered over Manitoba, which covers practically the entire country. The high spread over the country rapidly during yesterday and last night, causing an unusually great drop in temperature over most of the country east of the plains states. At Pittsburgh there was a drop of 46 degrees and at Elkins, W. Va., 50 degrees. The cold extends to the Atlantic Coast. Precipitation for the last 24 hours was light, generally, and occurred mostly over the eastern states. Over Western Pennsylvania and Ohio the snowfall ranges from a half inch to 2 inches. The temperatures are rising again over Alberta and Saskatchewan.

River Conditions.

Light rain over the district is causing a slight rise in the rivers. Stage at Franklin is 4.9 feet; Lock No. 7, 13.1; Pittsburgh, 12.6; Dam No. 4, 10; No. 5, 9.6; No. 10, 10; and No. 12, 10. The rivers will continue to rise slowly. About 13.5 foot stage indicated at Pittsburgh Tuesday morning.

$1,000 TOUHY GIFT BARED

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—One of Roger Touhy's aides, testifying as a state's witness in the Factor kidnaping case, told the jury today that Touhy surprised him with a gift of $1,000 on July 14, two day's after Factor had been released for $70,00 ransom.

The witness was Walter A. (Buck) Henrichsen, a former highway policeman who left his job to become a beer runner for Touhy, and later served as guard for the Touhy children.

Henrichsen testified that he rented in suburban Glenview, at Touhy's direction, a house which John Factor, wealthy speculator, has identified as the one in which he was held during part of his 12 days' imprisonment last July. Factor was released for $70,000 ransom and a promise to pay more.

The former policeman said he had been employed by Touhy for the past four and one-half years, driving a beer truck for $100 a week in the summer months and for $50 or $60 during the winter.

2 Escaped Convicts, Wives Picked Up

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—W. J. (Whitey) Walker and Ray A. Johnson, escaped Oklahoma life term convicts, were captured here early today and a few hours later officers seized two women, who said they were the wives of the convicts.

Walker was shot in the right arm with a police shotgun when he reached for a pistol as officers closed in on him and Johnson after forcing their automobile to the curb.

MARY PICKFORD LOCKS DOORS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Behind specially locked doors of her thirty-sixth floor hotel apartment, Mary Pickford remained in strict seclusion today while private detectives patrolled the corridors outside on the alert to prevent a repitition of a "kidnap scare" the motion picture star suffered over the week-end.

Mary wasn't afraid of kidnapers, BUT—she said:

"I'm not taking any chances. I'm not worried, but I'm not keen for a repetition of what happened in Boston, you know."

While visiting in Boston, the actress became the target for attentions of a mysterious man and woman who appeared at her hotel with vague, somewhat ominous references to valuable documents she was supposed to have inherited, and repeatedly telephoned her to discuss the documents.

The climax came when the strangers called to inform the actress they had:

"A message from beyond."

Mary was met here t police and whisked to her hotel, where special locks were installed on the doors and the detectives set on guard.

BLUE LAW RULE POSTPONED

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The voices of a dozen Johnstown businessmen were raised today against any further strict enforcement of the city's blue laws, but the absence of two councilmen, due to illness, forestalled a settlement of the question that has kept citizens in a furore for two weeks.

The businessmen, representing dairies, restaurants, news dealers, movie houses and others, protested vigorously to the Council and asked repeal of a resolution directing Mayor Eddie McCloskey to close Sunday shows.

McCloskey, who issued a general lid-clamping order as a protest against discrimination toward Sunday Shows, warned that unless there is some settlement soon he will resume his campaign of showing how "ridiculous" blue laws are.

As promised by the Mayor, no informations were lodged against theater owners and businessmen who kept open yesterday. He had declared a truce pending a Council vote to repeal the resolution.

JUNIOR LEAGUER WEDS FARMER, QUITS '400'

Heiress Met Hired Man In Stable—'Love At First Sight'

By MARGARET CAMERON
Universal Service.

EXTON, Pa., Jan. 29.—Sunday is the day when Philadelphia's elite come to Exton to see how Barbara Newlin, smart, pretty, socially prominent, is getting along as Mrs. Theodore Mabe, plain farmhand's wife.

She is doing very well, indeed, she told visitors yesterday. She is happier than when she was a Junior Leaguer, a hostess on Chestnut Hill, and surrounded by a dozen eligible of the Quaker City jeunesse doree, who were mentioned as possible husbands.

Barbara is the daughter of John Elliott Newlin, millionaire, who lately retired from business and took to farming and stock-raising in Virginia. It was on her father's farm that Barbara met her husband, one of the hands.

BARBARA WASHES DISHES

He and Barbara are on their own. He is running a little farm at Exton for Mrs. E. A. Schoen, of Rosemount, Pa. Barbara is doing all the cooking, washing, mending and other chores of the typical farm wife.

As she talked with the interviewer, she smilingly shook a cluster of copper curls, expertly tossed an old-fashioned apron about her graceful person and set to work on a stack of dishes. Her husband was out doing chores. She said:

"It's a great honeymoon. I like the cookstove and Red likes the strenuous life in overalls.

"Getting away from society is ever so much more thrilling than being in it."

MET IN STABLE

She is 20; her husband is 33. He was in the Regular Army from 1925 to 1929. They met last June in the unromantic surroundings of the Newlin stable. Ted was dressed in "simply awful overalls," but declares Barbara:

"It was a case of love at first sight. In any event we were engaged a week after we met."

When Barbara broke the news to her father some time later, he was not so compiacent as Babs had hoped. The financier told her:

"Let your intended husband get another job. I am not supporting sons-in-law with much success now."

When Ted had found the job, they were married. Barbara cooked the wedding breakfast herself.

GARNER TO DINE ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Tonight's the night that President Roosevelt does his dining out for the season—with Vice President John N. Garner.

For several seasons, Garner, who hates formal functions, has formally dined out in just one place—at the White House—where an invitation is regarded equivalent to a command.

Comedian Will Rogers, who has announced he'll be one of the 36 guests, interpreted the situation as the President turning the dining-out tables on Jack. He contended the President told the Vice President he had to give him a dinner because it was in his contract.

But preparations at the Washington Hotel show that the Garners are preparing a glad and royal hospitality. The dinner will be on an inclosed roof, which commands probably the capital's best view of the night-illumined Washington monument.

And Mrs. Garner has purchased a new and beautiful black velvet evening gown, high in front, low in back, for the occasion.

Loot Found in Room, Man Held for Theft

Frank E. George, 26, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., was held for court on a larceny charge today by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt after a hearing in Central Police Station. A representative of a downtown department store testified $400 worth of equipment disappeared from the store's sporting goods department while George was employed there. City detectives, who arrested him yesterday, said they recovered most of the goods in George's room.

Loses Congress Race, Held as Bank Robber

HOLBROOK, Ariz., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Accused of attempted bank robbery, Dillworth Sumpter, who last October as a candidate for congress drew the largest Socialist vote in Arizona's history is in jail.

Sumpter, defeated in the election by Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Democrat, though he ran two-to-one ahead of a Republican opponent, H. B. Wilkinson, is accused of battering at the foundation of the bank in an effort to tunnel through it. Police quoted him:

"I have bungled everything."

He said he was "denied work by capitalists" and needed money to support his invalid mother.

Mrs. Lucitta Sumpter, the mother, is in a Gallup (N. M.) hospital. Attendants said she had expected her son to come for her Sunday.

Sumpter was arrested last night in a chase that started as Patrolman James Hickey heard blows coming from a hidden space between the First National Bank of Winslow and an adjoining building. During the three-block chase, the officers fired several shots before Dillworth, an electrician by trade, surrendered.

Police Chief R. L. Neil, of Winslow, said the former candidate, who was equipped with tools, explosives and a supply of water, admitted he planned to tunnel into the bank before it opened today.

COURT SCENE: TWO OF THE CAPTURED DILLINGER WOMEN

Mannish Girls Passe, Mae West Tells World

By TED SMITS
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—Mae West, the shock of whose personality on the screen, at the box office, and on the public imagination created a new fashion in women, attributes everything to "being feminine."

She asked, with an arch of her famous eyebrows and a roll of her "come hither" eyes:

"So I'm the type the modern girl is choosing as a model? Well, they could do worse."

And, although the wor'' seems to think of her in terms of the three-letter word, "sex," Mae, who can be as serious off the screen as she is flippant on it, explained what she earnestly believes is the key to her popularity:

"I've rediscovered how to be a woman."

The world, Mae believes, has grown tired of mannish girls—hair cut short, the figure of a boy, husky voice, and the manners of a stevedore.

Mae has brought back curves and allure with a vengeance.

She doesn't smoke. She says:

"It would make a woman of my type seem hard."

She doesn't drink. She don't like the taste of liquor.

She doesn't go to Hollywood parties. They bore her.

As for love, she says:

"I'm too busy to fall in love—Love takes time, see!"

How to keep a man?

HOUSE PASSES AMENDMENTS ON GOLD BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Congressional action on the President's gold bill was completed today when the House accepted Senate amendments to the measure. The vote was unanimous.

The House acted after President Roosevelt had informed Speaker Rainey that the three-year time limit imposed by the Senate is entirely satisfactory to him.

The President is expected to sign the bill tomorrow. Delivery to the White House was delayed by the fact that the Senate was not in session and Vice President Garner could not affix his signature to it.

ROOSEVELT TRIUMPH

Passage of the most important monetary measure in many years in less than two weeks was another triumph for President Roosevelt. The House acted a week ago Saturday, approving it by a vote of 360 to 40. The Senate passed the measure a week later by a vote of 66 to 23.

The measure carries authority for the President to revalue the gold dollar between 50 and 60 cents, takes over three and a half billions of Federal Reserve gold and creates a $2,000,000,000 fund to be used in stabilizing the dollar.

The President is expected to issue a revaluation proclamation within a few days and the Treasury plans to set up its stabilization fund without delay.

LIMITATION AMENDMENT

The limitation amendment of the Senate fixes the life of the stabilization fund at two years with the President having the right to extend it another year.

With the dollar being pushed up in the foreign markets, it is expected that the Treasury will use its power to buy and sell foreign exchange to keep the dollar around the 60-cent limit.

When Chairman Somers (Dem.), of New York, of the House Coinage Committee, called up the bill, seeking necessary unanimous consent to consider it, the amendments adopted by the Senate were not in print. They were regarded as minor except for the limitation.

Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, demanded an explanation of the Senate amendments, which was given by Chairman Somers. Somers asked:

"Does that explanation satisfy the gentleman?"

McFadden replied:

"It is about as clear as mud. But I suppose it is about all the explanation that we will get."

SNOW RENEWS COYOTE HUNT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 29.—Scores of nimrods, whose hunting activities with coyotes as targets had been held in abeyance awaiting a snowfall, were to take to the fields near Bavington, on the William Penn highway, today.

Announcement of the renewal of the hunt for the two or three remaining animals was made by A. H. Brockett, of the State Game Commission, after last night's blizzard.

The two or three remaining coyotes are all that is left of an original pack of a half dozen, which had been preying on game and livestock for several months.

Captured Coyote Paces State Zoo

HARRISBURG, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The sheep-killing coyote captured by state agents in Washington County last week paces in front of the bars of a cage in Harrisburg's zoo.

Officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry and the Game Commission are satisfied that the animal, one of a pack charged with the death of more than 200 sheep and innumerable game birds and animals, is a coyote, although they say it is darker in color than the western animals.

Two Pittsburghers To Attend Tax Rally

Two Pittsburghers, I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, and C. V. Shoup, will attend the executive meetings of the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania, Wednesday in Altoona. I. H. L. Shank, president of the league, will preside. The purpose of the meeting is to make plans for a state tax convention to be held in March.

Lupe, Johnny End 'Trial Separation'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Injured marital relations which Lupe Velez thought would take two weeks to heal were mended in less than 24 hours, the Mexican movie actress and her husband, Johnny Weissmuller, have disclosed.

Miss Velez and Weissmuller separated last Wednesday, the actress saying they were going to try a "trial separation" for two weeks.

U. S. Going to War On Starlings With Gas

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Those pesky starlings have finally gone too far and the government has decided to launch a gas attack against them.

The latest zero hour in this fourth "battle of the bird" is expected almost any time.

The struggle started when the starlings gathered in great hordes in the trees along Pennsylvania avenue. A nuisance, to say the least, the District of Columbia government tried to tell them "shoo" in a number of ways, but with left-hand success.

But when the birds began to gaze kindly toward the vast white marble expanse of the new Supreme Court Building they went just too far. The chemical warfare service has agreed to give them a shot of gas.

WIRE AND RADIO BILL PUSHED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A drive for congressional legislation creating a communications commission to rule the nation's radio, telephone and telegraph companies was under way today as a result of the report of the President's interdepartmental committee.

With Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, of the House interstate commerce committee, preparing a bill establishing a commission, Senator Dill, (Dem.), of Washington, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, was also preparing to act.

The most bitter fight seen in the measure is the proposal of the committee, headed by Secretary of Commerce Roper, to permit merger of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

A provision authorizing the merger was placed in the railroad bill during the special session but was removed when Senate Progressives attacked it on the ground it created a monopoly. The merger has been discussed in Wall Street for two years.

The interdepartmental committee holds that establishment of local radio stations throughout the country, linked with the international radio companies, would provide direct competition for a single telegraph and international cable unit.

Pittsburgh Student Hurt Friend Killed

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Robert G. McIlroy, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was hurt today in an automobile accident which cost the life of his companion, Nelson Coffin, of Keene, N. H.

The young men, both students at Amherst College, were riding in Coffin's coupe. The automobile struck a pole.

McIlroy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McIlroy, of the Schenley Apartments.

Machine Gun Kelly Insults Pen Hosts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—George (Machine Gun) Kelly, serving a life sentence in Leavenworth for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, would rather be anywhere else than in that particular penitentiary.

Officials today revealed he had written recently to his wife, Katherine, now confined at Milan, Mich., that he hoped for a transfer to Alcatraz Federal Prison in California because "nothing could be worse than Leavenworth."

COUGHLIN HAILS BIRTHDAY OF NEW ERA

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin said yesterday that the passage by the Senate of President Roosevelt's monetary bill made Saturday "the doomsday" of an era and "the birthday" of financial independence for the American people.

He said:

"Now our most important public utility is no longer owned by a small group, but by the American people. Now the depression is behind us. Now it is possible to restore the 1926 price level and maintain it."

The address was broadcast over a special hookup of radio stations.

FOUR-FOLD PROGRAM

Father Coughlin outlined the following four-fold program which he said was vital if present gains be perpetuated:

1—"Purging" of the banking system.

2—Continuation of the CWA and the PWA.

3—"Mature and complete development" of the National Recovery Act.

4—Remonetization of silver.

Regarding banking reform, he said "national prosperity can no longer be intrusted to the men responsible for the acts revealed by the Pecora investigation." Banking based on "profit at any price" must cease, he said. The control of credit and currency by private groups of bankers must cease permanently, "our banking system must be purged," he said.

PURCHASING POWER

The CWA and PWA programs should be continued to produce the purchasing power vital to national prosperity, he said. Continued feeding of government credit into banks and industry have not, he said, helped the man "who couldn't buy a ham sandwich with all the bank credit in the world."

Father Coughlin paid a birthday tribute to President Roosevelt as "the captain bringing the ship of state safely into the harbor of prosperity."

River to Get First Lady's Portrait

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—If anyone sees Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt tiptoeing from the White House some dark night, it will be because she is out to throw a portrait into the Potomac River.

She said so today, when she was questioned as to whether the President would receive an oil painting of her on horseback for a birthday present tomorrow. She said:

"It may be the most wonderful portrait in the world, but I have a rooted objection to portraits of myself around the house."

A portrait that her children painted from a photograph is the one on which she has nocturnal designs.

The equestrian portrait was painted by an Armenian artist who saw Mrs. Roosevelt riding in Rock Creek Park and who later went to the riding stables where she keeps her horse, and painted it, then filled her face and figure from photographs.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had never sat for a portrait, and had no intention of doing so.

CURATOR DIES, TUT CURSE RECALLED

health resort, rather than the deadly sepulchre of the legend.

Said Mr. Terriss:

CLAIMS 50 HAVE DIED

"Why it is generally known in scientific circles in England that 50 persons who entered the tomb died within 12 months."

Terriss, a motion picture director who has devoted much time to tales psychic and romantic, says he was present at the opening of the tomb, "sneaked in" with the assistance of his friend, the late Arthur Weigall, egyptologist and journalist.

Although shy on documents bearing on the 50 deaths, Terriss bubbles with inside information on other aspects of the curse. For instance, there is the handsome alabaster vase, found in the tomb, bearing around its neck the inscription:

"Death shall come on swift wings to him that touches a tomb of a Pharaoh."

SHAKES HEAD WISELY

Winlock, who read all the inscriptions in the tomb, denies any of them contained any such warning. Terriss, who is writing a book on the king and the "curse," shakes his head wisely at this. He said:

"It was generally accepted at the time by every one in the Valley of the Kings that there was such a vase and inscription. Of course, with the strange illness and death of Lord Carnarvon, it was naturally policy for Howard Carter, his colleague in the excavations, to deny the vase's existence.

"Carnarvon was supposed to have died of erysipelas, caused by a poisonous insect infecting a razor cut. Let me give you a hitherto unrecorded fact. Arthur Weigall once told me that Lord Carnarvon had put his hand into a vase in the tomb. In the vase was a sort of pomade, that had grown hard and brittle during the centuries.

"The pomade cut his hand. Within a short time he was dead."

TELLING WORLD OF TUT

Terriss feels fine himself, but he's got his fingers crossed. Particularly after the narrow escape he had soon after entering the tomb.

A sort of combination creeping paralysis-sleeping sickness attacked him, and he came back to this country from the Valley of the Kings not feeling so good. Doctors couldn't diagnose the disease. Then a physician friend of his took him "by the scruff of the neck" and walked him up and down. Gradually that tired feeling left him, and with a verve he went forth to tell the world about King Tut.

for 1,000 of them five years hence.

By 66 to 43, the Senate voted to devalue the dollar, which was "devalued" already throughout the world.

By 45 to 43, the Senate decides NOT to do anything for silver. This will please the British, for silver is the American metal, gold is the British metal; we produce little of it.

ONCE, according to legend, Lord Nelson, in the midst of a sea fight, was told that the commanding ship had hoisted the order "Cease Firing." Nelson looked through his glass with his right eye, which was blind, said he could not see the order, went on fighting, and won.

Now, after one hundred and twenty-nine years that Nelson's effigy has stood in Westminster Abbey, some visitor discovers that the artist blinded the wrong eye. Fortunately for Nelson and his glory, no one can obscure the fact that he won the battle of Trafalgar.

NELSON'S BODY and that of Wellington lie side by side in a crypt under the dome of Saint Paul's Cathedral, each in a monstrously heavy and monstrously ugly dark sarcophagus of polished stone, proof against grave robbery or fire, although a grave robber would find it hard to dispose of the remains of either.

Only a few feet apart, they are near enough to talk, if they were alive. Either would know instantly that airplanes and submarines would do away forever with the kind of war they knew.

There is little left of Nelson, probably. His body, it is said, was brought back to England in a casket filled with rum, the customary primitive embalming process.

Sailors drank the rum. The body arrived in poor condition.

Where sentiment confronts rum, sentiment loses.

BRITAIN SHUNS DEBT MOVES

International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Great Britain plans no immediate negotiations looking toward a settlement of the foreign debt to the United States, Leslie Hore-Belisha, financial secretary to the Treasury, told the House of Commons today.

Asked if the government planned to resume the negotiations, Hore-Belisha referred his questioner to the recent British white paper stating this country is prepared to enter negotiations whenever it could be usefully done following consultations with President Roosevelt.

He said:

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer is not in a position to do anything at this stage."

Eccles Assumes Post As Treasury Aide

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Marriner S. Eccles, of Utah, today took over his new duties as special assistant to Secretary Morgenthau on banking and financial problems.

Officials said it was too early to say whether Eccles would be one of the small group who will direct operations of the two billion dollar stabilization fund.

"Just as racing forms indicate how horses will perform in given circumstances, so the Harrisburg lobbying forms indicated in advance how the controlling faction of the Real Estate Board would react to public utility taxes.

"We who have witnessed their lobbying at Harrisburg in the interest of the big fellows to the detriment of the little fellows, don't intend to let them get away with it.

"Even the hard-boiled politicians at Harrisburg were shocked by this controlling faction's lobbying against the enactment of legislation permitting the courts to stay foreclosures for delinquent taxes in those cases where unemployment prevented home owners from paying promptly."

NRA INCREASES N. Y. PAYROLL

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The NRA meant a payroll increase in Manhattan alone at the rate of $190,000,000 a year, Nathan Straus, Jr., said today.

Straus, state director of the National Emergency Council, said the results of a survey just completed have disclosed that NRA has created 201,100 jobs in Manhattan. Data concerning other boroughs of New York City will be made public later.

The figures, based on answers to a questionnaire and upon personal investigations, showed that retail establishments added 33,100 employes and increased payrolls 17 per cent, or $43,000,000 annually; that the wholesale trade took on 23,000 with an increased payroll of $20,900,000, and that manufacturers hired 145,000 new employes and boosted their payrolls $126,000,000 annually.

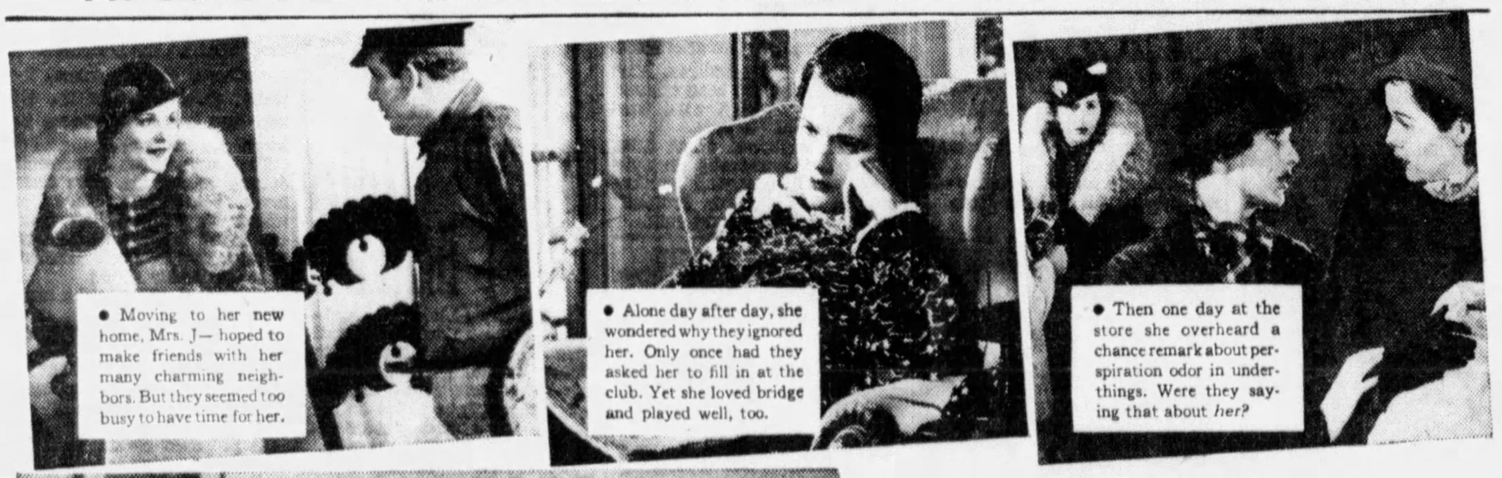
SNUBBED AT FIRST... HAPPY CLUB MEMBER NOW



• Moving to her new home, Mrs. J— hoped to make friends with her many charming neighbors. But they seemed too busy to have time for her.

• Alone day after day, she wondered why they ignored her. Only once had they asked her to fill in at the club. Yet she loved bridge and played well, too.

• Then one day at the store she overheard a chance remark about perspiration odor in underthings. Were they saying that about her?

• She belongs to the bridge club now—everybody likes her. Like so many dainty women, she has formed the habit of Luxing underthings after each wearing. She knows that now there's no chance of offending.

UNPOPULAR?

—Avoid Offending

Underthings absorb perspiration odor . . Protect daintiness this easy way:

Many women who think they are fastidious are guilty of perspiration odor in underthings.

No one is safe. All day long we perspire, frequently over a quart a day. Underthings absorb this perspiration and the odor clings. Don't take chances!

It's so easy to avoid offending.

Simply Lux underthings after each wearing. It's so easy. Just whisk them through bubbling Lux suds, and perspiration odor vanishes! Takes only 4 minutes a day. Lux saves colors, too—keeps underthings like new longer. There is no harmful alkali, no injurious cake-soap rubbing with Lux. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

METROPOLITAN POLICE PLAN URGED HERE

System Would Reduce Burden On Taxpayer

(The law enforcing agencies in Allegheny County are reviewed in today's article, one of a series being published by the Sun-Telegraph in its campaign against duplication and waste in governmental agencies.)

Approximately 3,000 police officers, the large majority of them working under at least 60 police chiefs and the remainder individually, protect the lives and property of the 1,374,000 residents of Allegheny County. This means one officer for every 458 persons. It costs the taxpayer of the county more than two and one half million dollars each year to maintain police protection under the present scheme.

Pittsburgh, of course, comes first with a department composed of 1,075 police and detectives, costing $2,384,514 annually. The county maintains a staff of deputy sheriffs, county detectives and the newly created county police force, approximately 80 men in all, costing $315,159 every 12 months. The third class cities have 89 paid police officers maintained at an annual cost of $146,409.

In the 66 boroughs there are 367 police officers and the 53 townships have only 65 paid law enforcement officers, costing a total of $662,080.

3,000 POLICE HERE

In addition to the regular police forces there are approximately 1,000 constables scattered throughout the entire county. Many townships and in one or two of the boroughs the constable is the only police protection afforded. In some suburbs there is in addition to the constables, a few special police or watchmen, hired by one or more wealthy residents to protect their own properties.

Some communities where the regular police force consists of but one or two officers, volunteer police are available for duty, sworn in and paid a dollar a year to make their position one of authority.

Taken all in all, the total number of police, constables, deputies and special officers would not total more than 3,000.

There is at present in Allegheny County at least 60 separate police forces where there are more than three or four men on the force. This means 60 separate police chiefs directing their work. In addition, a large number of communities have but one or two officers working under the direction of the burgess or some other elected officer.

CENTRAL POLICE PLAN

In recent years there has been throughout the country, moves to create metropolitan police forces in the large centers. Many persons in Allegheny County are of the opinion that more efficiency and economy could be brought about through a metropolitan force for the Pittsburgh district.

A year ago the Senate of Massachusetts appointed a special crime commission to make a study of crime and the operation of law enforcement agencies in that state. The commission reported back recommending a metropolitan force for Boston and the adjacent political subdivisions, to operate under the direction of a police commissioner appointed by the Governor. This legislation was approved and Boston is now a metropolitan police district.

In making its report the commission began the recommendations as follows:

"In common with other states of the Union, Massachusetts stands in need today of the highest type of police service . . . It seems evident that the people are not getting from police forces that full measure of protection to life and property which they have a right to expect. One reason for this is that in many instances political superiors of police chiefs prevent the police from proceeding against persons known to be violating the law."

The commission recommended a central police organization with power to prescribe minimum standards of equipment, qualifications and efficiency to the various municipal and town departments.

BACKED BY M'GOVERN

In recommending a greater Boston police force the commission pointed out it would result in the co-ordination of police activities throughout the greater Boston area. The commission pointed out that with 40 or more independent chiefs of police, co-operation between police forces depends entirely upon voluntary arrangements.

The commission pointed out there would be nothing in their proposal to run counter to "home rule." The personnel of the force which has to do with local disturbances and policing of beats would be composed as it now is of residents of the cities and towns. The proposal was for a central supervision over local chiefs and the elimination of local political interference which ought to have no place in the functioning of a police force, the report stated.

Recently County Commissioner C. C. McGovern stated that he was in favor of a metropolitan force for the Pittsburgh district. He gave reasons similar to those reported on by the Massachusetts Commission for creation of a central force, with a Commissioner appointed by the Governor at the head.

REYNOLDS PAL PLOT TARGET

GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Sheriff Joe S. Phipps today revealed that officers are investigating an attempt to extort $1,500 from Ab Walker, of Winston-Salem, who was indicted with Libby Holman for murder of her husband, Smith Reynolds.

Walker was disclosed to have received a note demanding that he place $1,500 near a Southern Railway coal chute at Pomona, a suburb of Greensboro.

Federal officers and deputies from Sheriff Phipps' office watched the place for several days, but nothing developed.

Walker son of a Winston-Salem real estate broker, was a close friend of Smith Reynolds. After the youthful heir to a tobacco fortune was found shot to death in Reynolds, the Reynolds family home, in July, 1932, Walker and Libby Holman, Broadway blues singer and Reynolds' bride of a few months, were indicted for murder. The charges later were nolle prossed.

MASS MEETING IN TAX FIGHT

A public mass meeting of real estate taxpayers will be held tonight in the grotto of the Morrowfield Hotel, Murray avenue, under auspices of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League. I. Leonard Aronson, president of the league; E. Lowry Humes, Edward O. Tabor, C. V. Shoup and Prof. Marion K. McKay, of the University of Pittsburgh, president of the Civic Club, will speak.

The meeting will be held to protest the present level of taxation on real estate, and to inform the public of the program outlined by the Taxpayers League to lower it.

Police and firemen, responding to an alarm sent in by neighbors, wrapped her in an overcoat and took her to Citizens General Hospital. Her condition was said to be fair.

Medicine Samples Menace to Children

Dr. Ray P. Moyer, health director, today referred to Safety Director Ralph E. Smith complaints that medicinal samples left on porches and hallways of homes by distributors were a menace to children. Fear was expressed that the children would mistake the samples for candy.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

ARRANGE FETES AS TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

A gala Presidential Ball, parties and dinners with charity as their purpose and tributes to President Roosevelt as their motive will be held tomorrow night in Pittsburgh.

The purpose of the fetes will be a concerted effort to combat infantile paralysis, and the Presidential Ball will be one of 6,000 held simultaneously throughout the nation. The occasion is President Roosevelt's fifty-second birthday.

The ball will be held in the Hotel William Penn. An orchestra of 55 pieces from the United States Army Band will furnish the music in the main ballroom.

President Roosevelt will speak over an extensive radio hookup. The music here will be broadcast with the ceremonies in Washington.

Besides the orchestra furnished from the Army band, others will play in the Urban and the Cardinal rooms of the hotel. A floor show from the cast of Earl Carroll's Vanities also will be presented.

Proceeds from the many fetes will go to the Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia which maintains the health center for infantile paralysis victims.

The committee in charge of the ball here issued a statement saying the funds will go to Warm Springs because it is established and functioning and that it is the President's idea that the foundation should be a laboratory from which discoveries and methods may be disseminated throughout the country.

The committee stressed that the foundation does not contemplate using the money raised through the balls to enlarge its property, and that it is not in competition with local orthopedic institutions.

C. OF C. TO HEAR M'NAIR, STEFAN

Mayor William N. McNair and Dr. F. F. Stefan, director of the Bureau of Social Research, will address a membership luncheon-meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow.

The Mayor's address, an unexpected feature of the meeting, will deal with the proposed public utility taxes. Dr. Stefan will speak on "The Pittsburgh Market of Tomorrow," explaining the effects of population trends on business, schools, taxation, hospitalization and employment.

A vote on a proposed amendment to the by-laws of the chamber, which if passed will provide for admittance of women as members, will be the principal business item of the meeting.

No Skating in Parks Despite Zero Wave

There was no skating today in city parks, although the weather was near-zero. A test will be made tomorrow morning if the weather continues cold, police said.

BIRTHDAY MENU FOR ROOSEVELT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Here's the way the menu shapes up for the President's birthday dinner tomorrow:

Clams on the half-shell.
Fried chicken, Maryland style.
Peas.
Creamed carrots.
Potato puffs.
Hearts of lettuce, Roquefort dressing.
Almond-crush ice cream.
Birthday cake.

The latter item, incidentally, is a good-will offering from the chef of a local hotel who begged that he be permitted to prepare the culinary climax.

Man Badly Beaten In Fight on Street

Found lying in the street at Twenty-eighth and Penn avenue, Frank Gapckowski, 40, of 3044 Powlsky way, was in St. Francis Hospital today with a broken nose and probable skull fracture received in a fight late yesterday in front of a restaurant at 2800 Penn avenue, according to police.

Joseph Svymanski, 17, of 2809 Penn avenue, was arrested after he was alleged to have knocked Gapckowski to the ground during the argument precipitated, police said, by the latter.

Roosevelt Reveals Favorite Songs For Broadcast

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Among President Roosevelt's favorite songs are "Home on the Range," "Anchors Aweigh," "In the Halls of Montezuma" and "My Wild Irish Rose," according to tSephen T. Early, one of his secretaries.

Jack Denny, radio orchestra leader, wire the President asking tunes he would like to have played in connection with a program to be dedicated to his birthday tomorrow.

Replying, Early listed the four songs named above as being among the President's favorites.

SLAVS SUPPORT CHIEF AS JUDGE

The Central Council of Slavic Leagues, representing nine Slavic groups of Allegheny County, at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night unanimously re-elected Attorney Gregory Zatkovich president and voted to petition Gov. Pinchot to appoint him to the Common Pleas bench to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Sylvester J. Snee.

Plans also were announced to make a canvass of the Czechs, Carpathian-Russians, Croatians, Lithuanians, Polish, Serbians, Slovaks, Slovenians and Ukrainians to ascertain their combined voting strength.

Other officers elected were: Blair Gunther, Daniel Stepanovich and Lawrence Delost, secretaries; Charles Belchlavek, treasurer; Basyl Onyshkow and Sigmund N. Petraitis, auditors.

The next meeting will be held the last Sunday in February in Slovenian Hall, Fifty-second and Butler streets.

Movies at Meeting Of Jobless Branch

Motion pictures will be shown at an entertainment given by Local No. 23, Unemployed Citizens' League, at the East Street School, North Side, tonight. The program will be free to members and their families.

BYRD IN RACE WITH TIME, ICE

International News Service.

S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, Bay of Whales, Antarctica, Jan. 28.—(By Mackay Radio.)—(Delayed.)—Fighting the combination of a dwindling oil supply and treacherous, crumbling bay ice, members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition today raced time to unload supplies before the Ruppert must proceed North again.

Three times the breaking ice has forced the Ruppert to leave her unloading berth and maneuver about for a new one. Meanwhile, the deadline for oil consumption in these waters approaches.

Admiral Byrd said:

"We face a desperate struggle to finish unloading. In the whole 20 miles of coast within this bay there apparently is not a single stable place."

Yesterday 25 bales of hay for the three cows and one bull with the expedition were carried away on a large piece of ice which broke off during the unloading. They were not retrieved.

Ellsworth Quits Little America

WELLING, N. Z., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—With her ironwork rusted and her copper sheathing scarred by ice floes, the steamer Wyatt Earp arrived yesterday from Little America with the Lincoln Ellsworth South Polar Expedition.

Chinese Flood Dead Float Down River

SHANGHAI, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Corpses floated among cakes of ice down the Yellow River today, said dispatches from Hopei and Honan, while vernacular newspapers declared uncounted thousands of persons had perished in the flood of the great waterway called "China's Sorrow."

The Yellow River flood relief commission took a more conservative view of the loss of life reports and said only that the flood was serious.

KANGAROO HUNT ENDS TERROR

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A 15-hour hunt over Signal Mountain has ended in the killing of a large long-legged mountain lynx believed to be the "kangaroo" that terrorized the Hamburg community near South Pittsburg, Tenn.

The hunt ended yesterday when two men, Mitchell Ducker and Ed Sloan, fired buckshot into the animal as it crouched in a tree.

The "kangaroo" was charged with slaying and partially devouring dogs, sheep, and other animals and causing Negroes to stay at home every night. Even as it fell from the tree with its death-wound yesterday it killed one of the hounds in the pack that chased it.

The animal's long legs indicated it might have traveled with leaping strides, giving credence to the strange marauder of the Hamburg community.

BLAZE ROUTS 3 IN BITTER COLD

A two-story frame dwelling was destroyed and the First Baptist Church (Negro) damaged by fire in Penn Township today.

Several firemen suffered from frostbite in laying long lines of hose to the blaze at Torrence street and East Lemington avenue. Two Penn Township volunteer fire companies and two companies of the Pittsburgh Fire Department responded to alarms.

The fire started when a kerosene lamp exploded in the home of Charles Young, Negro, whose wife, Lora, 46, was ill. Mrs. Young ran to a second floor porch and jumped into the arms of Albert Mason, Negro, of 1472 Banfield street. A son, Fred, 8, leaped from the porch and another, Samuel, 7, was helped to the ground by Mason.

Fire Chief John Gerthoffer of the Lincoln Park Volunteer Department, estimated the loss at $6,000.

MUSMANNO OWN STENOGRAPHER

Judge M. A. Musmanno, recently elevated to the Common Pleas Court bench by the electors of Allegheny County, is an expert stenographer.

He makes copious notes of the remarks of lawyers and witnesses in shorthand and when he quotes them to a jury quotes correctly.

Judge Musmanno used to practice the same course, when he was practicing law, and believes that lawyers generally should know how to write shorthand.

Persons who have wondered how Judge Musmanno has been able to quote so correctly what witnesses have stated on the stand, now know the secret.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Signed .....
Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Help your mother as much as you can, fellows!

Don't play all the time. Your mother likes to sit down and rest awhile, read, and listen to the radio, too. If you will help with the dishes and do all those little jobs which take so much time off her hands, such as picking up scattered papers and clothes, you would be helping a lot.

Junior

Remind your members about this in your next meeting, captains. Let's see if we can't make all our mothers a little happier.

George Toth is a new member who lives in Smithton, Pa. He says that he is going to get many new members for a patrol.

And we have a letter from Renton, Pa., from Mr. Andy Rabick, who sends in pledges for his nieces and nephews.

Now here is a letter from Ruth Madeline Smith, of 1217 Montezuma street, Pittsburgh:

"I am starting a club and I wish you would send buttons to the girls. I have been elected captain. We will try to get more members but we don't want such a big club. We hope you will be giving theater parties soon. We are going to have a sewing bee in our club and we are going to make baby dolls and children's dresses and at the end of the month and with the things we send you, we will send a nice letter and tell you what we did. We will take turns meeting at different girls' houses. We are going to have our meetings every Friday at 6:30. I hope you won't forget to distribute the things we send you to the poor children. We will make real baby dresses. The name of our club is the 'Willing Workers and Doers.' I hope that will please you."

Indeed it does please us, Ruth, and we are very happy to hear what a fine plan you have for giving dolls' clothes and other clothing to poor children. We are sure you are going to have loads of fun helping others.

"I keep fit—in these days
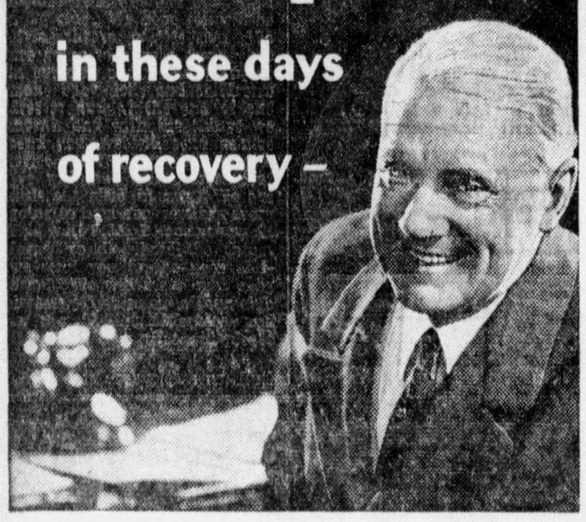
of recovery—



"—if I don't someone else will have my job"

HOW? "Well, I learned years ago that work . . . wear and tear . . . takes something out of men and women—particularly those who work indoors.

"Good food and fresh air at night are most valuable, but I found that the so-called simple tired feeling—'let down' some call it—comes from overtaxing one's strength.

"I tore down those precious red-blood-cells faster than my good body could rebuild. A friend told me the story of that grand medicine S.S.S. Now at 4 P. M. I am fit to still 'carry on'."

One of the really sad things in life is the pushing aside or "shelving" of the weak . . . someone is always ready for your job. Why not reason sensibly that when you begin to "let-down" then it is time . . . before it is too late . . . to build back your vitality?

Of course, if you suspect an organic trouble, consult a physician or surgeon. But if you feel weak . . . lack a keen appetite . . . or if your skin is pale . . . try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite . . . your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, we recommend S.S.S. because its value has been proven by generations, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. It is sold by all drug stores in two convenient sizes . . . the larger is more economical.

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

There is no substitute for S.S.S.

Secure S.S.S. from your own druggist . . . with few exceptions druggists are ethical and conscientious, and will not suggest a substitute. No medicine has the same formula as this time-tested Blood Tonic . . . nor does any other concern gather the same roots with their own trained collectors and extract the active medicinal principles, unchanged, in their original fresh state—this is the secret of S.S.S. . . . there is no substitute. Thousands of people have a low red-blood-cell count and don't recognize it. S.S.S. is useful in promoting a keen appetite and restoring deficient red-blood-cells and their hemo-glo-bin content which are so necessary for sound health. © The S.S.S. Co.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes.

Dear W.: I hear that Eleanor Hutton is back and that she quietly divorced Etienne Gautier in Paris. They were married last April 4 across the pond . . . I didn't see the movie, but where was the Hays office, which is fussy about such things, when the moom pitcher theaters advertised "MISS Fane's BABY Is Stolen!"? . . . You can make Gordon and Revel feel goody by telling them that whenever their ditty "Didja Ever See A Dream, etc"? is played in the cafes, the audience voluntarily yells: "Well, I did"! . . . The line about true friends see through you and close their eyes—is topped by G. Jessel. He called to offer: "True friends don't see through you—they see you through"!

Add t.y.n.k. till now: That until the appearance of F. Harris' sympathetic biography of Oscar Wilde in 1928, Oscar was excluded by "respectable" lexicographers . . . Remember Lucille Chalfont, who rose from the "G'wich Village Follies" to international fame in Grand Opera? When she died she left two daughters and not much else. The youngest is ill and the other, Kathleen, is in town looking for a job. She dress-model'd for the best in Paree—perhaps some of your readers can give her a break? . . . Tell Polly Walters of "She Loves Me Not" that because she said Columbus, O., was her home town, the Zanesville papers are sore at her.

James E. Lee of Worcester dug up a notice of your act in the Gazette files of over a score of years ago. Said it was "popular and got several curtain calls" . . . If you run that—look out for the digger-uppers in other towns which can prove otherwise, heheheh . . . Particularly, Lansing, Mich.—ouch! . . . Over 500 writers are gathering Monday to demand work for the unemployed penmen . . . C. Vanderbilt, Jr., I hear, could have had the Ambass job in Russia, but spurned it That would be funny—a capitalist in Russia . . . The new Cotton Club show by Kohler and Arlen, who wrote "Stormy Weather," is in rehearsal—looks swell . . . Very amusing incident at Casino de Paree the other night. One of the nudists was groaning because the columnists reported her romance with a Park Avenuer. It seems her real honey is a preacher. "Was he sore?" she was asked . . . "Was he?" she replied. "He threw a Bible at me!"

The Stage Relief wants you to know that it has disbursed $75.-000, practically every cent it received, in 13 months to needy actors, etc. It had over 200,000 free meals . . . I hear that Joe Schenck is the only man in Paris with money and he is spending it plenty . . . Mrs. Arnold Rothstein's book (his widow who remarried but isn't working at it) will be on the stands in about two weeks and the movie of it in June.

I see where Terry Ramsaye is wrong again. How can people be that clever at sleuthing? . . . Bryan Foy is having a time trying to get his nudist film passed here—they tell me it is very gay . . . I see you are not interested in the Lupe-Weismuller bust-up. Oh, hum. Velez said about it the better.

Dario and Diane have been sent to Hollywood to re-do the Raft-Lombard hoofery in "Bolero" at 1,500 fish per week . . . Parmee for using such sleng, old deah—if you no like—I'm oofly soddy-rilly . . . I hear that since Paulette Goddard (Chaplin's voom-voom) let her hair go back to brown, she looks like Adrienne Ames . . . Incidentally, since "Little Women," the chorus girls in town are aping Hepburn's bangs and hair comb . . . Lots shouldn't . . . Evelyn Herbert is hiding—because she is studying seriously for the opera . . . England hasn't okayed "Men In White" yet for London . . . No wonder they rarely see good shows there . . . Saw Eddie Mannix at the fights—has a honey of a story, he says—the climax to you know what . . . I was with Dick Maney when he called Charlie MacArthur (Mr. Helen Hayes) on the phone. Maney asked: "How's your wife?" . . . Mac flipped: "D'y'know? I'm beginning to like her!"

Walt Disney is the voice of Mickey Mouse—because he's never found anyone who could do it the way he likes . . . Clifton Webb tells friends he holds his breath every day for fear he will read that Gandhi or John D. died, thus spoiling one or two of the best scenes he's ever had . . . Lasky announced that he would make a movie with every part filled by an unknown . . . So what do you think? Everyone signed was a contract player! . . . The whisper is going the rounds again that Willy Fritsch and Lillian Harvey were sealed in Berlin 3 yrs. ago.

The Rocky Twins, who were released after rehearsing 3 weeks with the Follies, have taken their woes to the AAA . . . Here's a note for Our Curious Dept.: Paramount's around the world "finds," which got so much publicity when they said they dug up dolls from everywhere—have been let out in droves. Only ones kept on contract are sons or daughters of wealthy parents. The poor ones got fare home . . . Say do you wanna know something? I don't care if Greta and Mamoulian marry!!! . . . Will you tell Mr. Woollcott that he pronounces war as two syllables—woh-er . . . Elliott Arnold, a reporter, has a new book, "Dead Yesterdays," due in the spring.

You can easily boost Gerald Breitigam's new tome "Dare to Live" . . . And the ditty "Don't You Remember Me?"—very tuney . . . Did you hear the one about the two newspapermen who were stuck on the same girl? It should be called: "Design for Starving" . . . Artie Auerbach, the Mirror lens clicker, went so big at the Casino de Paree at their first Sunday night circus he has been signed for there . . . The Robert Emmett Sherwoods, his last play was "Reunion in Vienna," are taking their troubles to Reno—incompatibility . . .

Joyous Cuba On Screen

Pictures from Havana in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News show crowds hailing their new leaders as news of Cuba's recognition by the United States is received. There are pictures of President Mendieta, of his cabinet, with a description of conditions by the Globe Trotter.

In Vienna loyal police and Heimwehr are shown dispersing unruly mobs and putting down Nazi uprisings.

American Army Eagles put on a thrilling show at Chapman Field, Florida.

Latest pictures of President Roosevelt are shown as the nation prepares to celebrate his fifty-second birthday. There are also pictures of the Warm Springs Foundation for whose benefit birthday parties are to be held in 5,000 cities and towns.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot is shown marching at the head of workers in New York.

The freighter Sagamore is shown pounding to pieces off the Maine Coast after she had met with an accident at sea is shown.

Note — Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Stork Has Eye On McCrea Family

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—Only a few intimate friends knew it until now, but Frances Dee and Joel McCrea are expecting a baby next summer.

Miss Dee

The two young players, who have been one of Hollywood's most romantic couples, both as sweethearts and as honeymooners, are much pleased with their good fortune.

They plan for Frances to complete her present picture, "Finishing School," at RKO and possibly to make one more film before she retires to wait for the birth of the McCrea heir.

During her months off the screen, Frances and Joel will make a trip to Honolulu.

They also plan to take a place in town and to divide the time between there and Joel's ranch.

Motion pictures set styles in furniture as well as in clothes. After seeing "Queen Christina," officials of a large New York furniture company have wired Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer asking permission to create a modernized version of the Seventeenth Century pieces designed for the Greta Garbo film. This furniture has a primitive note, yet is embellished by intricate carving. The colors run to blue and white.

Not so long ago, another M-G-M film, "When Ladies Meet," is credited with giving strong impetus to the current vogue for early American furniture.

Glenda Farrell is the victim of the strangest injury yet suffered by a Hollywood star. Several days ago she was visiting below the border with Robert Rivkin Frank Capra. The party stopped to lunch at a hotel and a rooster, which was part of the atmosphere in the patio, suddenly attacked Glenda. Before the pugnacious fowl could be shooed away, it had inflicted severe spur lacerations upon the actress' legs.

Miss Farrell

The attack brought a death sentence to the battling fowl, as Glenda was its third victim.

Since visiting the Fox studio and having lunch with Pat Patterson and David Butler, Hendrik Van Loon is reported o have modified his opinion of Hollywood.

The author thus defines the difference between a geographer (that's his racket you know) and a film scenario writer:

"I don't write about the agony of love as it applies to two people. I try to elucidate the result of this love as it affects an empire."

Edmund Goulding has returned from his flight to the bedside of his wife in New York. He reports her condition unchanged . . . Mrs. James Van Mattimore, mother of Dick Arlen, is here from St. Paul to see her grandson and to spend two months with Dick and Jobyna.

Gossips were buzzing following the appearance of Jean Harlow on the MGM lot. The platinum blonde and the studio have been at outs over money and the rumor hounds scent a reconciliation . . . According to a brief wire, Clark Gable is going into the back-country after mountain lions and will be out of touch with civilization for a week . . . Gene Raymond is back in New York, two weeks ahead of schedule, and will arrive in Hollywood around February 1. . . The hardiest theatrical production in this town is "The Drunkard," a revival of the old-timer which is now in its thirtieth week. Russell Gleason and Heather Angel took it in the other night, along with Elizabeth Allan, Philip McDonald and Lucille and James Gleason . . . Report has it that Sam Wood may be Gloria Swanson's next director . . . And, now that he's a papa, Robert Young has bought a house in Beverly Hills.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J LEWIS

"School for Husbands," with Osgood Perkins and June Walker heading the cast, will begin a week in the Nixon tonight. It is a Theater Guild production, fifth in the local subscription series of the American Theater Society.

Katharine Hepburn, stage actress who didn't become prominent until she clicked so repeatedly in the movies that the stage clamored to get her back again—as a star—will come to the Nixon for the week of February 12. She will appear in Jed Harris' production of "The Lake," a drama by Dorothy Massingham and Murray MacDonald, coming direct from its New York opening engagement. Miss Hepburn will return to the screen next summer, but she plans to devote three months each year to a stage production, playing a limited engagement in New York and making an annual tour of key cities. "The Lake" was an English success, having run an entire season in London. Heading the support of Miss Hepburn in "The Lake" are two former Belasco stars, Frances Starr and Blanche Bates, also Colin Clive. In addition there is a cast of 30 players, including Lionel Pape, Roberts Beatty and Geoffrey Wardwell.

Broadway guessers already are discussing the probable winner of the Pulitzer drama prize for the 1933-34 season, and, of course, are mentioning Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," starring George M. Cohan, easily the most popular non-musical play that has hit New York this season. Another highly thought of in the forecasts is "Men in White," drama of love and duty in a hospital. Consideration also is being given to O'Neill's latest, "Days Without End," drama of a man's struggle for spiritual faith. It received anything but acclaim from New York critics, but gossipers probably include it after remembering what the jury did last season by selecting a musical play, "Of Thee I Sing," for the prize. Also previous surprise awards to Paul Green's "In Abraham's Bosom" and Susan Glaspell's "Allison's House." The jury, not the guessers, makes the selections.

* * *

Among New York plays is "No More Ladies," comedy by A. E. Thomas, featuring Melvyn Douglas, stage and screen star. It is a wise-cracking love story of the smart set, with Lucille Watson stealing the show. "Mackerel Skies" is a drama about a mother fighting daughter's operatic career "By Your Leave" has Dorothy Gish as its star. It is by Gladys Hurlbut and is a hit comedy. "Whatever Possessed Her" has Roland Drew, once of movie fame. It also is a comedy.

Miss Robson Dramatic

May Robson and Lewis Stone, who are considered among the leading character actors in Hollywood, have the principal roles in "You Can't Buy Everything," the new Cosmopolitan Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Miss Robson's recent characterization of Apple Annie in "Lady For a Day," drew high praise from critics and public alike, but those who have seen previews of "You Can't Buy Everything," declare that her present role affords her an even greater opportunity.

Concerning itself with Hannah Bell, a woman who has hoarded millions while living on charity in the hope of making her young son the richest man in the country, and who finally gains control of the largest bank in Wall street, the story of "You Can's Buy Everything" rises to a thrilling climax which finds Miss Robson at the height of her dramatic powers.

Stone plays John Burton and a victim of the panic of 1907 who, hated now by Hannah, had once been her sweetheart.

Jean Parker plays the role of John Burton's daughter, and supplies the young love interest with William Bakewell, playing the part of the son of Hannah Bell. Others in the cast are Mary Forbes, Reginald Mason, Tad Alexander, Walter Walker and Reginald Barlow.

Platinum Fad Fading, Earl Declares

HOLLYWOOD, Jan 29.—(AP.)—The platinum blonde fad is fading, Earl Carroll, the Broadway theatrical producer, declared as he arrived here with 11 "Vanities" girls who will appear in a motion picture.

"A beauty is a girl your eye is pleased to look upon and who adds a few extra beats to your heart," said Carroll.

"I brought four blonds out of 11 with me, but there isn't a single platinum blonde in my troupe. The fad is fading."

Penn to Give Kiddie Show

The Penn Theater announces a special show for the kiddies at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning. The demand has been so urgent for a complete show of the Walt Disney-United Artists cartoons that the management has finally assembled seven of them for the "kid show."

Mickey Mouse adventures and Silly Symphony cartoons will comprise the program which will include "Three Little Pigs," "Lullaby Land," "Pied Piper," "Workshop," "Trader Mickey," "Touchdown Mickey" and "Mickey's Nightmare."

Doors will open at 8:30 a. m.

Actor Often Thinks He's a Butler

Sidney Bracy, who plays the butler in Columbia's "The Ninth Guest," says he has played the role of a servitor so many times that it is with difficulty he stops himself from announcing the guests whenever he attends a formal social event.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—Pretty Virginia Peine Lehman, who came to Hollywood to try for a movie career, is finding that you cannot be the wife of a Chicago millionaire and have the world forget it. Married to Edward Lehman, scion of the Chicago Fair Lehmans, Virginia, whose father was also a prominent merchant in the Windy City, was a well-known society matron.

She and her husband decided to part, so she brought her 2-year-old baby to Hollywood to try to forget her matrimonial unhappiness. Winfield Sheehan saw her, and promptly signed her to make a picture for the Fox company.

Virginia has reddish gold hair and brown eyes and is one of the prettiest girls who has ever stepped inside of Hollywood. She had no idea her advent into movieland would be met with so much publicity but almost immediately the newspapers were filled with stories of the society matron who wanted to crash the movies.

"The thing that upsets me," said Virginia, "are the stories printed that if I don't succeed in the movies I will return to my husband. That is so obviously unfair to him. We could not get along married, so I am filing suit for divorce. There are no sensational charges, we just simply can't get along together.

"He has telephoned me several times to inquire about the baby, and I am not running away from him because I am movie mad. We were separated before I decided to come to Hollywood."

Mrs. Lehman, or Virginia Pine, as she will be called in the movies, wore chiffon pajamas on the Fox lot when I saw her. They were very becoming and when I spoke of it to her, she said:

"I like pajamas not only in place of the old fashioned nightgown but for the beach and for informal wear. When people say that pajamas are no longer in style they lose sight of the fact that pajamas have always been worn in semi-tropical countries."

Fashion Show Premiere

"Fashions of 1934, set against a background of Parisian gowns and models, is to have a gala "Hollywood premiere" Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at Stanley Theater. One of the features will be a style show by 20 professional models wearing the latest creations in ladies' wear direct from Paris.

There also will be a broadcast in which persons prominent in society, civic and public life will be heard.

Heading the cast of principals in "Fashions of 1934" are William Powell, Bette Davis, Vere Teasdale, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Reginald Owen and 40 models in addition to a large number of show girls. One of the songs is "Spin a Little Web of Dreams." Among the spectacular scenes are the "Pageant of Ostrich Plumes," "The Hall of Human Harps," "The Web of Dreams," many girls in a fantastic fan dance.

Big Spender.

WHENEVER I think back over the list of men who enjoyed a flash of fame as nightclub spenders, I manage to give myself a slight chuckle. It amuses me to check them one by one—and to realize that, almost without exception, they prove to be first-class phoneys in the long run. I speak at the moment, of course, only of the spenders in the last 10 or 12 years. Although I don't doubt that the same condition existed in any period.

Just why such men go to all extremes to live as big shots is something I wouldn't know about. If I tried to figure the various angles of a Broadwayite's brain I'd be even daffier than I am today. So the best thing I can do is to tell you the story of Twenty-Dollar Charlie and let it go at that . . .

Charlie got his nickname around the night clubs. He was a man of mystery from the start—but the girls and boys all knew he was a smart guy in some smart racket. Let's see why:

Every two or three months, Charlie would walk into a joint that appealed to him. He would begin to unload twenty-dollar bills.

If those twenties had been hundreds, the mob would have figured Charlie for a phoney spender. They would have known immediately that he was just a flash in the pan and that his patronage would soon be a thing of the past. But when it came to twenties, that was a different story.

Any racketeer who is up in the money can be counted upon to toss out tens and twenties. It makes friends for him, and it's quite in keeping with his position. If he gives too much, it's just as bad as giving too little.

Charlie had the boys and girls slightly buffaloed. He never appeared in a cafe more than two nights in a row—and he always disappeared for some three months at a stretch.

As far as girls were concerned, Charlie didn't seem to be particularly interested. His first visit to the clubs seemed to prove conclusively that women didn't form a prominent part of his life. Then he met Mildred and, as has always happened, the boys got a new slant on him. He fell heavily for the lady in question.

In due time, Charlie asked Mildred to marry him. Her answer was in the negative—and for the reason I have already outlined. She didn't tell him the actual reason, because she imagined that he would understand. Charlie evidently didn't. Because he left her that night and sent her a letter a few days later.

"I think it's best I don't come around to see you no more," he wrote in part, "because it's a little too tough on me. I don't blame you for not picking out the kind of a mug they call Twenty-Dollar Charlie. I'm only sorry I had to go and fall in love with you.

"I'm going to stick to my own business now, and cut out this idea of hiting the cafes. I only did it around four times a year—but I'm through with it altogether now. I hope you'll be very happy, Mildred, and I think we could have done okay together—but there's no use talking about that now. So long, sweet girl."

You never know what a dog-gone damsel will do. She carried that letter to the cafe owner that night, and asked him if he knew where she could reach Charlie. He said he didn't—and asked her why.

"I think I'd like to marry him," was her simple reply. "Even though he's a big racketeer, there's something terribly sweet about him. I think I could have reformed him." . . .

* * *

About five months later Mildred arose one morning and picked up her favorite paper. There, on the front page, was Charlie's picture. He had been shot in a stickup, and was dying in a certain hospital.

"I knew it," muttered Mildred. "It's the way they all go."

She dressed hastily and rushed to the hospital. It was, she thought, the least she could do. She arrived a few minutes too late. An attendant told her that Charlie had just died.

"The racketeers must go," she sighed. "Poor Charlie was no exception."

The hospital attendant wrinkled his brow.

"Racketeer," he murmured. "Charlie wasn't no racketeer. He worked right here in this hospital for four years—and he got a hundred dollars a month and board." . . .

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Pittsburgh will lose one of its most enthusiastic supporters of music this winter, for Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of Butler, who comes to Pittsburgh so often she really can be counted as a Pittsburgher, sailed Saturday for Europe.

Mrs. Phillips and Mr. Phillips, former congressman, spent a few days in Washington before going to New York, from where Mrs. Phillips sailed. She'll take a Mediterranean cruise to Trieste. And will then go to Vienna to visit her daughter, Mrs. Lucien van Hoorn.

School Federation Helps With Ball

Besides planning for their annual luncheon Wednesday, the Federation of Girls' School Societies—or at least many of the members—has been busy working for the Presidential Ball, tomorrow night in the William Penn Hotel.

Mrs. George Singer Ebbert is chairman of a group of members of the Federation who are selling tickets to the ball in the various downtown department stores.

"Saleswomen" Work At Ticket Booths

Among these saleswomen are Ann Wehr, Mrs. Albert Weitzel, Mrs. John Friday, Mrs. John D. McCreery, Helen Milliron, Louise Loughner, Gwendolyn Nieman, Mrs. Robert Knight, Elizabeth Williams, Rita Overend, Valerie Kopp, Mrs. Marshall Jones, Mrs. Samuel McClements, Jr., Mrs. Ernest Genter and Charlotte Fay.

Others are Dorothy McCune, Elizabeth Seifert, Katherine Davis, Mrs. William C. Reitz II, Laura Schroll, Esther Smith, Mary Priscilla Burnett, Mary Hamilton, Mrs. Joseph Heppenstall, Mrs. Joseph Ward, Mrs. Robert Irwin, Mrs. James Craig, Mrs. Herbert Gilg, Mrs. Raymond Artz and Mrs. Harry Voelp.

Among those on the general committee list for the ball are Francis L. Andrews, the M. L. Benedums, H. V. Blaxter, Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger, Arthur E. Braun, Harry F. Bovard, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, J. Twing Brooks, A. H. Burchfield, J. Frederic Byers, Samuel Harden Church, Mrs. James C. Chaplin, William Y. Cocken, Jr., and E. R. Crawford.

Debutantes to Aid At Colonial Dames' Fete

After that picturesque event, the Colonial Dames' parade of historical costumes, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Twentieth Century Club, there'll be a tea.

Mrs. William R. Scott, chairman and Mrs. George L. Claypool, vice chairman, have asked Mrs. James R. Macfarlane, Mrs. Thomas Alexander, Mrs. James H. Reed, Mrs. Robert Reineman, Mrs. George Pearson, Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, Mrs. William Sill Foster and Miss Julia Harding to pour at the tables.

Many of the debs, who were presented to society this fall and this winter, will be among the aides. Among them are Margaret Taylor, Analana Beeson, Eleanor J. McKeenan, Margery Hillman, Alice Brown, Virginia Evans, Mary Gordon, Betsy Liggett, Katherine McConnell, Vardi Marshall, Althea Robinson, Peggy Robinson, Florence Willock, Maria Wilson, Evelyn Freeman.

New York Girl and Pittsburgh Man Wed

The William Frederick Mohrs, of New York, have announced the wedding of their daughter, Florence Bailey Mohr, to Raymond M. Waggoner, of Pittsburgh, which took place Friday afternoon at Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, with the Rev. Philip C. Jones officiating.

* * *

Mrs. Francis Sellers Guthrie, of Beechwood boulevard, has been in New York, stopping at the New Weston, where she was joined by Mrs. J. W. Glenn, of Hempstead, L. I.

Mary Elizabeth Dyke To Be Married June 1

Miss Mary Elizabeth Dyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Dyke, of Hobart street, has chosen June 1 as the date for her marriage to Charles Ross Acklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Acklin, of New Kensington. The ceremony will take place at 7:30 o'clock that evening in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Forbes street, Squirrel Hill.

SOCIETY CAREERS NO. 3: Miss Eleanor Mann, an Artist

MISS ELEANOR MANN, DAUGHTER OF THE RT. REV. ALEXANDER MANN, WITH HER TWO PETS.....SHE MAKES SKETCHES OF SOCIETY'S PET DOGS

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

The big collie you see in the above picture has posed so much for his mistress, Eleanor Mann, that it will sit patiently for a half-hour at a time.

The smaller dog, a miniature collie, is more difficult. It's still hard for him to stay quiet for more than a minute or two. He's so small that he can run under the big dog—and loves to, too.

* * *

Their mistress was so successful sketching them that her friends wanted their pets sketched. And now she's made her hobby a career.

* * *

Nancy Byers is dashing about in one of the new off-the-face hats. And besides being off-the face, there's more about this particular hat that's different. The crown's of brown felt, but the upturned brim is of vivid orange!

Marie V. Murphy Has Church Wedding

The marriage of Miss Marie Virginia Murphy, of Beechwood boulevard, and Joseph Herbert Halligan, of Pittsburgh and Clearfield, Pa., took place Tuesday in St. Philomena's Roman Catholic Church. Officiating was the Rev. Alden Keener.

The bride wore a gown of white faille made with long sleeves, and carried white roses. Miss Frances Elizabeth Burke, as maid of honor, wore turquoise crepe and a corsage of pink roses. T. Glenn Halligan was his brother's best man.

After a fortnight's visit in the East Mr. and Mrs. Halligan will be at home in Mission Hills, Mt. Lebanon.

William Depps Mark Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Depp, of Mt. Royal boulevard, Glenshaw, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday with a family dinner in their home.

February Bride Honor Guest At Party

Miss May McCarthey, of Woodwell avenue, entertained Thursday evening in honor of a bride of next week, Miss Marcella Regina Murray. Guests included the girls who were in Miss Murray's class in St. Francis de Sales High School. Miss Murray is also a graduate of Duquesne University.

Her marriage to John P. Clark will take place on Thursday, February 8 in St. Francis de Sales Church, McKees Rocks. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Murray, of McKees Rocks, and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, of Clairton.

Miss Sally Murray is to be her sister's maid of honor, and Regis Clark will be his brother's best man. The bridegroom-elect is a graduate of Duquesne University.

Cornell Women's Club Dinner on February 10

The Cornell University Women's Club is holding its annual dinner-bridge on February 10 in the home of Mrs. J. D. Freund, of Shady avenue. Members of the Cornell Men's Club and their wives will attend. The proceeds are always used to help some Cornell senior with graduation expenses.

On the committee are Mrs. Charles Kells, chairman; Mrs. J. D. Freund, Mrs. W. Dennig Stewart, Miss Flo VanVranken and Miss Jane Gibbs.

Through the Spyglass

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day ...call GRANT 6500....and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds"...and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

A jolly jigger for the youngsters playtime! A little painted wooden figure . . . maybe a soldier, maybe a gollywog-like type of creature . . . whose insides are hollow and filled with crayons. Many priced at 10c . . . which is less than the price of the crayons alone. And the most expensive, 35c (these are like little barrels and may be used as banks after the crayons are taken out).

* * *

Caught! . . . in some fishnet! The newest idea for dishing up a dainty spring "plat du jour" for your wardrobe.

One of the stores offers handmade linen fishnet whozits like to much lacy air, to pin or clip to your throat, "boozum," or shoulder, and thereby do something delightful to yourselves! These new charmers remind us of doilies . . . 'cept that they don't lie flat. Incidentally . . . they're known as "Breath of Air!" $3.

* * *

Couldn't resist the old-fashioned charm of these lace-paper Valentines one of the shops has! Everything from "pink ladies" with gold lace edging . . . or fan-shaped dainties with frailest white lace . . . on through to one of Mae West with her sleek black gown and feather boa exclaiming "Hello Good Lookin'! Valentine Greetings! Why'nt y' come up sometime!" (There was a Christmas card something like this you'll remember). Prices range 5c to $1 (25c for the Mae West ones).

* * *

With all the yammering around there is these days concerning Colonial and such, we suppose that silhouettes should be in demand. And thusly, we dutifully dug up some quaint ones in a variety of designs . . . in black oval frames . . . for 25c each.

* * *

Who says there's nothing new under the sun? Something new in the food line—Bouillette, in a four-ounce bottle selling for 35c. It's the ideal way to make bouillion . . one-teaspoon to the cup of hot water. Also, excellent for gravies or soups.

And speaking of soup . . . we know where Hormel's famous soups are doing a mad whirl at three cans for 29c! Big pint-four-ounce cans (much larger than the average can which costs 10c!) . . . and all three of them for this price! Regularly 15c each. Two vegetable and one pea. Soup's on!

* * *

When you pluck forth your last year's suit (as many will . . . or when you buy a new one (as still more will) . . . you're going to love to wear one of these little handkercheif linen blouses under it! With big covered buttons down the front . . . strange new sleeves with "ventilators" at the shoulder (someone else's expression, not ours!) . . . . and two styles. Navy, maize, black and white, red, and brown. $1.95

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

VIEWING THE NEW

SPRING BIBS AND TUCK-INS

Lingerie of the fine, hand-worked variety is used to trim the simple black crepe frock sketched to the left of the drawing. The most becoming points of a bib and epaulettes are combined in the fagotted white collar, are a Cavalier and the cuffs type. The other frock is also black, but a plaid surplice in bright stripes on a black ground is belted over it. The two hats are variants of the off-the-face vogue.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PLAIN BLACK frocks with a relieving touch which may be of lingerie or some bright color is a fashion that never goes out, but which renews itself with every change of the calendar.

This year shows a marked return to the fragile, exquisite lingerie trimming, in contrast to the pique, crisp organdie and taffeta which absorbed our attention a year ago come spring. Some of the neck lingerie is so ambitious as to bluff for a shirtwaist, especially models that combine a collar and cuffs with a full length dickey, to be worn with a dark frock of jumper persuasion.

* * *

VESTEES WORN outside a frock, waistcoat fashion, are alluring on some of the new gowns, and fluted ruffles running down the side of a bodice opening are another deft touch. Lots of the new collar and cuff sets designed to give new life to a favorite, long trusted frock, are made of fine or lacy crochet.

* * *

IN ACCENTS of more colorful effects, there are footling bibs invented by Schiaparelli which do beautifully on frocks of any dark, stock color. Lastex makes many of them, and they ape shirt bosoms, twist around the throat in a stole that flares a la Pierette, or go Apache in a handkerchief fashion.

Costume Party to Mark Homestead Cot Club's 14th Anniversary

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

To celebrate its fourteenth anniversary, the Homestead Hospital Cot Club will have a costume party Monday night, February 12, in the Nurses' Home. Besides dancing, the entertainment features will include a play with an oriental setting, directed by Mrs. Samuel Himes, and a minuet danced by 12 members of the Junior Cot Club.

Incidentally, the entire Junior Cot Club has been invited to attend. The cutting and distribution of a large birthday cake by the past presidents is planned as another part of the evening's procedure.

The president, Mrs. L. L. Thompson, and the other officers, Mrs. J. N. Norris, Mrs. John Garland, Mrs. Scott Norris and Mrs. Walter Wilson, will receive and active in arranging the affair are Mrs. William Unger, social chairman; Mrs. Richard Moon, Mrs. Andrew Soderberg and Mrs. John Silveus.

Catholic Council Party Sponsors Announced

The weekly card party sponsored by the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women in the Council House for Saturday afternoon will be in charge of Mrs. Rose Blochinger.

* * *

Motion pictures and a lecture will be presented by Frank J. Wood in the Council House, Thursday evening, February 28, at 8:15 o'clock.

This lecture will consist of four films and a brief talk covering two and a half hours. The talk will include a brief resume of present social conditions in European Russia as noted by Mr. Wood in the year ending June 1, 1933. The film used will give a cross-section picture of old and new Russia.

Miss Ethel Sloan Weds in Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Ethel May Sloan to William Kitchen was solemnized by the Rev. Dr. J. Francis Scott, of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church on Thursday.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sloan, of Federal street extension, North Side, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jashua Kitchen, of Stanley street.

The bride wore an ensemble of blue and white with a corsage of lilies of the valley and tea roses. There was a wedding breakfast in the Sloan home, and later Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen left for the south. After April 1, they will be at home here.

28th Ward Democratic Club Party Tomorrow

The Twenty-eighth Ward Democratic Club will hold a card party and dance tomorrow in the American Legion Club rooms, Cumberland street, honoring the birthday of President Roosevelt, for the benefit of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. Mrs. J. R. Toberg is chairman of the affair.

* * *

A benefit dance for St. Francis DeSales Church is being held Monday evening in the church auditorium, McKees Rocks.

Consumer Council To Be Formed by Club Women

The problem of the consumer will be receiving more attention in the future than in the past if present plans mature under the guidance of interested groups in the city. Under the leadership of Mrs. W. M. Parrish, these groups are contemplating formation of a consumers' council for Western Pennsylvania, one of the first in the country to be established by Dr. Paul H. Douglas, of the NRA.

These councils are planned to educate public opinion on what constitutes a fair price, to protest against exorbitant prices and otherwise to mobilize and enlighten consumers. They will disseminate information, co-ordinate the public's reactions to economic events and motivate the expressions of significant groups on national bills.

Dr. Douglas, who is chief of the Bureau of Economic Education under the consumers' advisory board of the NRA, will speak in Pittsburgh on February 7 at the Chamber of Commerce.

The national office of the American Association of University Women was asked to co-operate in the formation of these councils because of its anticipation of the need of such activity when the association produced a consumers' kit for study groups under the direction of Dr. Kathryn McHale, national director.

Record Report Expected at 'Y' Meeting

An overflow attendance and the largest report of the campaign are expected tonight at the meeting of workers in the 1934 budget fund appeal of the Young Women's Christian Association to be held at 6:15 o'clock in the auditorium of Central Branch, Chatham street.

Miss Mabel Lindsay Gillespie, general chairman of the appeal, will preside at the meeting, and a feature of the affair will be the awarding of prizes to teams which, since the start of the campaign, have made the largest number of visits, have obtained the largest number of subscriptions, have raised the largest amount of money, and which have obtained the largest number of increased subscriptions.

PEDESTRIAN HIT BY AUTO DIES; DRIVER HELD

David Lloyd, 40, of 615 Hawkins avenue, North Braddock, died in Pittsburgh Hospital last night of injuries suffered early yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at Broad street, near Franks-town avenue.

Police arrested H. C. Patterson, 25, of 372 North Highland avenue, who they said was the driver. The victim's skull was fractured.

Wilma Patterson, 26, Frank Klos, 39, both of Wheeling, and Arthur Munro, 39, of 759 Shady drive, Mt. Lebanon, were injured when cars driven by Munro and Klos collided at Fifth and Bellefield avenues early yesterday.

John Flochner, 34, driver for Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company, suffered cuts and bruises in a crash between his milk truck and a car driven by Clement Edger, 19, of 2022 Hampton street, Swissvale, near Carnegie Library, Oakland, yesterday.

Andrew Polley, 23, of 17 Magee street, was in the Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington, today with a fractured jaw and other injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at the Harwick crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Springdale, last night. John Kosick, of Red Bank, Pa., drove the machine that struck Polley, according to police.

DIVERS SEEKING DROWNED NUNS

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Two Ogdensburg divers, handicaped by a temperature of 12 degrees below zero, descended into the icy waters of the Powere Canal at Black River three times this morning in an effort to find the automobile in which four nuns and a driver went to their deaths last night.

The divers, George Fisher and Edward Boucher, reported that the valves of their diving suits froze so fast it was impossible to stay in the water more than a minute or two at a time. They found no sign of the car in the first attempts.

The car tore through a guard rail and rolled down an embankment into 20 feet of water.

The nuns and their names before entering the convent were:

Sister Gabriel, Mary Giblin, of Carthage, principal of the academy; Sister Alphonsus, Margaret Kenney, of Philadelphia; Sister Angelo, Emma Walsh, of Lowville, N. Y., and Sister Christina, Sadie Hallgos, of Scranton, Pa.

The driver of the automobile was Martin O'Keefe, of Carthage.

Disabled Veterans Elect Pittsburgher

Ralph Wadlow, of Pittsburgh, was elected junior vice commander of the Disabled American Veterans of Pennsylvania at the close of the association's three-day convention in Harrisburg, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Joseph Edward Kerst, Harrisburg, was elected president.

Slain Woman's Husband Gassed

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Richard Fitzpatrick, 24, husband of one of six women for whose deaths Mrs. M. J. Merrifield, 71-year-old midwife is held by police, was found fatally gassed in a motor car beside his wife's grave here yesterday.

MR. MORRILL PRESENTING HIS "PRESIDENT'S CUP" FOR 1933

Stores Here Win Cup For Trade Increase

President of Firm Praises Employes For Leadership

Pittsburgh shows a higher percentage of business increase than the average city in the United States, A. H. Morrill, president of the Kroger stores, declared yesterday at the presentation of the "president's cup" to the local branch.

More than 1,000 employes of the local branch attended the presentation meeting, held yesterday afternoon in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The cup is awarded each year to the branch showing the greatest progress and was won by the Pittsburgh branch by its record for 1933.

H. V. McNamara, local branch manager, responding to President Morrill's address, declared that employes of the Pittsburgh branch were determined to win the cup again next year and keep it here for two consecutive years.

Grocery stores constantly touch the pulse of business, Morrill declared, and changes are felt by them very quickly. He continued:

"Since the middle of November there has been a really strong indication of improved business conditions.

"Our business, which I consider a good barometer, shows a 5 per cent increase in business generally. Pittsburgh has shown a higher percentage than the average—a 6 per cent increase showing in our stores.

"Although we are really newcomers here, we always have looked upon Pittsburgh as one of the soundest, wealthiest cities. I feel certain that here in the steel district, economic conditions will continue to show improvement during the coming year."

Morrill pointed out that the achievement of the Pittsburgh branch in winning the cup shows real accomplishment, since the company operates 4,800 stores in its 21 branches throughout the country.

3 BAKERS HELD IN CONTEMPT

Judge James H. Gray today adjudged three members of the Karl E. Baur Baking Company in contempt of court, but gave them three months to purge themselves of the charge without penalty.

The court held they had not "wantonly" disobeyed the injunction granted two years ago restraining them from using the name of the Baur Baking Company. Action was brought by the Ward Baking Company, which took over the old Baur Company many years ago.

The Ward company contended the words "Baur Company" were used on trucks and advertising matter in large letters and "Karl E." in small letters and that this was in violation of the injunction. Those named in the court's opinion were Karl E., John, Jr., and Fred Baur.

Owl, Pussycat Go to Sea Tonight

In honor of the President's birthday, the "Contented Hour" pays tribute to the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, an institution dear to Mr. Roosevelt's heart, during a broadcast over NBC-WCAE tonight at 10. Jean Paul King will make the program dedication.

Because so many children are being treated at the foundation, Musical Director Morgan L. Eastman has chosen several numbers that will appeal to the little folk — "Sleepytown Express," "The Owl and the Pussycat," (in a beautiful pea-green boat), and "The Little Clock On the Mantel."

* * *

Carolyn Carter, well-known home economist, juggles pots and pans and gives expert advice on mixing and cooking plain and fancy foods during a series of two-hour "Two Way" broadcasts over WCAE, beginning tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 4.

The cooking school, held in Horne's auditorium and open to the public, will be on the air Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

S'help me, WNEW, the imminent transmitting neophyte, is plotting a series covering the romance of a farmer's daughter and a traveling salesman, and Irving Kaufman, who writes the script, is forming a cast.

* * *

Jimmy Melton, whose "song picture" programs over the NBC networks has greatly enhanced his popularity, will give a song recital in Syria Mosque, Tuesday evening, February 6, with George Gershwin, pianist-composer, and Charles Previn's orchestra.

* * *

Leo Stokowski temporarily, for a month at least, makes a noise like a tree and leaves his symphony programs to go West and study sound science in Hollywood.

His sub-conductor, Sylvan Levin, will carry on, and be guided telegraphically by Leopold.

* * *

The most sensible stunt ever conceived by a sponsor is that of a tobacco firm, which began at 6:45 Saturday night at WEAF, to offer sample programs over a period of weeks . . . that which wins most audience applause will be booked permanently.

DEB FINDS LESS DRINKING AT PARTIES

By BARBARA DIGBY LESLIE

(Miss Leslie, an editor of the Junior League magazine, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Leslie, of East Hampton, L. I., and made her debut last year. She compares this season's debutante parties with those of pre-repeal days in the following article written for the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—There is a great deal less drinking at "deb" parties this year than last season, and parties are about twice as quiet.

Less drunkenness and more manners are seen. In the speakeasy era, it was smart to tear around and be noisy. Now, boys are acting like gentlemen.

They simply won't take you to a speakeasy. Instead, they take you to a restaurant for cocktails, and seem to enjoy it. It's a more continental, grown-up attitude.

BOYS LEARN VINTAGES

Champagn and wine are replacing those awful drinks we took before repeal. Boys are beginning to learn vintages, and appreciate them. Before repeal they weren't fussy; but now they know whether it's good sherry or not. You often see them supervising the bartender and giving dictions.

A lot of boys are joining liquor firms after they leave school instead of going to Wall street.

Flasks have almost completely disappeared. I've seen one this year.

Of course, there always will be boys who drink a lot. But they're more often a little "high" now than really drunk.

This season, girls are refusing to dance with boys who are obviously ently drunk. And boys in th ag line are conspicuously nice this season about cutting in and rescuing a girl whose partner is drunk.

People are staying at parties this year instead of chasing around, and arrive more nearly on time. They don't go to a speakeasy first.

Since repeal there has been a great deal more waltzing—more smooth rhythms. Hopping considered pretty poor taste.

The romantic corner is almost a thing of the past at debutante parties. You see couples holding hands as they cross the floor, but they're matter of fact about it.

SERIOUS ATTITUDE

Everyone has a more serious attitude toward life. Maybe it's a result of the depression. You hear really good conversation now—not just the old line. Sometimes an entire dinner table will get deep in politics or philosophy.

A lot of debs are working—modeling, working in stores or law offices and studying at Columbia. After a party they get up and go to work.

Manners toward parents are improving, too. Parents are chumming in more, and trust their children more. We used to shut up when our parents appeared on the scene, and now we keep on talking.

Boys talk to the family now, instead of dashing in, getting us and dashing out. Sometimes they get so involved in conversation with father we girls wonder if we'll ever get to the party.

I've been talking with Mary McMillen and Josephine Adams, two of this season's most popular debs, and they agree that these things are true.

Losing Eyesight

PRINCESS HELENE

Princess Helene, divorced wife of Rumania's King Carol II, slowly losing her eyesight, intimates have revealed, because she is too proud to wear spectacles in public.

5 Dead, 10 Missing In Jap Boat Mishap

NAGASAKI, Japan, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Five bodies had been recovered today, 10 persons were missing and 50 were injured in the latest toll of a ferryboat accident yesterday which dumped between 200 and 300 passengers into the water.

STATE LIQUOR CARGO FAILS TO ARRIVE

The expected carload of "Sweepstakes" whisky, consigned from Philadelphia to state liquor stores in Pittsburgh, had failed to arrive today to the disappointment of thirsty hundreds.

The car was due Saturday for the week-end rush.

Bootlegging will always exist in Pittsburgh, according to Wilbert H. Beachy, state revenue investigator, who declared yesterday the main aim of his office is to check illegal competition with the licensed liquor dealer.

Beachy, recently appointed to the local revenue office, said more than 100 arrests have been made in this district for liquor law violations since repeal.

Lauding co-operation by local police and magistrates, he said enforcement of the law has been simplified by the support of public opinion. Prosecution is favored, he asserted, not only by those who pay $600 for a liquor license, but also by the man in the street who eventually profits through liquor tax returns.

Five aides are assisting Beachy in detecting and arresting liquor law violators in Pittsburgh. He said stiff penalties will be sought in every case that comes to court.

Rum Price Probe Asked in Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Charging the liquor interests were in collusion to maintain high prices, Representative Cochran (Dem.), of Missouri, today asked the Department of Justice to make a sweeping investigation into whisky marketing practices.

Prince Michael Ends Visit With Mother

VENICE, Italy, Jan. 29.—(Universal.)—Ending a brief visit with his mother, Princess Helene, of Greece, Crown Prince Michael, of Rumania, left for Bucharest yesterday.

Parting cheerfully from his mother, the former "boy king" said he was determined to act as intermediary in an attempt to reconcile the Princess with his father, King Carol of Rumania, from whom she is divorced.

STEPHAN TALK AT CHAMBER

Changes in the age groups, birth and death rates, racial and geographical shifts and economic status of Pittsburgh's population will be described in a chart-talk at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon tomorrow by F. F. Stephan, director of the Bureau of Social Research. "Population Trends Predict the Future of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh Market" will be the subject of Stephan's talk. He will illustrate a number of definite, long-term trends and will make predictions regarding Pittsburgh's future population.

Mr. Stephan

The Bureau of Social Research is a department of the Federation of Social Agencies.

Crafton Club Plans Washington Fete

Alexander Stormie, member of the Crafton Heights Charmas Club, and Mrs. Samuel Curry, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, have been named to head committees to prepare for the fourteenth annual dinner-dance of the Charmas Club on Washington's Birthday. Members of the club were guests of the auxiliary in celebration of the sixth anniversary of the auxiliary last Thursday night.

Teller to Address International Club

"The Challenge of the Slums" will be the subject of a talk which Sidney A. Teller, director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, will make before the International Club in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock. An open forum will follow Teller's talk. Presiding will be William A. Scheder.

accordian LANTERN SLEEVE dress .. 17.50

Here's a brightener up. This silk print is rather like a piece of Chinese crackle print. The accordian pleating of the sleeves softens the glow of broad stripes in orange and lacquer green. Dark ground print is black, brown or navy, sizes 12 to 20. Even to critical eyes, it looks plenty more than its price.

CHIEF OF COUNTY WOMEN'S CLUBS BACKS SALES TAX

FLOOD CONTROL HEAD ASSAILS GARLAND

Davison Says Request To Take Fund Plea To County Unfair

Issue has been taken with President of Council Robert Garland by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh on his suggestion that the commission appeal to the County Commissioners for funds to carry on its $51,000,000 flood control campaign.

City Council, on Garland's motion, last week, referred the flood control organization's request for between $5,000 and $7,500, to the Budget Committee, after Garland suggested that:

"George S. Davison (president of the Flood Commission) be requested to appeal for an appropriation from the County Commissioners."

COURSE HELD UNFAIR

In a letter to Councilman Garland today, Mr. Davison pointed out, in part:

"We are at a loss to understand why you want us to appeal to the County Commissioners. Is it the intention to keep us waiting for the city's answer until you shall have seen what the county will do for us? We think such a course unfair to us and to the county as well.

"The situation with respect to the county differs greatly from the city. There is never a large expenditure of county money for repair of damages following floods for the reason that the county owns no such properties or services as the city."

FLOOD CLEANUP COSTS

The annual cost to the city for cleaning up after floods and correcting conditions caused by extreme low water is between $30,000 and $40,000, Davison asserted, adding:

"The Flood Commission is quite capable of financing its own work. But, it has invited the participation of city taxpayers through their elected representatives for the reason that benefits derived from construction of the reservoir system will accrue in considerable part to those taxpayers."

Davison asked Garland:

"To compel us to run to the county for help before you will consider our request, if that was the intention of your motion, tends to place us somewhat in the position of asking alms, don't you think?"

Outlining the effects of its 25 years' work for flood control, Davison said the Flood Commission is now realizing the start of its program, with the allocation of funds for building the $12,000,000 Tygart Reservoir in the Monongahela River basin.

FUND NEED EXPLAINED

He explained:

"The efforts of the Flood Commission are now directed upon the Public Works Administration to obtain authorization for a similar, but even greater reservoir in the Allegheny Valley. If as successful in this as with the Tygart reservoir, we will concentrate upon obtaining authorization for completing the entire system at an expenditure of many millions of dollars of federal money, without cost to local taxpayers. Work would be furnished to thousands, and millions of dollars worth of Pittsburgh district products would be required for construction, such as steel, lumber, cement, sand, gravel and machinery."

Explaining the commission's request for city funds, Davison emphasized the need for meeting competition from other sections of the country, some of which, he declared, are more favorably situated politically and have more enthusiastic backing at home. Consequently, he continued, some of them already have obtained more than their share of public money.

If you know of any accident, of a business merger, of a big building project—that is NEWS. Watch especially for unsuual stories about children and animals and for stories that lend themselves to interesting pictures.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

Every Levy Has Meaning of Its Own In Brother McNair's Taxless Town

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 29.—Is Middletown really the taxless borough which Pittsburgh's Mayor William N. McNair insists it is?

The answer is yes, BUT . . .

It is true that Middletown, whose Burgess, Harold Vane McNair, is a brother of Pittsburgh's Mayor, has no levy on real property, but there are other inescapable assessments.

For instance:

The borough has no sanitary sewer system. Instead, a privately-owned system charges a minimum of $8 yearly and a rate of 20 cents per foot of property frontage.

The water system, also privately owned, charges a minimum of $12 yearly and collects $30,000 annually.

The garbage-collection system is privately owned and the cost averages $8 a year to each householder.

All these items and one other enable Middletown to escape a realty tax.

The one other is the municipally-owned electric system. The borough has a monopoly on distribution of electric current in the town. The annual profit, $25,000, comes, of course, from the residents.

If the amounts paid for sewer, water and garbage service were paid the borough in taxes, the charge would be 20 or 21 mills for these three items alone.

Even Burgess McNair does not hold that the residents are untaxed. He contends, however, that his plan of financing the borough from the electricity contract is the forerunner of "a new day in political economy."

THE M'NAIR BOYS: HAROLD RUNS MIDDLETOWN, WILLIAM PITTSBURGH

TAXLESS TOWN? 'BOSH'

A half dozen or more prominent businessmen, interviewed on Middletown's tax system, offered these comments:

"Taxless town . . . That's all bosh . . . We pay just the same . . . We pay it to the private corporations . . . What's the difference if we pay less for electricity and label the difference taxes or pay it all for current and call none of it taxes?"

Even now there is a possibility that Middletown Council, now planning its 1934 budget, may vote to return to the realty tax which was eliminated last year.

But Burgess McNair, who realizes the opposition, indicated he would veto such an ordinance.

M'NAIR SCOLDS SHANTYTOWN

Mayor William N. McNair is disappointed because none of Father Cox' Shantytown residents accepted his offer of free city-owned lots for those who wished to construct their own homes.

Lamenting the lack of interest in his proposal, Mayor McNair, during an address last night at the First Primitive Methodist Church, Holmes street and McCandless avenue, said he intended to give deeds to city-owned lots which the unemployed chose as home sites. He did not explain by what procedure he could legally provide the deed.

The Mayor also said he had intended to provide CWA assistance in home construction to those accepting his offer and would have given them city-owned building material.

The Mayor did not explain how he would dodge the government ban on the use of CWA labor on private projects or by what method he could legally give away city-owned building material. His address was based on the twenty-fifth chapter of Leviticus.

Taxes of Average Man Are Reduced, So Now Who Is He?

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Good income tax news for the average man. He will have to pay less.

Better news would be that the average man would have to pay less than average.

If you ain't sure whether or not you come within this quota we will give you the data. The average man is five feet eight inches tall, has bags under his eyes, weighs less than he should and hates to pay an income tax.

Men who are more than average can get themselves lawyers who will average them up.

There are more than two ways of skinning a cat. And more than three places to hide the carcass.

M'NAIR POSES FOR TAX MOVIE

Mayor William N. McNair's office was transformed into a movie studio today while His Honor held forth on the benefits of the single tax.

Members of his cabinet, clerks and stenographers provided the scenic effects while the Mayor and Theodode L. Moritz, his assistant secretary, furnished the sound. The script read:

"Mayor, isn't it true many people don't know what economic rent is?"

"Yes, some people seem to think economic rent is complicated. It isn't."

Francis W. Maguire, the Mayor's 82-year-old single tax favorite, was to be in the cast, but he couldn't stand the glare of the kleig lights.

The sketch is slated for presentation in a downtown theater. It will include cartoons and charts to illustrate the single tax theories.

MAJ. REES FIRM IN QUITTING COUNTY JOB

Drops Election Post in Manner to Prevent Action Being Tabled

Unable to get away from his job as head of the County Election Bureau by resigning, Maj. William T. Rees today had severed his connection with the position by "relinquishing" it.

He explained that "relinquishing" meant he had quit, thus forestalling any effort of the commissioners to keep him on the job against his wishes. He said:

"Had I submitted a resignation, the commissioners would have tabled it like they did my recommendations for the voting machines."

HOLDS WORK HAMPERED

Rees explained he had resigned before, but the commissioners tabled the matter. In quitting the Election Bureau post, he left it up to the commissioners whether he will remain as their chief clerk.

Commissioner William D. Mansfield said he favors retention of Maj. Rees as chief clerk.

Rees said he had taken the Election Bureau position only temporarily following the death of John W. Vickerman. He added that his work there had been hampered by the commissioners. He notified the commissioners he is through effective Wednesday.

In 1933 he faced the problem of remedying the defects of the county's 1,100 defective voting machines and asked the Commissioners to provide for a trained and qualified organization only to be refused three times.

WORKERS UNTRAINED

Finally he was given a force of untrained men at the last moment, who rushed through the preparation of the machines for the fall primaries. In the midst of election the machines broke down in many parts of the city and the Commissioners were forced to supply paper ballots.

Then the general election approached and Rees succeeded in getting four trained mechanics. But after they had worked several weeks the Commissioners voted to discontinue the appropriation for their wages.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern called them "political hacks," and said he would not vote a single dollar to continue their work. Finally they were put back on the payroll for an additional period.

ANOTHER CLASH

Rees' efforts to hire B. B. Sklar, voting machine expert and former employe of the company that had built the machines, brought another battle between him and the Commissioners. Though Sklar pointed out defects and assured Rees that he could remedy them, the Commissioners refused to hire him.

Another fight resulted when the Commissioners attempted to fire three of Rees' employes last July. Rees tendered his resignation at that time. The men were Ray C. Dever, chief custodian; Frank C. Willets and Russell Mitchell. Dever eventually was furloughed, but the others remained.

New Type Steel Crate Serves Double Purpose

'Boxes' Holding Stone For Heinz Chapel Become Scaffolds

Steel boxes in which cut stone is shipped to the Heinz Memorial Chapel, now under construction on the Cathedral of Learning quadrangle, are actually man-sized toy sets, builders explained today.

Every crate, they point out, is constructed of small sheets of steel held together with small steel girder angles, much like the parts of a toy set.

Workers unbolt the crates, and use the small girders to build the fireproof steel scaffolding on which masons stand to set stone. Masonry, which exactly matches the Cathedral of Learning stone, has now reached above the first story level. Already, the building seems to be enclosed in a huge steel cage.

The whole ingenious system is a patented invention owned by Alexander Howie, of Cleveland, contractor setting the stone. He supplies both the stone and the steel scaffolding required for its erection simultaneously.

Stonework finished, the steel framework will be "knocked down," and shipped back to the quarries for use again in making stone crates.

In addition to the scaffolding, workmen are finding many other uses for the small angles. A few bolted together make a strong small crane needed for hoisting stone. Others are used to build skeleton elevator frames.

The Heinz Chapel is one of the first jobs in this district on which the new type scaffolding has been used.

SEES EQUALITY IN LEVY ON PRODUCTS

Delegates to Meeting Told of Revenue Source in Plan

Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane, president of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, consisting of 90 clubs with a total membership of 10,000 women, today gave her personal indorsement of the manufacturers' sales tax plan. She said:

"I am in favor of the manufacturers' sales tax plan, because under it the one who can afford luxuries will be the one who will carry the heaviest burden of taxation in times of depression.

"Income tax is all very well when times are good and there are incomes with which to pay it, but in times of depression, when incomes are depreciated or collapsed entirely, then the poor should be relieved of the burden they are no longer able to carry."

PLAN DISCUSSED

Before the quarterly meeting of the federation three days ago, Mrs. Cochrane discussed the plan with Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, southwestern district president of the federation. Mrs. Chalfant suggested that it be read before the meeting of the 400 delegates by Mrs. Sidney Kaufmann, legislative chairman. In Mrs. Kaufmann's absence, the text of the resolution, which will be submitted to every civic organization in Allegheny County, was read by Mrs. Charles B. Buerger, president of the Council of Jewish Women.

Mrs. Berger recommended that the resolution be studied by the legislative committee and by the clubs in the federation for individual or mass indorsement. Action will probably be taken at the next southwestern district meeting in the William Penn Hotel, Mrs. Cochrane said.

The text of the resolution which Mrs. Buerger read to the delegates at the federation meeting, and which will be sent to hundreds of clubs in Allegheny County, briefly is:

"Resolved, That an income tax discourages industrial and commercial enterprise, lessens employment of labor and thereby reduces payrolls and purchasing power.

"That as against an income tax a manufacturers' sales tax as has been adequately demonstrated in other countries, will produce a larger national revenue with a minimum disturbance to the economic structure of the nation and without interference with individual welfare and convenience; that such a tax, while producing a greater revenue, would be less expensive to administer and more equitable in its incidence."

Prisoners Fight Over Cell Bunk

It cost Joseph Plobsky, 28, of 1020 Welser way, a couple of gashes in his face for claiming the bunk of a cell in the North Side Police Station yesterday. John Reed, 51, claimed the same bunk and the fight resulted, police say.

The two men were lodged in the same cell. After the fight was over Sergt. George Yochum gave them separate cells and added a charge of disorderly conduct against them.

City Repays Loan Made for Payroll

The city today paid a loan of $750,000 to the Union Trust Company made in November to meet the payroll, Controller James P. Kerr announced. Tax receipts enabled the city to pay off the debt, he said.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, visited the Senate Saturday, and renewed many pleasant acquaintances. They are a fine bunch of fellows, when you take into consideration the amount of things the people lay onto 'em.

They rant at each other in there, then come out and are good friends. Had the pleasure of sitting by Mrs. Alice Longworth in the Senate gallery when the gold bill was passed. Alice, true to the Roosevelt tradition, took it right on the chin and smiled.

She sincerely believes that no President ever carried the faith of as many people as this distant relative. Yours, WILL.

SERIAL REVEALS HORRORS ON DEVIL'S ISLAND

Story to be Published, Starting Wednesday In Sun-Telegraph

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Sun-Telegraph on this page Wednesday will begin the publication of Gordon Sinclair's story "Devil's Island."

The island where half-dead men crawl in the sun, sweat, swear, work and die in delirium. The island where men laugh, play poker, drink, make merry and play tennis.

Those are the two paradoxical—almost unbelievable — ways in which the Riff cutthroats and Paris murderers live on Devil's Island, the French penal colony off the coast of French Guiana.

That is what Patrick (Pat) Ryan, of 1726 Altaview street, West View, saw when he was on the island of the condemned. That is what Gordon Sinclair writes about in a serial, "Devil's Island," beginning Wednesday in the Sun-Telegraph.

Ryan, who was on the island in 1917 while serving with the French Foreign Legion and who now works in the circulation department of the Sun-Telegraph, said:

"It is a hell hole for some of the prisoners and for others it is a paradise. The food is terrible, the place is depressing and dirty and is an equatorial death house.

"Many of the men there are political prisoners, while the others are hardened criminals. If they are lucky enough to have money they get privileges such as drinking, playing poker and their freedom at certain times.

"For others who cannot pay the price it means living death in the salt pits, hard work in jungle sweat gangs and solitary confinement in dark caged pits."

PATRICK RYAN REFRESHING HIS MEMORY ON DEVIL'S ISLAND

Pittsburgher Vouches For Facts Presented By Author

Ryan has been to every corner of the globe, but the most terrifying, diseased and unsanitary place of all he found was Devil's Island. After one week he said he wanted to leave and finally after seven long months was transferred to the American Army then fighting in France.

Sinclair, in his story starting Wednesday, tells in detail his experiences on the so-called "Hell Hole," as a newspaperman hunting the true facts.

His story of the Island of Four D's—dishonor, despair, disease and death—as he calls it, is declared to be the most amazing and interesting ever written.

Burns Kill Girl, Court Ward Truant

Myrtle Jackson, 14, Negro, runaway Juvenile Court ward, died yesterday in the Passavant Hospital of burns suffered January 12, when her clothes ignited from a gas stove in a house at 2404 Wylie avenue, according to the Coroner's report. The girl ran away from a foster home in Butler street three weeks ago, police said.

HARRIS HEADS VARIETY CLUBS

Adoption of a constitution and election of officers marked the first national organization meeting of the Variety Clubs of America in the Variety Club, William Penn way, yesterday. Officers elected were:

President, John H. Harris, of Pittsburgh; vice president, M. R. Clark, Columbus, and J. J. Maloney, of Pittsburgh; secretary, William Gehring, Cincinnati; treasurer, James Balmer, of Pittsburgh, and directors, J. E. Fontaine, Cleveland; J. E. Flynn, Detroit; Alvin Wolff, St. Louis; Max Stern, Columbus; George Tyson, St. Louis, and Harry H. Goldstein, of Pittsburgh.

Harris and 10 others organized the first Variety Club in Pittsburgh in 1927, membership of which was restricted to theatrical men. Clubs since have been formed in cities throughout the country.

SCOUT LEADER PRAISES NRA INFLUENCE

A nation more civic minded will develop from the influences of the NRA, it was predicted today by Dr. George J. Fisher, of New York, deputy chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

Dr. Fisher was here today to address the annual meeting of the Allegheny County west executive committee at a dinner tonight in Kaufmann's auditorium. He based his prediction upon the newly-found leisure provided for American workers. He said:

"The home already has lost its autocracy and has become a democracy. Leisure has taught people to seek quality in their interests, to find enjoyment in the simple things of life and to study art, literature and better subjects."

INFLUENCE ON YOUTH

The influence of time on youth was expressed by Dr. Fisher in a noonday talk before the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Irwin D. Wolf presided. Dr. Fisher cited the four outstanding periods in the past 50 years as the period of scientific advance, of mass production, of world conflagration and revolution and of economic dislocation. Citing their influence on youth, he said:

"The scientific emphasis has made a new world of thought. There are new concepts of life and of being, and even of hereafter, the new biology, the extended astronomy, the Einstein philosophy.

"It is the day of the laboratory, of analysis. No longer does thec hild accept the dictum that he shall be seen and not heard. He will know for himself. He will select his advisors. He wil etect the belated mind among his adult associates."

Of mas production, he said:

"It is the age of exaggeration, of belief in the large, in force, in power. It is an impersonal age—mass education, mass play, mass living. It tends to cheapen personality. Boys think less of individuality and more of groups.

The world revolution has brought a daring, a risk that goes to great lengths, that amazes elders who were brought up under a more ironic period, Dr. Fisher said. The futility of their elders has filled youth with cynicism."

FEAR OF POVERTY

Pointing out that the economic condition has brought a fear of poverty and uncertainty as youth sees the suffering of the jobless, Fisher said. Millions of boys who graduate and reach their majority yearly are poured into a society with no place for them. The young at the time of their great adventure are meeting with frustration, futility and disillusionment, he added.

He urged council, inspiration and wise guidance are necessary to aid youth in its readjustment.

POLICE TO GET INSTRUCTION ON DUTIES

Pittsburgh policemen are going to learn just where their duties begin and where they stop. This will be taught them by Police Magistrate J. William McGowan, who will act as instructor in a police school, the first session of which will be held Thursday for lieutenants.

The course of studies is being worked out by Mayor McNair, sponsor of the idea; Director Ralph E. Smith, of the Public Safety Department; Superintendent Ben R. Marshall, of the police bureau, and Magistrate McGowan.

McGowan said that last year more than half the cases brought up in Morals Court were thrown out, which indicated the arresting police officers had not understood fully their duties. He believes clearer understanding of what makes a case for their attention will increase the efficiency of the police.

With the announcement of the police school, Mayor McNair revealed he has asked the Carnegie Institute of Technology faculty for approval of a plan to use students of that school to aid in a graded tax survey. He proposed a course of study of the effects of the Pittsburgh graded tax system on land values, building industries and other interests.

Y. M. C. A. ENDS YEAR WITHOUT DEFICIT

Completion of the year 1933 without a single deficit, despite greatly reduced budgets, is the record of the 14 branches of the Pittsburgh Young Men's Christian Association, it was announced today.

Operating expenses for the year totaled $387,933, as against $466,602 in 1932, representing a reduction of 17 per cent, according to the organization's annual report, which will be submitted at the annual dinner and installation of new directors and committeemen tomorrow night.

364 GIVEN JOBS

In addition to cutting expenditutres, it was reported, 364 unemployed were placed in positions and an increase of 13.1 per cent was shown in attendance at activities.

The meeting tomorrow night will be held at the downtown branch auditorium, 304 Wood street. In addition to officials, boys' leaders and representatives of the Y. W. C. A., the Welfare Fund, the Council of Churches and the Federation of Social Agencies are expected to attend.

NOMINEES LISTED

Prior to the induction ceremonies, members unable to vote during the last week may do so, it was announced. Names presented by the nominating committees are C. A. Locke, W. C. Batchelor, George R. Gibbons, J. Alex Hardy, W. H. Jackson, Robert J. Dodds, Frank Wilbur Main, C. W. Ridinger, Dr. L. E. Van Kirk, W. T. Poole and Alan Bright.

While self-governing, each local branch is affiliated with a world-wide organization comprised of 8,771 branches in 43 countries, having a total membership exceeding 1,500,000. Besides the general office, known as the Metropolitan Association, there are 14 branches in Pittsburgh.

HOMELY RURAL SCENES SHOWN IN PAINTINGS

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of water colors by James Anderson is on view at Elliott's "Little Gallery" through February 2. Mr. Anderson is unabashed in his neighborhood songs.

Miss Redd

Driving rapidly through nearby Bridgeville, one never realizes its pictorial possibilities. Mr. Anderson, however, stops to look and consequently shows us a panorama of pastoral beauty. The farmstead with fields of winter wheat and gently undulating hills is a true way of demonstrating nature's domestic architecture which happens more frequently than nature's grandeur.

In other papers, such as a forest in autumn, or sycamores in winter with screens of oak beyond, Mr. Anderson gives "close-ups" of nature without sacrificing the energizing element of form.

There is series of summer in which he sings of all the greens that grow. These refresh the eye tired of the city's winter fog.

Mr. Anderson does not use water color with swashbuckling gesture, but keys his pace to the contemplative mood.

The Anderson water colors approximte the feeling of the pleasant landscape surrounding our stern city. Mr. Anderson's exhibition is not startling, but it interprets the homely in terms of its own virtues.

SCOUT LEADERS RALLY HERE

National Scout executives from many sections of the country will attend a dinner meeting of the Allegheny County Council, West, Boy Scouts of America, in Kaufmann's auditorium tonight. More than 900 are expected to attend.

Speakers will be Dr. George J. Fisher, of New York, deputy chief scout executive of the National Council, and Irwin D. Wolf, president of the Allegheny County Council, who will be toastmaster.

Former Gov. John S. Fisher, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, will present a cup to Charles Robbins, scoutmaster of Troop 212, Brentwood, for planting the most trees of any troop in the county.

AUTO WASHERS' PAY BOOSTED

A 100 per cent increase in Wilkinsburg's automobile washing industry was announced today following an agreement reached between strikers and employers Saturday night.

Employes, each of whom formerly received two cents for his part in the washing of a machine, will receive four cents each under the new agreement. They had struck for five cents.

Coincident with the wage increase, which will affect about 45 men, car washing prices were raised from 50 to 75 cents.

Judge Ill, Routley Sentence Delayed

Because of the illness of Judge J. Frank Graff, sentencing of James E. Routley and C. C. Benz was postponed indefinitely in Criminal Court today. Both former county employes, they were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the county in the use of gasoline.

Gang of Yeggmen Rob Bank of $5,000

MIDLOTHIAN, Tex., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The First National Bank of Midlothian was robbed of $5,000 early today by a gang of yeggmen, who bound and gagged a night watchman and burned their way into the bank's vault.

Family Flees Fire In Night Clothing

Three fire companies from Bridgeville and Kerwin Heights for five hours fought a fire that destroyed the home of John Decklowa, on Cook's Hill, Upper St. Clair Township, early today.

Decklowa and his family, consisting of several children, escaped in their nightclothes. Frozen water plugs hampered firemen.

WOMAN'S DEATH IN TUB PROBED

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A woman's nude body in the bathtub of a Park avenue penthouse and a strange note in green ink mystified police today.

The woman, Miss Zelie Van Horn Rolker, about 40 years old, had penned:

"I have been a spiritual and mental lover of Frank La Forge for three years. I have loved him with my heart and soul. I know his life has been taken. I go to him. There is no death. Life has no meaning to me without him."

What caused her death, which came to light yesterday, was not apparent. Authorities withheld a suicide verdict pending an autopsy.

The man referred to in the note was not further identified.

Clairton Man Cut With Razor in Fight

Clairton police today are searching for a Negro alleged to have cut James Ward, 46, of 128 Wabash avenue, Clairton, with a razor during an argument in Ward's home yesterday. Ward was taken to the McKeesport Hospital for treatment.

Burns From Stove Fatal to Woman

Mrs. Wilhemina Breiding, 74, of 207 Jucunda street, died in her home last night from burns received while standing in front of a gas stove January 19, according to a coroner's report.

POULTRY SHOW ENTRIES VARY

Exhibits ranging from lowly vegetables to the proudest of game fowl were on exhibition at the Motor Square Garden today as the Mutual Poultry Association opened its ninth annual show.

Wild life and sportsmen's exhibits, tropical fish, home economics, farm products and a school poster contest were added features of this year's show.

Features among the poultry entries, which numbered nearly 2,000, were the Lamonas, a newly-developed breed exhibited by C. W. Spears, of Beechview, and the Barnvelders, a Holland breed being shown by M. G. McChesney, of Millvale, and Oscar Miller, of the North Side.

The farm products and home economics departments are directed by George Singer and R. F. Kittle. Farm products and the womanly arts featured the exhibit. Entries in these two departments were to be judged by Henry R. Eby, county farm agent.

A wild life display, both alive and stuffed, featured the sportsmen's exhibit in charge of Leo A. Hartman.

BAKERY STRIKE UNBROKEN

Despite a warning by the National Labor Board, striking workers of the Ward Baking Company and Baur Brothers' bakery will remain out, it was indicated last night at an executive committee meeting of the strikers in their headquarters in the McGeagh Building.

A hearing is slated for Wednesday before Judge Thomas M. Marshall on the preliminary injunction against violence or interference with business by the strikers. Judge Marshall already has granted a temporary restraining order.

Film Stars Flee 3 Gambling Raids

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Fourteen men were under arrest today following surprise raids on three exclusive alleged gambling clubs. Patrons that fled included men and women film stars in fashionable evening clothes, police reported.

High Level Bridge To Get U. S. Study

Plans for the proposed Homestead high level bridge, to be erected at an estimated cost of $2,000,000, will be scrutinized by an engineer of the Public Works Administration in the near future, according to word from Washington.

Public Works Administration projects in the Pittsburgh district, estimates to cost $31,000,000, have been under consideration by federal officials for some time, it is said, most of the attention centering on the proposed bridge.

INGRAM GIRL MISSING

Ruth Kephart, 16, reported missing from her home, 99 Hodgson avenue, Ingram, since last night, is being sought by police today. She was to have graduated from Ingram High School in June.

Her father, Stanley C. Kephart, believing his daughter to be with her mother, did not miss her until his wife returned home last night.

In his daughter's room he found a note which said in part:

"I have a job, so don't worry."

EFFICIENT MEALS KEEP DOCTOR AWAY, PRUDENCE SAYS

Prize Recipes Hailed Key to Healthy, Tasty Menus

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away," so an old saying tells us, but just think of the doctors well prepared meals keep away. Although it's important how we serve our meals, it's doubly important how we prepare them, counsels Prudence Penny.

There are many ways of cooking dishes, some of them naturally far superior to others. No reason why you should use the inferior methods. Whether you're using economical or expensive ingredients, you can still have the best by employing tested, trustworthy recipes.

In order that you may have such a proven source from which to select a method of preparing various dishes, Prudence Penny has been conducting her prize recipe contest for the past four months. Every day she receives hundreds of housewives' preferred recipes and through the selection of judges awards a $5 prize to the best recipe received and 10 $1 prizes to the next best ones.

The contest is open to all housewives. To take part in it they need only send their best recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. No recipes will be returned.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

SELF PITY :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Girl Chooses Own Course Despite Mother's Plans

You are one of those mammas who is very much chagrined when your managership expires.

You have always considered you had every right to plan everything that was to be planned for your daughter.

Didn't you do the rocking of her when she was little and helpless? Wasn't it you who sat it out and fed her spinach from one of your own grandmother's silver spoons, and when everybody else said it was no use, she wouldn't live through the summer?

Rain or shine you buckled up your gaiters or put on your flowered hat and went with this little girl of yours to school. You were as "thick" with the teachers as they would permit, for you wanted to run your little girl's part of the schoolroom. You selected all her clothes for her. And planned delightful little parties for her at which you had the children you thought nice enough to be her playmates.

And everything went as merry as a wedding bell.

How you did scheme that time your little girl's mind was made up to go to Hollywood. To become a Zasu Pitts . . . A Zasu Pitts, of all people. If she had wanted to be an Ethel Barrymore, that would have been different. You always have admired Ethel. Remember, when you were a girl, how you spent weeks imitating her deep throaty voice in "Alice Sit by the Fire." But nothing ever came of it.

STAYED IN PITTSBURGH

Yes, your daughter remained in Pittsburgh, and never heard the toots from that western bound engine. And she is still working for that round-shouldered, rheumatic lumber man who has been a lifelong friend of your husband. Just the right place for your little girl. No temptations, and within telephone reach whenever you think you need her.

But somehow, lately, things have been different. Your little girl hasn't told you everything she was thinking. Neither has she said out loud, where she was going in the evenings.

Just last night, after dinner, she slipped out, sneaking her hat and coat, and when you sat up and waited for her and she finally did come in, she merely said: "Good night, Mama, dear," and ran upstairs to her own room.

Of course you were certain who had been her escort. It was that son of the wholesale butcher around the corner from where you live. Of all people! The wholesale butcher's son. And you have been glad all along the Prince of Wales was still single. And how sorry you were when young Vanderbilt was killed in that automobile accident. It was as if you had a personal interest in him.

SORRY FOR SELF

And now, the wholesale butcher's son around the corner.

To be sure, wholesale butchering was a good business even in these last four years. People had to buy meat when they could do without many other things. Also these people have a new automobile, and their son is in his last year at the University, and their men belong to clubs your men can't afford.

Yet your little girl has always been so beautiful to you. And why should she waste her sweetness in such a manner. And her not confiding in you, so that you might find a way to change the tide of affairs. The whole thing is enough to give you nervous prostration.

Yet, I wonder if my readers feel as sorry for you as you do for yourself.

Some of them may be wishing on the side of your little girl.

Some may even be allies of the wholesale butcher's son.

Fay King Warns Girls Against "Helpful" Seeker of Intimacy

By FAY KING

The never failing bait that certain men use to angle for an intimate friendship with an ambitious girl is to brag of all they can do to help her.

Their conversation is all aglitter with bright promises of introductions to celebrities. They infer that a word from them can place these girls on the stage or in the movies.

It is easy to believe all that one wants to believe. But it is well to be a little doubtful of these persistent prevaricators.

Too often we hear the lament of a girl who has believed too much, and finds too late that she has become the victim of one of these overpowering promisers.

A little timely suspicion may prevent much regret.

Madge Helps Quieted Girl to Her Room

There was something so contemptuous in Noel's voice as he asked me to take Avis away and lock her up, where she could do no more mischief until morning, that I fully expected the girl to flame out against him or Mary. But she patently was too completely cowed by his fury against her. Although she made no sign that she had heard him, she put out her hands and frantically clutched my arm, when I crossed the room to the wall against which she had backed away from Noel's fury.

"Oh! Take me away quickly! I am terribly ill," she whispered. And though I was a bit skeptical about the severity of her illness, I put a supporting arm around her and hurried her out of the room to the hall outside.

As the door closed behind us, we distinctly heard Noel's voice, no longer savage, but vibrant with impassioned pleading.

"Mary, sweetheart, you must listen to me," he was saying, and I felt a long shudder ripple over the slender figure encircled by my arm.

"Oh, Mrs. Graham, how cruel he is!" Avis moaned, and then she swayed heavily against me.

"I am very sorry for you, child," I said, and meant it, "but I cannot do anything to help you until I get you back to my room. Come now, make an effort to get upstairs. Lean on me as heavily as you like."

"Are you going to lock me up as he told you?" she asked. "I shall die of fright! I know I shall!"

"You won't be left alone," I said evasively. "As for the rest, let us not think about that now. You are not fit to talk. I want to get you where you can lie down as quickly as possible."

I was speaking only the truth. The girl was on the verge of collapse, and, for the first time in my experience with her, I felt that the emotions she was displaying were genuine. I could conceive of nothing more crushing and humiliating than the experience she had just gone through. Every shred of pretense had been stripped from her. She had heard herself branded as a liar and a cheap pretender to culture that she did not possess, and, most humiliating of all, she had heard Noel declare his love for Mary and his contempt for herself in Mary's hearing and mine, just after she had boasted of his caring for her. I simply must get her away from the vicinity of Noel and Mary. I also must get back to them. There had been a distinct note of appeal in Noel's voice when he had asked me to come back, and I guessed that he was panic-stricken for fear Mary's temperament and temper might lead her to some decision which would upset the wedding arrangements, to put it in the mildest fashion possible.

She leaned heavily upon me, as I had urged, and I found that it taxed all my strength to get her to the corridor upon the next floor. Neither of us spoke as we ascended the stairs, but when we had reached the second floor and stopped for breath, she whispered faintly.

"Will—will anybody else—the boys and girls—know about this?"

"Not unless you tell them," I returned promptly, glad that she had limited her query to "the boys and girls." I could not fancy keeping Dicky or Lillian, for instance, ignorant of what had transpired. "I am going to call Mrs. Bickett to attend to you, but I shall simply say that you are feeling ill."

"Oh, thank you!" she said brokenly, and then to my horror she began to sob in long, choking spasms that tore her whole body.

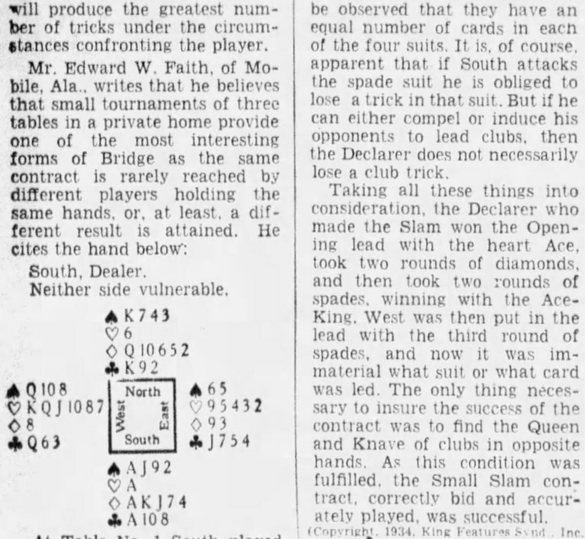
Contract Bridge :- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

There are many more interesting hands dealt at Contract than we appreciate because the manner in which the hand is played or the contract at which it is played is almost certain, in the stress of actual play, to make us fail to appreciate the real features of the hand. One of the great values of Duplicate play, whether the Duplicate games are large or small, is that Duplicate play naturally lends itself to post-mortems, to analysis of the possibilities in the cards, and thus to the discovery of lines of play which will produce the greatest number of tricks under the circumstances confronting the player.

Mr. Edward W. Faith, of Mobile, Ala., writes that he believes that small tournaments of three tables in a private home provide one of the most interesting forms of Bridge as the same contract is rarely reached by different players holding the same hands, or, at least, a different result is attained. He cites the hand below:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



At Table No. 1 South played at five diamonds, which, of course, was easily made, and scored a bonus of 300 for the game and 100 for the five tricks taken, a total of 400.

At Table No. 2, South played a contract of six diamonds, was set one trick, and thus, of course, scored minus 50 points on the board.

At Table No. 3, South played six diamonds, and by an interesting play made the contract scoring a total of 920 points, including the Slam bonus.

A study of the hands discloses that East and West had nothing to do with the variation in the result. Everything depended upon the skill of North and South in the bidding and the skill of South in the play.

At all tables the Opening lead was the heart King. At Tables 1 and 2 South then drew the adverse trumps and finessed the Knave of spades, which lost, and Declarer could not then avoid losing a club. At the table where the Small Slam was made, however, South attacked the problem in a different way. If the hand patterns of North and South are studied, it will be observed that they have an equal number of cards in each of the four suits. It is, of course, apparent that if South attacks the spade suit he is obliged to lose a trick in that suit. But if he can either compel or induce his opponents to lead clubs, then the Declarer does not necessarily lose a club trick.

Taking all these things into consideration, the Declarer who made the Slam won the Opening lead with the heart Ace, took two rounds of diamonds, and then took two rounds of spades, winning with the Ace-King. West was then put in the lead with the third round of spades, and now it was immaterial what suit or what card was led. The only thing necessary to insure the success of the contract was to find the Queen and Knave of clubs in opposite hands. As this condition was fulfilled, the Small Slam contract, correctly bid and accurately played, was successful.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Penalty of Hurried Eating

Recently I told you about the great strides that have been made in the treatment of stomach ulcer and other disturbances of the digestive system. Hardly a day passes that I do not receive inquiries about "indigestion," "heart-burn" and "dyspepsia".

Dr. Copeland

These complaints are universal. But when we consider the manner in which most persons live, it is surprising that the number of sufferers is not even greater.

No one will deny that many of the digestive diseases can be traced to our improper methods of living. Too many men and women unwisely bolt their food and give little time or thought to their meals. There is an old saying that "man digs his grave with his teeth". This is no wonder when we think of the rush and excitement of our modern age.

The digestive process is a complicated one. To have it operate as it should requires care and attention. Neglect or abuse of the delicate mechanism of digestion quickly leads to trouble.

It is probably that few persons are familiar with the action of the digestive juice. How many know that the saliva is necessary to the proper digestion of food? This secretion of the mouth is only of value when it is thoroughly mixed with the food by slowly and carefully chewing it before swallowing.

If the food is not properly chewed and is hurriedly swallowed, an important step is omitted. The saliva is not permitted to act upon the particles of food, to get it ready for action by the stomach. As a result the food reaches the stomach in such a state that unnecessary work is demanded of the digestive juices in the stomach. This overactivity leads to distress and discomfort.

Many cases of dyspepsia and indigestion are quickly cured by slow and careful chewing of food. Heart-burn, so commonly encountered in persons who are careless about their manner of dining, is often overcome by slow and leisurely eating of the food. In addition to the avoidance of hurry, emotional excitement should be shunned by those who suffer from heart-burn and other digestive disturbances.

May I impress upon you that heart-burn is not by any means a sign of heart disease. The name might indicate this. It is the result of overeating, faulty chewing and the improper choice of foods.

Of course, not all cases of indigestion and other digestive complaints are so easily remedied. It is possible the symptoms may be due to an organic disturbance of the digestive tract. Cases of this nature require complete examination in order to determine the real nature of the disease. Special medication may be required in these conditions.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

For Ladies Only

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am going to give a dinner party for ladies only. Does the honor guest sit to the right of the hostess under these circumstances?

2—If dinner is not served until 7:30 or 8 o'clock, should I offer bridge as an entertainment afterward, or is the dinner sufficient?

3—If we should play bridge, is it necessary for me to serve refreshments again after we finish playing?

4—Have I done correctly by writing on the fourth page of my letter-paper, or should I have used the third page?

CONSTANT READER.

1—Yes, this would be the best plan.

2—This depends on how you "see things are going." Some guests enjoy the leisurely chatting after dinner, and some can't be happy unless they see that the hostess is getting out a bridge table. An easy way to solve it is the way most hostesses now solve it . . . by providing the table and cards and inviting those who wish to play bridge or whatever they would like to play. Those who wish to talk together won't be deterred by the bridge players any more than the bridge players will be deterred by the conversation!

3—No, not necessarily. You might offer a drink . . . ginger ale or something stronger . . . during the game or after the game.

4—When there is so little left after the first page, it is better, I think, to write on the middle pages, the sheet turned so that we use the two pages as one page.

Ring for Fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to give a ring to your fiance when you receive an engagement ring?

W.

It is correct for you to give your fiance a ring if he wishes to wear a ring . . . but most men now shy away from wearing a ring, and so I seriously advise you to consult him about his wishes in the matter.

DUKES TO FACE ACID TEST IN GAME WITH WESTMINSTER

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Heydler Sees .400 Hitter, New Ball to Turn Trick, Need Not Ruin Giants.

McGraw Ranks Batteries. Hough Called Floor's Best. Flaws in Fight Plans.

In the opinion of John A. Heydler, president of the National League, one effect of the new and livelier ball to be used in the senior circuit next season through the standardization agreement with the American League, will be to make possible again in the older loop batting averages as high as .400. Heydler is so firmly of that belief that he openly predicts the next champion batsman of the league will be a .400 hitter. He looks for the new sphere, with its increased resiliency, to boost averages in the National to where they were in the season of 1930, the last year in which the parent organization used the rabbit ball.

Bill Terry

The league chief recalls that 1930 marked the last time the National had a .400 hitter. Bill Terry won the batting championship that season with an average of .401, and those figures have not been approached since. Chick Hafey's .349 was tops in 1931, while Lefty O'Doul in 1932 and Chuck Klein in 1933 each took the crown with .368. In expressing the confidence that .400 will be reached this year, Heydler also voices the opinion that the leading hitter in the National will have an average several points higher than the champion batter in the American.

DOUBTS NEW BALL WILL HURT GIANTS

The belief prevailing in some corners that the new ball will ruin the Giants as a championship club is not shared by Heydler. He admits the New York pitchers may not be as effective as formerly, but points out that the livelier pill will increase the team's batting punch, and that Terry and Mel Ott probably will produce a lot more runs for their hurlers than they did last year.

Another step to help hitting this year will be to keep the ball from becoming discolored and darkened as quickly as before. The lettering and the manufacturer's emblem will be smaller. The point was raised that the letters and label of liberal size involved the use of so much ink that the latter spread easily from handling and soon blurred the surface of the ball.

M'GRAW'S IDEA OF GAME'S BEST BATTERIES

Asked to name the best batteries in major league history, John J. McGraw said Christy Mathewson and Roger Bresnahan must be placed in the No. 1 spot, "with no debate possible." After them, the former Giant manager ranked, in the order named, Grove and Cochrane, Johnson and Street, Brown and Kling, McMahon and Robinson, Waddell and Schreckengost, Joss and Bemis, McGinnity and Bresnahan, Marquard and Meyers, Hubbell and Mancuso, Keefe and Ewing, and Rusie and Ewing.

John J. McGraw

In a secondary list, McGraw picked Clarkson and Kelly, Nichols and Bennett, Rucker and Bergen, Breitenstein and Peitz, Young and Criger, Walsh and Sullivan, Bender and Powers, Plank and Lapp, Young and Zimmer, Carruthers and Bushong, and Corbett and Robinson. Narrowing down to pitchers, the veteran said his first six would be Mathewson, Grove, Johnson, Waddell, Marquard and Hubbell; the second six, McGinnity, McMahon, Rucker, Brown, Joss and Walsh, and the third six, Rusie, Bender, Plank, Nehf, Corbett and Young. Possibly, McGraw figured that they didn't deserve a rating, but it looks from this distance as though his memory slipped when he failed to include among the 22 best batteries a couple of fair-to-middling gents named Alexander and Killefer, or Dineen and Criger, Ruth and Carrigan, Mays and Schang, or Killen and Mack, and didn't find a place for Alexander, Herb Pennock or Dazzy Vance among the 18 most capable pitchers. Not to mention Deacon Phillippe, Jack Chesbro, Jesse Tannehill, Frank Killen, Wilbur Cooper, Babe Adams, Remy Kremer, Ed Reulbach, Wes Ferrell, George Earnshaw, Bill Dineen, Lefty Leifield, and a few more who were not exactly helpless on the hill.

FREUND RATES HOUGH BASKETBALL'S BEST

Johnny Freund goes to bat again in that discussion of the greatest player basketball has known, the debate as to whether the No. 1 place should be awarded to Nat Holman, Johnny Beckman, Ed Wachter, Barney Sedran, Charley Hyatt or somebody else among the stars that have been mentioned. Freund casts his vote for Harry Hough, the old Tamaqua and South Side wizard.

"I think Hough was the king of them all," Johnny writes, "and for the last 18 years or so Johnny Beckman has been second in line. An old-timer of 30 years' experience as player and observer in the fastest of company told me the other day he never had seen another player handle the ball as Hough handled it, a player who could put the ball from three to five feet in front of him on a dribble and still control it.

"The late Joe Fogarty once named Hough, Chief Muller, Marty Friedman, Johnny Beckman, Roy Steele, Bill Keenan and Dave Kerr as the best he had seen. It would be hard to pick a better all-time outfit.

"Charley Hyatt is about the best ball hawk I have ever seen. That's what made him a standout. He plays the ball all the time. His opponent never worries him. Charley makes his opponent do all the worrying. I surely would like to see Hyatt step into the title of the nation's greatest player. Charley is above Holman in many respects, and will thrill the fans to a far greater extent than Holman ever did. Present-day players around here who strike me as being somewhat of the Hyatt type in some respects are Ginsberg, of Geneva; Reiter, of Duquesne, and Sweeney, of Westminster, not forgetting Birch, of Duquesne, who looks certain to become one of the greatest stars of his time."

WRINKLES IN PLAN FOR MATCH OF MAXES

Maybe that report of a prospective fight between Max Baer and Max Schmeling on the Pacific Coast is on the level as far as it goes, or maybe it is only a bit of by-play to invite a new deal from Madison Square Garden promoters in New York and at the same time advertise Schmeling's bout with Steve Hamas in Philadelphia on February 13. At any rate, the early announcements are rather unconvincing in at least three details aside from the admitted fact that Baer has not yet been signed.

Max Schmeling

Firstly, it is given out that the bout will be held in the Los Angeles Coliseum; the Coliseum has an iron-clad regulation which bars any and all professional sports from that arena. Secondly, the show is to be under the auspices of the Los Angeles Milk Fund; there isn't any such fund. Thirdly, the fight is to be for 12 rounds to a decision; under California boxing laws the limit for bouts in which decisions can be given is 10 rounds, and while 12-round fights are permitted, they must be of the no-decision variety. Perhaps Lou Daro, the Coast promoter, and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, have a plan whereby those wrinkles can be ironed out, but if so they have not yet let the public in on it.

SMITH HOPES FOR KNOCKOUT TRIUMPH

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Jimmy Smith, of Philadelphia, the flying fighter, who came to Pittsburgh by airplane on Saturday for his 15-round bout with Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, the champion, for the State middleweight title at Motor Square Garden, Friday night, is confident he will be returned the winner.

He said this today as he prepared for his second workout in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gymnasium, where he also worked out yesterday with Max Elling and Danny Hassett, his stablemate, who boxes Anson Green, Negro middleweight, of Homestead, in one of the six-round supporting bouts.

Why does he think he will win? He says:

"I will force the fight all of the way, just as I did against Young Terry here recently. I think I hit too hard for Yarosz, and the distance is ideally suited to my plan of battle. In a 10-round bout I would not be so certain of victory, for I realize Yarosz is very speedy. However, I think I will keep him backing up and by the time the bout is two-thirds over will have him slowed down to a walk. Then my rights to the head and body should do the trick. I will not be surprised if I win by a knockout after the tenth round. That will be my plan of battle, at any rate."

MUST BE AT WEIGHT

Meanwhile Yarosz is finishing his training with a corps of sparmates in Turner Hall, Monaca. He will stage a final long drill tomorrow and taper off on Wednesday and confine himself to a brisk walk and a rubdown the day before the fight. He will not come into Pittsburgh until just before weighing-in time at 3 p. m. Friday. The weighing will be done at the Garden and will be open to the public. Both boxers must scale in at or under 160 pounds, the class limit. In all except title matches principals are permitted upwards of a pound overweight.

Promoter Jules Beck today warned fans who have made reservations that they must pick them up before the box office opens at the Garden on the night of the fight. Any tickets not claimed at that time will be placed on sale. This is necessary to avoid a last-minute jam at the box office.

SMITH'S RECORD GOOD

A review of Smith's record reveals the fact that he has engaged in approximately the same number of professional bouts as Yarosz. He has won 65, lost six and drawn five and gained revenge against four of the six men who have beaten him. He has beaten Lou Brouillard, former middleweight champion; fought to a split decision defeat against Johnny Indrisano in the latter's home town, Boston; broken even with Young Terry in two bouts, beaten Johnny Hayes three times, won over Marty Williams, Andy DiVodi and Cowboy Jack Willis, and lost to Vince Dundee, the present world champion, who was beaten twice by Yarosz just before he won the title.

Dominic Mancini, North Side welterweight, has come up with a couple of fractured ribs and is off Friday night's card. He was to meet Marty Gornick in the six-round semi-final. As a result of the accident, the Hassett-Green bout will be moved up to the semi-final spot and a new opponent signed for Gornick. The three four-round preliminaries remain intact.

There is a lurking suspicion that Charles Robinson Davies, the local pastry cook of college basketball and more particularly, head coach at Duquesne, would give a couple more of the remaining few hairs on his head if this present week already might be counted among the souvenirs of the ages.

Charles Robinson and his Dukes, with their fine 24-game victory string, have a little date to keep in Sharon, Pa., Saturday night, a date of grave importance, especially as far as the bright and shining victory streak is concerned. Keeping the tryst with the Dukes will be Westminster's band of tall Titan passers and just as many fans as can be squeezed into the Sharon High School gymnasium.

RIVALRY KEEN

For years and years, and even before that, Duquesne and Westminster have been great basketball rivals. In recent campaigns, the two varsities annually have been right up there, either at or very close to the top. A year ago, when the Dukes were looking forward to an unbeaten season, the tall Titans came to Pittsburgh and knocked the home prides for a row. They came very close to doing the same thing here this season.

And what is more, they are being pointed for this coming game like they've never been pointed in the past.

The Dukes had a rough time of it against Thiel at Greenville Saturday night and were far from impressive in their actions against the Lutherans. The str[illegible] of winning 24 in a row is taking its toll, there is no doubt of that.

Critics who have been watching Pitt's Panthers throughout the season marvelled at the great improvement shown by the Blue and Gold passers as they manhandled West Virginia here Sat'day night.

West Virginia was not having what one would term an "on" night, but even so, they were no match for the Panthers. It begins to look as if the Notre Dame game made the Pitt team. It also begins to look as if this feller, Claire Cribbs, is about as sweet a center as has performed in des hyar parts for some time, and as good, if not the best, in Pitt's history.

HUGHES HIGH SCORER

Skippy Hughes did himself a lot of good as he went out and gathered himself a harvest of seven field goals to boost his season's scoring record to 78 points in 11 games. Irv Brenner, of the Dukes, is a point behind with 77 in nine contests, but Hughes' opposition has been a sight more formidable than that experienced by Brenner.

In the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference, the Panthers are away out in the lead with four victories and no defeats. Ed Hargedan, of Georgetown, still is showing the way among the individual scorers, with 37 points. Hughes and Ochsenhirt, the Pitt stars, are second and third, respectively, with 35 and 34 points.

Carnegie Tech, handicapped by the illness of two stars, Capt. Red Silverman and Paul Gibson, did right well in splitting even last week. Wash-Jeff was beaten on Tuesday with consummate ease but on Friday night, Geneva's Covenanters had things pretty much their own way.

Tech is starting a 20-day vacation and will not see action again

Taking heart from the victory of the Webers over the league-leading Morgans Saturday night, the Red Ravens, of the City Amateur Hockey League, will take to the ice at Duquesne Garden tonight against the Pirates determined to break into the victory column.

To date, the Ravens have dropped three games, all they've played. They've scored only four goals in the three tussels and have had 10 tallies against them. The Morgans had won three in a row and apparently were bent on making a runaway race of it when they ran afoul of the embattled Webers Saturday, and the Ravens figure they may as well get into the dope upsetting business as well.

Capt. Livingston has shifted his lineup and will present what he hopes will be a more formidable setup in tonight's game.

CROOKED RACE COUP FAILS

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 29. — (AP.) — Because they failed to cut telephone wires leading out of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club offices, wire tappers were foiled in a plot to mulct United States bookmakers out of thousands of dollars on Saturday, according to track authorities here.

The tappers had put out of commission press and service lines at the track, had set up a sending set and "cut in" somewhere between San Diego and Los Angeles. A plot was under way to fleece bookmakers throughout the country on the fourth race, but plans failed when operators of the service wire contacted their San Diego office by telephone.

COMBINE UNCOVERED

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—(Universal.)—Ugly stories of a "jockey combine," in which once prominent riders tried to make a killing before they passed out of the picture, followed today in the wake of the action of local racing authorities in informing seven riders and some unnamed [illegible]ners and trainers that they were not to apply for licenses here.

The newest reports said that the "jockey ring" in question had managed to buy some horses, which were raced in the name of "dummy" owners and ridden by members of the combine. The result, it is said, brought about several "boat races" on New York tracks, one of these being notable for the fact that it went wrong.

Important Changes Planned by Greenskeepers in Convention Here

NATIONAL BODY OPENS CONFAB TOMORROW

By TOM BIRKS

Plenty of work is ahead for the delegates to the eighth annual convention of the National Association of Greenskeepers which gets under way tomorrow at the William Penn Hotel and winds up Friday night.

The rules committee of the organization has planned many changes, and many resolutions designed to help the work of the greenskeepers will be drafted and adopted. There will be an elaborate layout of equipment by leading manufacturers and seed, fertilizer and other golf course needs on display in the lower lobby of the hotel.

John Quaill, greenskeeper at the Highland Country Club, is the general chairman of the convention.

Jimmy McElroy, chairman of the entertainment committee, has made detailed plans for entertainment of the visiting delegates and their wives. Sightseeing trips and parties will take up the time of the fair sex, while the menfolk are getting at the business at hand.

Gaston Depew, chairman of the greens section of the United States Golf Association, and also chairman of the public links committee, will be the honor guest at the banquet scheduled for Thursday night.

Owing to money being scarce with the governing body, the experimental stations for greens at Mill Road Farm, Chicago, and at Arlington, Va., are scheduled to be abandoned. The greenskeepers do not feel kindly toward this move and may draft a resolution asking the U. S. G. A. to reconsider its action.

Charles Yon, of Montour Heights Country Club, will be the toastmaster at the annual banquet, at which Judge Gibson, of the Oakmont Country Club, and Charley Manning, professional at the Shannopin Country Club, also will speak.

PARKS SHARES THIRD PLACE

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A Glendale (Cal.) schoolmaster, Jack Gaines, swung a set of educated golf clubs yesterday to set his pro partner, Tom Stevens, of Glendale, up to the Riverside $2,000 open championship and $200 first prize money. Their best ball card was 34-30—64.

Tied for second place were Chet Beers and John De Paolo, of Los Angeles, and Bryon Nelson, Texarkana, Ark., and his amateur mate, Arthur G. Satoh, San Francisco Japanese, both with 65. The pros won $125 each.

Third place was shared by seven teams with scores of 66, and the pros earned $46.42 each. They were: Bill Jelliffe and E. D. Moss, Los Angeles; Paul Runyan, Deal, N. J., and Tom Talfer; Horton Smith and Johnny Dawson, Chicago; Tom Greavy, Albany, N. Y., and Phil Finlay; Dick Metz, Deal, N. J., and Jack Dunphy; Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, and Fred Braddock; MacDonald Smith, Nashville, Tenn., and Jack Mackey.

Casey May Sign Alec Fox as Aide

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Reports around the University of Pennsylvania campus said Alec Fox, line coach of the Penn football squad, may be at Harvard next year.

One report said Fox would meet Eddie Casey, Harvard head coach, in New York today.

Fox, captain of Pittsburgh's eleven several years ago, has been on the Quaker coaching staff for three seasons.

Oakmont Gridders Tie With Union

The Union eleven, of McKeesport, battled the Oakmont gridders to a scoreless tie in a Lightweight Conference tilt at McKeesport yesterday in an effort to decide the Conference championship.

Names in News

CHANDLER HARPER, of Portsmouth, Va., yesterday added a 70 to his first round of 73 to win the Florida East Coast golf championship at St. Augustine, Fla., with a 36-hole total of 143.

STRANK MIKKELSEN, of Greenfield, Mass., yesterday won the Winsted Ski Club's professional ski jumping contest at Winsted, Conn.

The GERMAN - AMERICAN soccer team, of Philadelphia, and the IRISH-AMERICANS, of Newark, N. J., battled to a 1-1 tie at Philadelphia yesterday.

ED BATTEN, of New York, compiled an eight-game total of 1,842 to win the first place cash prize of $500 in the bowling sweepstakes which ended at Philadelphia last night.

The benefit hockey game for ACE BAILEY, between the Toronto Maple Leafs and an all-star National League team, will be played at Toronto February 14. EFE SHORE, who collided with BAILEY, was given an ovation as he returned to the Boston Bruins' lineup at New York last night.

VAL PICINICH, former catcher of the PITTSBURGH PIRATES, is reported in line for a coaching job with the CINCINNATI REDS.

EARLE (GREASY) NEALE, head coach at WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY, is still undecided over the offer he received from ART ROONEY, president of the PITTSBURGH PIRATES, to coach the local professional team. He will give his answer Wednesday.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Though he lost on a foul to the late young Stribling in their return bout at Paris, 15 days after winning from the American on a low punch at London, both thrillers were such crowd-pleasers that Primo lost no prestige in technical defeat. Carnera was the talk of European sports circles. His fame had crossed the Atlantic. He is now on the eve of his first social triumph—a midnight meeting with the Prince of Wales after "Preem" had given Franz Diener a K. O. thrashing in London. . . .

CHAPTER XII.
MEETS PRINCE CHARMING

By LEON SEE
Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion.

My great Idea was meeting with a success that exceeded my fondest expectations. That Idea and Carnera himself had progressed thus far late in 1929. Let the reader note these facts: The Italian giant already had become the most talked-of boxer in the world without ever having received a truly serious blow, the crippling Diener foul alone excepted. Freedom from heavy punishment and steady training permitted Primo to improve amazingly in ring technique, though he was still a comparative novice. With the exceptions of that Leipzig outrage when Carnera was fouled, disqualified and declared defeated in a weirdly unjust affair and his loss on a foul to Stribling (that proved "a moral victory" for him in fan opinion), Primo had won an imposing number of bouts in showy fashion and he was decidedly a reigning favorite in both Paris and London And the financial returns were rich indeed.

Prince of Wales

For example, while an ordinary good heavyweight got between 1,000 and 2,000 francs per fight, Carnera—in less than 15 days—had received almost half a million!

DIENER RETURN BOUT

After these two sensational Stribling encounters, of which the echoes resounded in the whole world, particularly in America—after having faced one of the four best heavyweights then in the ring—it was impossible to find in Europe a worthy opponent for the Italian giant.

Only a return bout with Diener could be considered because, in spite of all, the German could boast of a victory over Carnera and Primo was determined to efface decisively the technical defeat, unjust as it was, that marred his record.

But our first contact with the German Boxing Federation had been enough. We had no desire to box in Germany again.

Consequently, it was very easy for us to have Promoter Jeff Dickson make arrangements for a Diener bout in London, where Carnera had broken all records in gate receipts. It was more difficult to persuade Franz, but the offer of a purse much larger than the one he received in Leipzig ended his objections and the match was made. It was to take place some time in December, 1929, at Albert Hall, London.

TORTURES GERMAN

This time Carnera could get his vengeance: he literally tortured the unhappy Diener, sending him to the floor 10 times without seeking to finish him. In the sixth round the referee stopped the fight. Diener had taken a terrible beating. For once, Primo was "sore" at an opponent.

As a matter of course the magnificent London arena was packed the night Carnera more than "got even" with Diener. British aristocracy could be seen at the ringside and the Prince of Wales with a party of friends was close indeed to the resined square.

After the victory, back in our corner, I was helping Primo take off his gloves, tearing away his bandages wet with perspiration.

"I'm hungry," he said to me.

I felt somebody pulling discreetly at the lower part of my trousers. I passed my head through the ropes and a gentleman signaled me to bend lower. Well dressed, with Ascot tie, monocle, cigar, he appeared to be an aristocrat, a nobleman; a diplomat perhaps.

"Are you Carnera's manager?"

"Yes."

"His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, sends me to tell you that he will be pleased to have you for supper tonight, at midnight, you and your pupil. It will be informal—at my house—here is the address. There will be but a few others present."

The card bore a coat-of-arms. It read: Lord B—"

Primo was besieged by reporters In the dressing room the flashlights flared. There was the future champion after his shower, with his hair combed; his face without a scratch. I took him to a corner of the room.

"Let's go to eat," he said to me.

I whispered to him:

"Did you see the well-dressed gentleman who spoke to me in our corner after the decision?"

"With a pane of glass in his eye?" grinned Primo.

"Yes. Well, he is an English lord. He had a message from—Well, old man, guess who has invited us for supper?"

"I don't know."

"The Prince of Wales! What do you think of that?"

"It's all right, but let's go. I am hungry!"

DEMOCRATIC MEETING

Our taxicab stopped in front of a door through which we could see a brilliantly lighted hall. Luxurious automobiles with liveried chauffeurs were lined along the curb. A lackey opened the portiere. He had been warned. He looked at Primo with curiosity. The impassivity of the servant's dignified face was a mask which must have covered his inward curiosity. The other lackeys—how many were they!—took possession of our overcoats, hats and gloves. A large carpeted staircase, an enormous dining room, a great table very white, very luxurious, ornamented with flowers and crystal; at the right and at the left at each place a disquieting number of forks, of silver knives. A score of guests, standing up, waited for us. Nothing but uniforms, stunning gowns and sparkling attire. We were the last to arrive.

The Prince of Wales came toward us—a young man of medium height, slender, affable and without any haughtiness. He was a sportsman who welcomes other sportsmen. He did not say to us, like Louis XIV: "I nearly waited." . . . He spoke French and Italian to perfection.

A rapid presentation, a shaking of hands with lords and dukes . . . some of whom perhaps had been amateur boxers at Oxford or Cambridge . . . Little aristocratic hands covered with rings disappeared up to the bracelets in the enormous paw of Carnera . . . An evident and charming desire to put us at ease. My memories of that meeting with the Prince are so clear, I must describe it in the present tense:

Carnera is at the table at the left of the Prince, in the place of honor, because His Highness naturally has at his right the most important of his guests, the Marchioness of C——.

At the left of Carnera, Lady Eleanor S——, then Lord L——, the Duchess of S——, then Prince G——, etc. I am on the opposite side, between two ladies who discuss boxing!

Liveried servants in lace, with buckled breeches, patent leather shoes and white gloves are in attendance.

CARNERA AT EASE

I observe Primo whose bearing is irreproachable. His enormous hands, well manicured, manage knives and forks with the tips of his fingers; he eats without haste, without devouring too much bread although he is horribly hungry. He discusses incidents of his fight talking with his royal neighbor and, from time to time, his eyes turn towards me and seem to say:

"Is this all right? I have not made any blunders? How hungry I am!"

The repast is ended. Coffee is served in doll-like Japanese cups. Primo handles his with considerable care.

A little to one side in one of the corners I observe the interesting and paradoxical spectacle—Primo goes from group to group smiling, very much at ease, answering all questions. The men admire his enormous breadth of shoulders; the ladies of the aristocracy are interested in his life, in his mentality, in his naivete, his boyish manners.

The Prince approaches us and remarks:

"I do not know if I should congratulate you most on the astonishing results you have obtained from your young pupil in the ring or on his good manners. He is perfect really. But it is late," he added. "Carnera must be tired and I do not wish to detain him or you too long. By the way, have you a car?"

"No, Your Highness, but we are going to take a taxi."

"Not at all, I will have you taken home by my chauffeur."

Five minutes later, Primo and I lolled in the depths of a luxurious limousine which was saluted en route by respectful policemen. A pompous and impassive footman, having closed the door, sat beside the chauffeur, identically liveried.

"Well, Primo, is this all right?"

He answered:

"It is."

"You see that life is sweet?"

APPRAISAL OF PRINCE

"What a difference after Arcachon, do you remember?" the giant murmured.

"You bet. And what do you think of the Prince of Wales?"

"What do you mean?" What do I think of him?"

"Yes, how do you find him? What impression did he make on you?"

Primo turned toward me gently and replied with great simplicity:

"What impression? Why, you are joking!" . . . He is just the size of a welterweight!"

Carnera Learns English From The Talkies

When I first met Carnera in 1928 he had been laboring about France for eight years. He spoke French fluently enough for a person who was unschooled. I devoted hours to his mental instruction, especially in reading, at which he showed much progress. I also gave him his first lessons in English and his passion for talking pictures does much to help him with that language. Primo used to go to the movies twice a day and listen just as much as he looked. I often accompanied him, explaining words and phrases that he did not understand. His grasp of them was remarkable. There is nothing imbecilic to Primo's brain. All it required was inspiration and development . . . And that makes the difference between the timid and clumsy young vagabond of 1928 and the graceful, stalwart, well-mannered and intelligent athlete that Carnera really is today.

REED RETAINS P. G. C. SQUASH CROWN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

McCook Reed, Keystone A. C. star and city champion, captured top honors in the second annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation singles squash racquets tournament yesterday by downing Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. star, 17-16, 15-8, 15-11, in speedy final before a turnaway throng that jammed the P. G. C. gallery space to the rafters. It was a repeat win for Reed, the rangy Keystoner having defeated Dave Gilmore, talented Allegheny Country Club southpaw, in the 1933 wind-up.

The contest was one of Reed's fine close shooting and airtight defense against O'Loughlin's severe long game and slashing volleys.

In a match at the Allegheny Country Club yesterday, postponed from Saturday a week ago, the home team defeated the Pittsburgh Golf Club, four matches to one. The summary:

D. M. Gilmore, Allegheny, defeated J. K. Ebbert, Golf Club, 15-6, 15-12, 10-15, 12-15, 15-8.

Joseph Oliver, Golf Club, defeated Frank S. White, Allegheny, 15-12, 13-16, 15-10, 15-10.

W. C. Robinson, Jr., Allegheny, defeated George Lockhart, Golf Club, 8-15, 15-10, 15-10, 15-7.

L. W. Young, Allegheny, defeated McCook Miller, 15-10, 15-12, 8-15, 10-15, 15-12.

J. S. Laughlin, Allegheny, defeated Henry Chalfant, Jr., 15-12, 7-15, 8-15, 15-8, 15-13.

LOCAL LACROSSE TEAM BOWS

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets of the North American Lacrosse Association came to grief in a league match here yesterday as they tied into the newly organized Chicago team. Playing in the bitter cold of the Dexter Park pavilion, the home team defeated the league-leading Pittsburghers, 11 to 7.

Jennings, Pittsburgh reserve player, suffered a deep cut on his head when struck by Dodds, Chicago spare, in the third period.

Osler, DeGray and Davidson led in the scoring for Chicago, DeGray getting three goals and the other two apiece. For Pittsburgh, McLean, Vincent and LaFrance each scored twice. The lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Chicago.
Cordick	C	Stokes
P. Langevin	D	Wallace
N. Langevin	D	Osler
McLean	C	Clark
L. Heureux	F	De Gray
Boulinne	F	Campbell

Goals—Pittsburgh: McLean 2, Jennings, Vincent 2, La France 2. Chicago: Wallace, Osler 2, De Gray 3, Davidson 2, Bradley, Akinson.

Spares—Pittsburgh: Jennings, Vincent, La France, Silk. Chicago: Davidson, Bradley, Dodds, O'Ryan, Akinson.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Something must have happened to the mob of January golfers that swarmed the Schenley links one week ago yesterday. None of the boys reported yesterday, and there was no indication of a jam at No. 1 tee this morning . . . Lloyd Waner reckons he has had enough samples of a Pitttsburgh winter . . . Lloyd bought a new car Saturday and if nothing interferes he will take his family toward the Oklahoma farm about the middle of the week . . . His new hack does not have knee action, hot and cold water, folding doors and all the other gadgets, but Lloyd has strung a cute little hammock over the rear seat which has been assigned to Lloyd, Junior, who will be making his first Western trip.

Brother Paul and his family are down where the gulf stream kisses the tropical breezes . . . The rightfielder has made his winter home in Miami for the past three years . . . Blondy Ryan upon signing his new contract said he was in good physical condition, outside of being a little heavy around the jaws . . . Blondy intimates he has been popping off a lot on the banquet circuit . . . One year ago a lot of brows were arched when the Giants announced they had signed young Ryan as an understudy for the ailing Travis Jackson . . . "A fine boy, but he just won't do," was the attitude of the critics.

Back in 1912, a little kid weighing about 135 pounds, reported to Manager George Stallings, of the Boston Braves . . . Stallings probably figured a Japanese juggler had joined his squad and most of the wise ones of the day thought the lad would get his cup of coffee and cakes as his big league position and then drop back into the sticks . . . The little rascal signed another contract the other day, and he'll probably beat the Pirates with a couple of those squeeze plays before the year is over . . . The reference is to the Rabbit.

Luke Barnett, Frank Harris and Rosey Rowswell have returned from a trip to Columbus and other main-line points . . . Posing as Pete Simco, Luke almost caused a panic in a Columbus hostelry of 1,000 rooms . . . At 2 a. m. Simco approached the clerk and asked for the key to the room of Joe Curraco, of Braddock . . . Said Pete:

"Joe, he catch 'em room with double bed. I sleep with him."

The clerk could find no Joe Curraco registered, but was informed by Pete that Joe always "register under diffrunt name." By this time the manager and assistants were trying to straighten out the tangle, which was getting worse each minute. Eventually Pete had this good idea:

"We take all keys and go round hotel. We rap at every door an' I holler, 'Hello, Joe!' He know my voice ev'ry time, so he holler, 'Hello, Pete!'"

Two clerks passed out, and so did the Senator and Rosey.

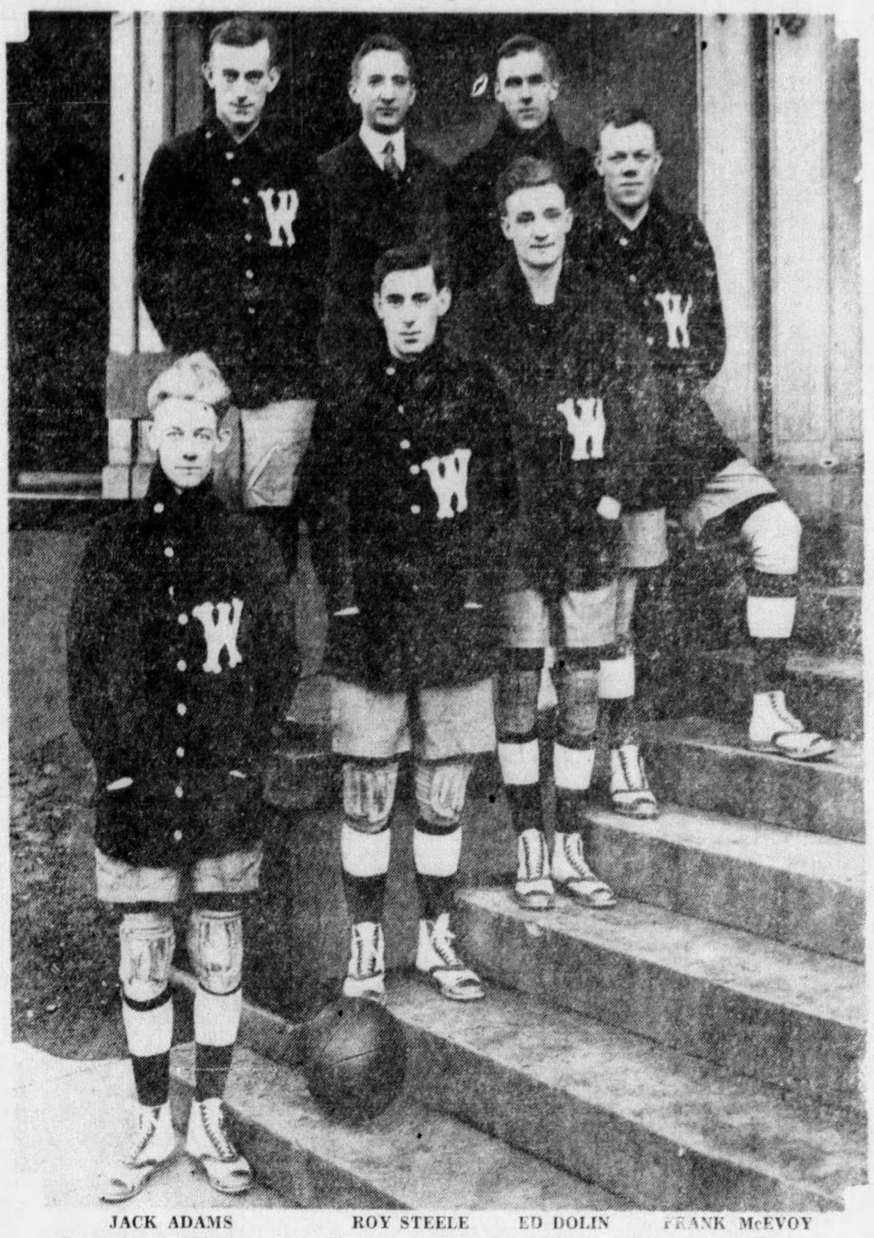
ROSS STEELE JIM LITTLE, Mgr. JIM CAMPBELL



JACK ADAMS ROY STEELE ED DOLIN FRANK McEVOY

Westinghouse Airbrake basketball team, of Wilmerding, which made history in 1917-18-19. It won 23 games and lost only two against the best in 1919, one of its victories being by the score of 118-29. The only teams to win from the stars were the Nanticoke and Pitcairn fives.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A series of meetings of the local boxing officials has been called for Wednesday afternoon in the office of the State Athletic Commission in the Koppers Building at the instance of Commissioner Dr. W. D. McClelland . . . He will meet with the referees and timers at 2 o'clock, the judges at 3 and the physicians and deputies at 4 . . . The idea is to interpret the rules and regulations on a common basis and to co-ordinate the work of the judges and referees . . . The meetings will take on the aspect of a clinic, similar to the football and basketball clinics which have become so popular hereabouts.

Dr. McClelland has prepared a tract of approved rulings and instructions to the officials for their study and application covering almost every possible situation which may arise during a bout or a boxing show and he will distribute these among his officials . . . It is his aim to have all referees work along the same lines and to have the referees and judges score the bouts from a single standpoint of crediting points . . . Coming just before the big Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith show at Motor Square Garden, Friday night, the meetings may take on added significance, for it is of the utmost importance that the best possible set of officials be named for this show . . . The main bout is a 15-rounder, with Yarosz' state middleweight title at stake, and the winner is almost certain to go on to a championship match with Vince Dundee, the world champion, either here or in Philadelphia during the outdoor season.

This is an eventful week in boxing, with Ted Yarosz defending his state middleweight title in Pittsburgh's first legalized 15-round bout, Friday; Maxie Rosenbloom meeting Joe Knight with his world light-heavyweight title at stake in a 15-rounder at Miami, Fla., on Thursday; Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, boxing Frankie Covelli in a non-title bout in New York, Wednesday, and three former world champions in action—Battling Battalino against Joe Barra, in New York, Wednesday; Mickey Walker against Bob Godwin, in West Palm Beach, Fla., tonight, and Tony Canzoneri against Cleto Locatelli, in Madison Square Garden, New York, on Friday.

Little Bill Miller, coach of Charley Hyatt's Tulsa Oilers, National A. A. U. basketball champions, who meet the McKeesport Willigs in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion, Thursday night, began his career in Schenectady, N. Y. . . . The Oilers are on a 10-day trip and the game here will be the ninth of the jaunt. . . . They play in Milwaukee two nights before showing here . . . The game will be offered the fans at smaller prices than are charged for the leading college games.

Joe Knight goes into his bout with Maxie Rosenbloom this week well prepared in the matter of experience . . . He is 24 years old and has scored 85 knockouts in 124 bouts and holds a 10-round no-decision victory over Rosey . . . His knockout victims include Bob Godwin, Bob Olin, George Courtney and Don Petrin, and he has won decisions over Reds Barry, Georgie Nichols, Charley Belanger, Pietro Corri, Willie Oster, Battling Bozo, Tony Cancella, Cowboy Owen Phelps, Natie Brown, Lou Scozza and Joe Banovic . . . His best punch is a left hook to the body.—HARRY KECK.

Marty Brannigan, Former Boxer, Dead

Funeral services will be held from St. Andrew's Church, North Side, Wednesday morning for Marty Brannigan, brother of Patsy Brannigan, former famous local boxer, who died early yesterday morning in St. John's Hospital, where he was taken the day before. He had been ailing for some time.

Marty, who was 52 years old, began boxing before Patsy at the turn of the century, and when his "kid brother" entered the sport gave it up, saying "one fighter in a family is enough." He remained an ardent camp follower of Patsy, however.

In addition to Patsy, four sisters survive. Another brother and another sister are dead. The family residence is at 2414 California avenue, North Side.

Amateur Bouts Carded Tonight

Two amateur boxing shows are scheduled in Western Pennsylvania tonight. One is the second of a series of such offerings by Islam Grotto in its quarters on the North Side and the other a meeting between boxers of McDonald American Legion Post and the East Liverpool (O.) A. C., in the McDonald High School gymnasium.

The Grotto card follows:

Matt Oznik vs. Joe Sulk, Jackie Burke vs. Gene Gibbons, Patsy Contilleo vs. Harry Krause, Frankie Richard vs. Johnny Tirpak, Jackie Walls vs. Pete Sully, Frank McLaughlin vs. Steve Walters, Jimmy Wolfe vs. Palooka Mucher and Dan Pellam vs. Harold Kendrick.

U. S. Stars Annex Four Skate Titles

OCONOMOWOC, Wis., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Four citizens of the United States today hold the speed skating championships of North America Skating into the teeth of a bitter Northwest gale which swept over Fowler Lake yesterday, they completely outclassed a crack Canadian field of contestants.

Eddie Schroeder, of Chicago, world's distance champion, took the senior men's North American title without extending himself.

Kit Klein, vivacious Buffalo stenographer, won the women's championship by skating like fury to defeat Dorothy Franey, of St. Paul, national champion, by 10 points.

Leo Freisinger, of Chicago, who wasn't obliged to try hard to make a clean sweep of all five events in his division, won the intermediate title. Young Richard Beard, of Minneapolis, finished the day with the junior championship in his possession.

Sport Shorts

Harry Insinger, Philadelphia, suffered brain concussion and other injuries in an automobile race on the Ascot (Cal.) Speedway yesterday. Al Gordon won the 82½-mile event.

Babe Ruth will be confined in his home in New York for a week because of a cold.

The Wilkes-Barre club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, has obtained Dick Goldberg, Pittsburgh first baseman, from the Galveston (Tex.) club, under option.

Jimmy Burke has notified Manager Joe McCarthy, of the New York Yankees, with whom he has been associated 20 years, that he will be forced by illness to remain out of baseball this year.

Hack Wilson and Al Lopez are seen as Brooklyn Dodgers' holdouts.

The daily double at Agua Caliente yesterday paid off at $881.60 to $2 Friar's Choice and Nacho.

Yale will defer naming its football coaching staff until the latter part of this week.

Harry Wills, former Negro heavyweight boxer, announced today he will forego the annual two weeks' fast in which he has indulged for 28 years.

Showing a superior attack and a steady defense, the Harmarville Soccer Club cinched the Allegheny Valley League title yesterday afternoon by handing an artistic lacing to the Newfield eleven, 6 to 1, at Harmarville. A good-sized crowd braved the elements to watch the struggle.

Harmarville has created quite a record this season, winning 13 games in a row in its march to the top rung of the league ladder. This is a record for this section in league soccer competition.

Putting the visiting club strictly on the defensive, the Harmarville attack started getting goals early in the game, J. Tarassi scoring twice. Mamestha, the center forward, and P. Tarassi also added goals.

VICKERS TALLIES

In the second half the home club manipulated the ball very well in the sea of mud. The only goal credited Newfield came from Vickers, the center. H. Murray tallied the remaining goal for Harmarville.

Considering the weather and the condition of the field, it was a fine game. Harmarville fully deserves the league title, being easily the class of the circuit.

In the same league, Curtisville defeated the Tuscans, 2-0. The Tarentum-Garfield game was abandoned owing to the weather.

The weather practically wrecked the entire schedule of the Mon-Yough League. The only game played was the Fitz Henry-Speedway game, Fitz Henry winning, 7-0.

Suterville forfeited to Gallatin Juniors, as did Monessen to the Rainbows, and Van Voorhis did not play at Dunlevy.

AVELLA WINS

One game was played in the Panhandle League, Avella defeating Houston by a 3-1 score at Avella. The exhibition game between the Valley Athletics and Arsenal found the latter club winning, 3-1.

In the Keystone League, the referee called off the Morgan-Riehls game at Greenlee Field, the Curry-Gallatin game was abandoned after 65 minutes of play with the score tied at 1-1, and Moon Run defeated Cecil, 1-0. The lineups:

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

CLEARING OF AIR BRINGS BETTER SENTIMENT

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The first month of the new year has been characterized by no significant change in ecomomic trend.

The major accomplishment has been the clarification of the political program affecting business. In his budget message, President Roosevelt sounded a prudent note concerning tapering off extraordinary expenditures presumably after they had accomplished their objectives.

Mr. Rukeyser

Likewise, in his subsequent monetary message the Chief Executive narrowed the field of uncertainty concerning the future of the dollar, suggesting that de facto, if not de jure, stabilization was at hand.

Such clarification of the atmosphere, plus the greater certainty of bankers now that temporary deposit insurance is under way, helped to improve financial sentiment. The sensitive speculative markets registered the opinion of the collective financial mind that recovery, accompanied by monetary adjustments, constituted a bullish influence.

Insiders in the street have taken comfort from the hunch that the counsel of moderation had prevailed in the Department of Commerce survey concerning the need for regulating the stock exchange.

HEAVY TRADES SPURRED

Since the heavy industries were the chief victims of the depression, there has been real encouragement in the performance of the construction and automobile trades. The latter, of course, has responded to spontaneous influences, whereas the former has been synthetically stimulated by the acceleration of public works projects.

Apart from public building, however, there has been a pickup in private non-residential construction. This has been stimulated by industries growing out of repeal, and also by efforts to reduce costs through modernization. The distribution of automobiles has thus far been more affected by limitations in production than by demand.

In general, January is the season for pulling loose ends together in industry. Convincing evidence of an expansion in demand is more likely to come in the spring than in January. Knowing this, speculators for the rise have expressed hopes at the market place rather than registering a response to tangible developments in industry.

COMPARISONS LACKING

Check transactions are running somewhat ahead of a year ago, and we are fast approaching the period when comparisons will be made with the bank holiday period in 1933.

Sensible analysts, of course will recognize that the 1933 bank holiday period was wholly abnormal, and does not constitute a basis for comparison. Nevertheless, the relative figures this year will superficially look very encouraging.

Retail trade continues to feel the stimulus of CWA payrolls, against the tapering off of which there has been much protest. Freight loadings are running ahead of last month in accordance with seasonal probabilities. Textile mills have been busy, and this applies to silks as well as to cotton goods.

RETAIL PUZZLES TO BE CLEARED

Retailers of Allegheny County who have wrinkled their brows, puzzling over the requirements and enforcement of the retail code, will have their questions answered at a meeting sponsored by the Retail Code Authority Wednesday night.

Dr. Dameron

Dr. Kenneth Dameron, deputy retail code administrator from Washington, will explain the retailers' duties and deal with enforcement authorities and measures provided under the code. Dr. Dameron assisted in framing the code.

The meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce. The Code Authority has urged every retailer in the county to attend, stressing the importance of the meeting as a means of ironing out for the individual problems that have been more or less undefined to the average businessman.

The retail code affects virtually all retailers except those dealing in foodstuffs. Dr. Dameron, an instructtor in economics, marketing and retailing at Princeton, Rice Institute and Ohio State University, will answer many questions the NRA and the code have brought to small and large merchants.

STOCK MARKET RALLY LOSES MOMENTUM

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The stock market last week rounded off and closed almost exactly where it was at the end of the preceding week. The peak was touched on Wednesday, when the averages ran up on volume, but "stubbed their toe." Thereafter an irregular retreat occurred.

More clearly than before, one can say that the momentum of the rally has been lost, and this is true of bonds as well as stocks.

The market has recently developed into a churning affair, as it met resistance at the August-September peaks. Evidently there has been a tendency to take profits in the "leaders" and they have been backward. At the same time, operations have been whipped up in several low priced "specialties." The airplane, auto accessory and alcohol stocks have been given "rides."

So much stock seems to be for sale in the case of old line leaders that new highs are unlikely until there has been some further reaction, or a period of "digestion" and irregular sideway movement has occurred.

But the market does not act exactly as if any bad break is in the offing.

RISE MAY BE ENDING

One way to put the matter is that there is some suggestion that the January-February rise may be coming to an end. Any further reaction here would break the lower line of upward trend, and thus indicate some diminution of bullishness on the part of important market sponsors.

As to the market's action, one may say on the bull side that there have been few signs of demoralization, and that the volume of selling has not been heavy during the past three days of reaction.

Furthermore, the most active stocks each day have moved up. Obviously several "operations" are being "conducted" on the bull side and the public is inclined to nibble. They may come in on the dip.

On the other hand, activity in scattered issues is confusing, and the performance of Wright Aero is disturbing. The real leading stocks have been heavy, and their action was initiated by some obvious distribution a week ago. The railway stocks have turned sluggish and have rounded off. The utilities have again become somewhat of a drag on the market. The second grade bonds have gone dead.

SOME REACTION SEEN

All in all, it seems reasonable to say that if the rise is not resumed at once, a moderate technical reaction is likely.

The symptoms do not seem clear to me. Ordinarily, the Saturday concentration of activity in a few stocks, which moved up, would suggest the resumption of the rise; but the nature of the stocks selected make this inference uncertain.

So I am inclined to doubt an immediate advance. If the big leading stocks hold well and the volume of trading subsides, one may expect no more than a few days of dribbling liquidation. If the volume of trading rises and leading issues develop weakness, a relatively sharp, but short reaction is likely.

Or the volume might hold around recent levels, with a continued scattering of bullish operations. This might lead to another attempt at last Wednesday's high, and be followed by a sharp reaction in the list.

STEEL UPTREND CHECKED

U. S. Steel has rounded off and broken its uptrend at the September peak. It will show support and possibly another attempt to advance, but there has been some distribution, and I would hesitate to pay over 55.

American Can is back below 100, and is likely to be supported at 99, but could react to 96 without looking bad from a trading viewpoint. Du Pont sticks at 99. While it may be run through 100 again, the chances of 94-95 seem good enough to wait for.

Telephone fails to make 120, and 117 is a critical point. It might break that figure, when 113-114 would be likely.

Atchison and U. P. stuck at their September upper resistance levels, and should go back four or five points before looking attractive.

WHEAT LICENSE PLAN SOUGHT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Wheat farmers will be sounded out on proposals to invoke licensing and strict regulation of production.

Having decided to make a canvass of the cotton belt on the same proposal, the Farm Relief Administration today notified Representative Kathryn O'Loughlin McCarthy (Dem.), of Kansas, that questionnaires also will be sent to wheat farmers.

With Senator Bankhead (Dem.), of Alabama, pushing for legislation in the Senate for licensing and compulsory reduction of cotton acreage, Mrs. McCarthy is urging a similar measure for wheat growers in the House.

A wide division of sentiment among members of Congress has been disclosed with the Agriculture Relief Administration also doubtful whether farmers, trained to individualism, will lend themselves to complete regimentation.

'TIME FOR TEA': IT'S THE MANAGER'S DAILY TREAT IN A DOWNTOWN BUILDING

OFFICE TENANTS INVITED TO TEA

"Time out for tea" is the password in the Law and Finance Building every afternoon from 3 to 4.

Turning attention from the tired businessman to the tired businessgirl, J. R. Crutchfield, building manager, has invited all his tenants, especially the feminine office workers to "have one on him."

The tea is free, and there are cakes with it. Advocating the beverage as a sedative for tired nerves, Mr. Crutchfield said he believes employers will notice a pronounced improvement in the morale of secretaries and stenographers after tea-time relaxation.

Miss E. L. Wire, who operates the Law and Finance Restaurant, seems equally at home acting as hostess during the afternoon tea hour, or providing for the army of businessmen who are her daily luncheon guests.

Argentine Wool Market Increases

BUENOS AIRES. — (INS.) — A notable improvement in Argentina's wool market is reported by Assistant Trade Commissioner Jule B. Smith at Buenos Aires. Exports of wool from Argentina during the 10 months ended October, 1933, reached a total of 124,807 metric tons valued at 28,786,522 gold pesos, compared with 103,129 tons valued at 26,213,874 pesos in the corresponding period of 1932.

Baltimore & Ohio Value Set at 655 Million

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — (INS.) — The Interstate Commerce Commission today placed a final valuation, as of June 30, 1918, of $655,138,100, on the properties of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The valuation included $22,144,545 for working capital.

The system included in the case comprises about 5,352 miles of first main track, 1,589 miles of second main track, and 10,467 miles of all tracks.

D. & R. G. Postpones Interest Payment

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Directors of the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad, meeting here, yesterday decided to postpone payment of the general mortgage bond interest due February 1, amounting to about $745,000, in order to maintain unimpaired the cash position of the company.

The question of payment, it was said, will be considered again within a period of 60 days.

Slump Shows Economics In Infancy

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE DEPRESSION has taught many lessons, most of which will be forgotten. Of particular importance, it has taught us that we know amazingly little about economics.

Of course, certain fundamentals of the science are unchallenged even by the history of recent years. Much of the theory still stands. It is more in the realm of applied economics that the science has been shown to be in its infancy.

It is difficult to find any two economists in agreement on the causes or cures of our present dilemma. President Roosevelt has surrounded himself by the most impressive group of students of political economy ever assembled. But these learned doctors of business and finance are far from any agreement with each other except on a few major concepts. Many have been the battles within the brain trust. Some of the brain trusters have been so much at variance with their colleagues that they have found it necessary to resign. Dr. O. M. W. Sprague was one of these.

* * *

Opinions Show Wide Range

OUTSIDE OF THE administration, economists show every conceivable shade of opinion. Their attitudes range from complete approval of the experiments being undertaken, through distrust of certain features of the policy to complete hostility. And the ranks constantly are changing. Many former opponents of the "Roosevelt school" of economics have become converts and many of the original neophytes have deserted because of objections to certain aspects of the new economic thought.

But the present lack of agreement does not provide the only evidence that we know little of economics. Only a few howlers in the wilderness had the temerity to declare that we were heading for a catastrophe instead of a "new era" in 1929. When the first crack came, few said that we were facing a lasting decline instead of a brief adjustment.

Economics, however, are not entirely discredited as a science. The crash of 1929 was a repetition of history. At least by hind-sight we can now see that the excesses of the time showed many of the usual indications that trouble was ahead. Most of us, including many economists, merely ignored the red lights.

* * *

Many Factors Add To Problem

ONE OF THE GREAT difficulties facing the development of applied economics as a true science lies in the complexity of the influences facing any economic experiment or producing any particular problem.

Unfortunately economics cannot be reduced to laboratory proportions for experimental purposes as can be done in the realm of chemistry or physics. Every problem of economics is bound up with a vast array of conditions. The details extend the world over. They involve the cumulative thoughts and actions of millions of individuals. They are affected by such accidents as the success or failure of a crop, the discovery of a new supply of gold or silver. Calculations may be thrown out by an invention or a fad. The conditions include political and sociological affairs. The policies of a foreign government may greatly affect the success or failure of an economic experiment.

As an example of the difficulties facing the science of economics, if business continues to get better the administration will take credit for it as the Republicans took credit for the prosperity preceding the 1929. collapse. The economists opposing the administration policies will claim that natural factors created the improvement just as dawn follows darkness. If the policies should fail, the administration probably would charge that chiselers barred success and the opponents will take the credit for being highly astute. In either event, both sides could put up a good case, but it would be doubtful if either could present indisputable proof.

PENN SCHOOL HAS ANNUAL DANCE

Penn School of Aviation will hold its fifth annual dance on February 2, according to an announcement by F. R. Crawford, managing director of the school.

The dance will be held at the Pittsburgh Country Club on Beechwood boulevard at 9 o'clock in the evening.

The attendance is expected to be even larger than in 1933 when over 300 students, graduates and their friends were present. Each year this aviation party has grown in popularity since the first one was held in the hangars at the Pittsburgh-Butler Airport in the summer of 1929.

During the evening the diplomas will be issued to the graduating class of the airplane and engine mechanics division by C. B. Monro, vice president of Pennsylvania Air Lines. Subsequently, there will be a dancing contest, lucky number dances and a wide variety of other entertainment, including supper.

The entire club will be reserved for the occasion and the students of the school are busily engaged preparing suitable decorations.

STOCKS STEADY AS OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Stocks and staples looked on the bright side of the market picture today and prices, generally, maintained a steady to firm tone.

Shares of some of the rubber, metal, oil and tobacco companies moved up sedately under varying influences. The activity was not much more pronounced than in Friday's session. There were intermittent profit taking flurries and brief spasms of short selling, but these failed to unsettle the list as a whole.

Grains and cotton improved moderately. Silver and rubber futures developed strength. Wheat got up a cent or more a bushel at one time. The dollar was somewhat reactionary, losing around 2 cents in terms of sterling. Bonds were rather quiet and narrow.

Equities apparently were not stirred unduly by the Senate's overwhelming approval late Saturday of the administration's monetary measure. The vote had already been taken for granted. Just how much stocks may have discounted the action was a matter of conjecture.

Wall street's inflationists and silver protagonists—there are still plenty of them—were cheered by the narrow majority with which the Senate defeated an amendment to the gold bill virtually providing for the free coinage of silver. The close vote of 45 to 43 encouraged the currency expansion advocates to hope that sooner or later some of their ideas may be adopted.

The flurry in silver futures and some of the metal stocks was said to have been based on the Senate's silver vote. The push-up in rubber futures and shares of some of the tire companies followed a report that the international conference at Amsterdam had made reached an accord on restriction of production.

ACTIVE BUYING AIDS COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Cotton futures opened firm, 7 to 10 higher on active trade and commission house buying owing to the passage of the gold bill and in absence of heavy selling. March 11.26; May 11.39; July 11.56; October 11.68; December 11.78; and January 11.86.

The opening demand carried the market up to 11.41 for May making net advances of about 9 to 12 points on active months. Offerings were light but prices reacted 3 or 4 points from the best and showed net gains of 6 to 7 points at the end of the first half hour.

The realizing attracted by the opening advance was absorbed on reactions of 4 or 5 points. Prices made new highs for the day late in the morning, with May up to 11.43, and with the general list showing net advances of about 10 to 13 points.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 29.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot quiet; prices two points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.64; good middling, 6.34; strict middling, 6.19; middling, 6.04; strict low middling, 5.89; low middling, 5.64; strict good ordinary, 5.44; good ordinary, 5.14. Futures closed steady. January, 5.86; March, 5.85; May, 5.83; July, 5.83; October, 5.84; December, 5.86.

WHEAT VALUES TAKE SPURT

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Material upturns of wheat values took place early today as a result of extreme cold weather over domestic winter wheat territory, together with absence of a snow blanket. Senate approval of President Roosevelt's monetary plan was also construed as bullish.

Opening at 5/8@1¼c gain, wheat later held near the initial limits. Corn started 1/8@½c up, and subsequently rose further.

Failure of trade to broaden had a tendency to check the upturn of the wheat market after early advances. Friends of higher prices, however, continued to emphasize that inadequate receipts were placing a steady drain on terminal supplies. Corn and oats borrowed strength from the wheat market, and from prospective increased feeding demand because of low temperatures.

Provisions were responsive to government buying of lard.

Corporate Earnings

Crosley Radio Corporation reports for nine months ended December 31, 1933, shows net profit of $344,452, after charges, depreciaion and taxes, equal to 63 cents a share on 545,000 no-par shares of capital stock, compared with net loss of $255,231 in the like 1932 period. December quarter net profit was $175,647, after charges and taxes, equal to 32 cents a share, against net profit of $45,469, or eight cents a share in the like 1932 quarter.

Western Union Telegraph Company for the year ended December 31, 1933, earned slightly in excess of $4,200,000, or better than $4 a share on 1,045,592 shares outstanding. This contrasts with a loss of $1,887,622 in 1932, of which, however, $1,045,026 was accounted by dividend payments since discontinued.

S. H. Kress & Co. reports net profit of $5,159,308 for 1933, equal to $4.18 a common share, compared with $3,428,148, or $2.76 a share for 1932. Directors have voted to transfer $17 a share from surplus to common stock account. This represents a transfer of $20,039,579, giving the common stock a value of $48,511,253 on December 31 against $28,471,874 at the end of 1932. Earned surplus after the transfer was $9,185,570.

Atlas Powder Company for the year 1933 shows net income of $709,334 after charges, depreciation and taxes, equal, after dividend requirements on the 6 per cent preferred stock to 76 cents a share on 241,218 no par shares of common stock, excluding treasury shares. This compares with net of $42,072 in 1932.

Confidence Shown by Trends

By B. C. FORBES

THE GOVERNMENT asked for one billion dollars; it was offered fully four and three-quarters billions, at low interest rates.

That was last week's most gratifying development.

Mr. Forbes

IT PROVES the administration has made impressive headway in inspiring confidence that the gigantic sums needed for recovery-activities will be forthcoming—and finding the money to carry out a project is vital.

One question which still necessarily remains unanswered at this stage is whether the vast employment provided by public funds will be smoothly absorbed this spring and summer when governmental operations taper off.

At least it can be said that the business, the industrial, the employment trend is in the right direction and that sentiment is improving, a preliminary essential to the return of normal prosperity.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is daily demonstrating his ability to induce Congress to carry out his will. Even the perfectly understandable objections of various legislators to entrusting to one official (Secretary Morgenthau) uncontrolled power to use two billion dollars without revealing an inkling of how he employs it, were swept aside.

Doubtless the intention is to dip into this colossal fund to support, to manipulate the government bond market. (Exactly the kind of dealings frowned on and opposed by the authorities when conducted by private interests.) Should government bonds have to be extensively bolstered up, prompt publication of the fact would naturally have undesired consequences. Hence the secrecy until the distant future.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS at Washington and elsewhere have also contributed to strengthening helpfulness.

The NRA is functioning more satisfactorily. Public revenues are running generously ahead of last year. Apprehension over currency inflation has notably abated; although the conservative financial world regards a 60-cent dollar as the more logical, few now suffer nightmares over the alternative of a fifty-cent dollar; all agree that whatever basis President Roosevelt selects he should make it noonday clear that the operation is intended to be final.

The CWA "graft scandals" are causing neither great astonishment, nor great alarm among men of affairs. They could not see how four million people could be rushed onto public payrolls in a few weeks without inefficiencies, waste and worse occurring.

LEAVING Washington, one finds other heartening news.

Our latest foreign trade figures record very substanial expansion in both exports and imports. Railway traffic, instead of showing a seasonal sag, is slightly up, the increase over a year ago being 12.2 per cent and almost equaling 1932. Electric power consumption reveals almost as favorable comparison.

The automotive industry is enjoying a veritable boom, production schedules are being pushed to the limit by most manufacturers. The steel industry, though slightly less busy than before the year end, will now benefit from heavier automotive demands and also expects to receive some of the long-delayed orders from railroads. Building statistics are better, stimulating many diverse industries, including lumber.

Retail trade reports are pitched in cheerful key. Consumption has encouraged merchants to place spring orders in substantial volume. Commercial failures are less than half the total of 12 months ago.

ON THE EXCHANGE, price fluctuations last week were irregular. Stocks managed to end the week with fractional average gains and bonds acted similarly.

Agricultural commodities, with the conspicuous exception of pork, were a trifle lower. Rubber crossed 10 cents a pound, a new peak, reflecting the thriving conditions in the tire industry.

THE WAGE trend is upupwards; security values have advanced very materially; agricultural prices at least are distinctly less unsatisfactory than they were last year; dividend resumptions and increases are swelling and will continue to swell purchasing power; ruinous price cutting is being eliminated in many directions.

ALTOGETHER, the outlook improves.

CHAPTER XXII

"I'm afraid that I shall have to go," I said, glancing at my watch, "I promised our managing editor that I would cover the funeral for him this afternoon. It's almost two now."

"That's all right," replied Anderson, "I think there will be nothing more now until after the services. Then I am going to interview Paige again and, in all likelihood, Robert Cleveland and Mrs. Phelps. I guess you want to be on hand for both of those, don't you?"

"You bet!" I answered. "Only death itself could keep me away!"

* * *

We buried Sonia Paige that afternoon—amid gales of wind and clouds of rain.

Randolph Paige was there, his handsome young face stern with pain.

Robert Cleveland was there, too, his face set into lines of graven immobility. And from him I turned to watch Mrs. Phelps who sobbed audibly and helplessly throughout the entire service.

Watches Suspects

Had it been the hand of any one of these three—one a husband, the other two friends—who had gagged Sonia Paige into insensibility and strangled her to death? Had Paige, infuriated by his failure on the stock market, given way to a burst of drunken insanity and accomplished that which, at this moment, he would gladly give his own life to undo?

I watched the two men curiously as they saw the casket lowered into the grave. I saw Paige wince as the minister dropped the dust and ashes upon the coffin and murmured the conventional words of the service. The clods striking the lid might have been so many blows upon his very soul.

There were others at that tragic funeral, too. Old Peter, the gardener, his withered face bewildered and awed. And Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, the rain pelting down on her upturned head. She was oblivious of the tears which coursed down her cheeks. There was real grief here, of that I was certain. This woman was murmuring a farewell to something which she had held dear and which she would never see again. She might have tampered with the letter from Scotland Yard—but she loved this girl who was being laid away in the earth.

Detectives Present

Then there was Kirk Judson, standing unprotected in the rain, with his hat, for once, held in his hands. The fellow had an expression which I was at a loss to fathom—something more real than grief, something deeper than a paid interest. "He's not such a rotter, after all," I found myself thinking.

And there were grim-faced men whose hands reposed in their right coat pockets and whose eyes shifted unceasingly from face to face in the crowd. Hard-faced men who were indifferent both to grief and to the closing words of the service.

These were the detectives, veteran sleuths widely acquainted with the byways and undercurrents of the criminal world. Their keen eyes would pick out any questionable characters and, when the funeral was over, their victims would be quietly led into Headquarters for questioning.

For there is a tradition—how true it is I cannot say—that the murderer not only revisits the scene of his crime, but that he will, upon many occasions, lured by remorse for his crime and a perverted fascination, actually come to see the body of his victim lowered into its last resting place.

It was over at last—the minister hurrying over the closing lines as the rain redoubled in force. Then the yellow mound was banked high with flowers—bright blossoms that the wind, with savage joy, whipped high into the air and flung away.

And there we left her—all that was mortal of beautiful Sunny Paige—amid the gathering shadows of the night, to the mercy of the storm and the gale.

Randolph Paige gave a moan as he turned away, but Robert Cleveland's face bore the hard mask of a man who is unconscious and who is nevertheless able to move.

Sorrowful

The funeral depressed me not a little in spite of myself. I stopped at the office on my way back from the cemetery and wrote a couple of columns—a story not of words but from my very heart.

Then I drove back to Towson and so back again to the Paige estate. Anderson was sitting in the library.

"Everything went off all right?"

I nodded. "It was a nasty ordeal, Andy. I've grown pretty hard-boiled in 15 years of newspaper life, but I swear I couldn't see that pretty little thing buried without feeling it. What an ending! What terror she must have suffered before death released her!"

"I'm not all hard myself," answered the inspector. "Sometimes I wish I were. I could act with more mercy and less justice."

And then Robert Cleveland and Mrs. Phelps were announced.

The lawyer's face was drawn with grief and anxiety and worry, and Mrs. Phelps was still crying and making no effort to conceal it.

Cleveland looked at me with ill-hidden dismay.

"Surely I can talk with you privately, Inspector," he began.

"I see no reason why you should," retorted Anderson coldly. "You were given that privilege this morning and you may remember that you availed yourself of it by lying to me. And I want my first assistant, Mr. Carroll, to hear your story whatever it may be."

"Carroll!" he shouted, and Dickey promptly appeared from the rear of the house.

"But what I have to say is of an extremely personal nature," protested Cleveland. "Surely you owe me that courtesy!"

Cleveland's Story

"I owe you nothing," answered Anderson imperturbably. "I can readily understand your feeling in the matter and if you had come to me in this spirit in the first place I should have been more than willing to have granted you a private interview. But since you saw fit to deceive me and to throw me off the track as far as you were able, I cannot see now why I should extend any privileges to you, and I feel that it is my duty to warn you that any statement which you may make is at your own risk. There is, as you must certainly know, much to connect you and Mrs. Phelps with this murder and I cannot make you any promises."

Mr. Cleveland digested these remarks for a moment and hesitated, as if wondering if it would not be the best thing, after all, to bolt and let the police discover whatever they were able.

Mrs. Phelps decided for him.

"We'll have to tell the truth," she said. "Suppose we all sit down, and I think that after Mr. Cleveland has finished his story, you will understand that neither he nor I had anything to do with Sunny's tragic death."

So we drew our chairs up around the fire and Robert Cleveland began his recital of what has seemed to me one of the most human stories I have ever run across in my entire newspaper career.

"Gentlemen," he began, "I have no intention of boring you with my private affairs, but if you are to understand the reason which brought Mrs. Phelps and myself here on the night of Mrs. Paige's death, I shall have to go back a couple of years. As you know, I am a member of the Attorney General's office and I have a large private practice as well. Back of me is a career at the bar which has been honorable and square."

Here he drew out his case of cigarettes and lighted one with hands that were shaking.

"I am a bachelor, largely because women have never had any especial appeal to me. I have lots of women friends and I like them and enjoy their society. But I have never 'fallen in love.' At least, I never did until Ranny Paige brough his new wife home from England with him.

In Love With Girl

"We are close neighbors, you know, and I have been counsel for the Paige family for years. My father was their legal adviser before me.

"Therefore, I was prepared to welcome Mrs. Paige, and to like her; but I did not expect to fall head over heels in love with her the second I saw her, like any 17-year-old schoolboy. To me she was not only a beautiful and charming child, full of whims and delightful fancies—but I knew what every man knows at some time in his life—that she was the one and only woman I could ever truly love.

"I began to come here to the house more and more often, and I must ask you to believe me when I tell you that I scarcely realized that it was love for another man's wife which was bringing me.

"Mrs. Paige is not here to defend her honor, so I want you to understand that I am not trying to picture for you any illicit romance or liaison between a young wife and a man old enough to be her father. She liked me—I have that much to remember, anyhow—but much as she might have liked an older brother. Admiration of men was nothing new to her and she knew well how to guide me into the safe channels of friendship.

"She would have succeeded, for my love was real enough to desire only her happiness, had it not been for the fact that it soon became apparent that Ranny Paige was stepping out among the ladies and that he was constantly unfaithful to this sweet girl. That's common knowledge and common gossip.

"That fact, as well as my constantly growing affection, seemed to set me crazy."

Synopsis

Sonia (Sunny) Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph (Ranny) Paige, is found hanging by a silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. An autopsy reveals that Sunny had been suffocated first with the tassel of the cord and then hung. Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, says the night of the tragedy was her night off and that Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, was to spend the evening with Sunny. Inspector Anderson is furious when Ranny employs Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, to investigate the tragedy. Anderson and Judson decide to forget their antagonism and work together. Anderson questions Mrs. Phelps. A face peers in the window. Anderson thinks Mrs. Phelps tampered with Sunny's desk when the police sought the intruder. Robert Cleveland, prominent attorney and friend of Paige, seems anxious to help the young man. The police learn Mrs. Phelps saw Cleveland the night of the murder. Suspicion is thrown on Mrs. Deane after she reads a letter addressed to Anderson.

FUNERAL OF DANIEL WEBSTER (1852)

With the death of Daniel Webster there fell the last of the main pillars (Calhoun, Clay) of the policies represented by the Compromise "Omnibus Bill" (1850). In the election of 1852 Franklin Pierce, a Democrat, won the presidency.

Disregarding the Compromise, Stephen A. Douglas, forced the Kansas-Nebraska Bill (1854) fostering the "squatter" principle in territories theretofore considered free soil; thus the Missouri Compromise (36° 30' N. L. division line between free and slave territories) was made ineffective.

This disrupted the Whig party into "Anti-Nebraskan" (later Republicans) and "Know Nothing" parties. Kansas, nearest to the settlements concerned, became the immediate battleground.

Though the Democratic party was successful again in the 1856 election, with President Buchanan elected, the controversy over slavery took disastrous dimensions. (United States History)

"SEEING" OVER WIRE OR RADIO (TELEVISION)

In a television apparatus (above) light is admitted through holes of a revolving disc (scanning disc) and is thrown upon each point of the scene in quick succession. The admitted light, reflected from scene, illuminates photoelectric cell (electric eye) which sends out correspondingly pulsating current, amplified by vacuum tubes. The amplified current is transmitted by wire or combined with a carrier radio wave by a (short wave) set.

Receiving apparatus picks up the impulses, amplifies and sends them to a neon tube (containing rarified neon gas) that glows brighter or dimmer according to the current received.

Looking upon the neon tube through holes of a scanning disc, synchronized with transmitter disc, same light impressions are received as reflected by scene. The numerous light impulses (as many details in quick succession) combine in the eye of observer into a whole picture of scene. (Communication)

HELEN KELLER, HER TEACHER, MRS. MACY

Helen Keller (left), blind, deaf, learned to speak and elevated herself from darkness to the intellectual level of a college lecturer and author by a code of taps on her palms. Putting her fingers on lips of talker, she "hears."

Strong will and perseverance substituted senses that nature denied her, and opened the world to a soul thirsty for knowledge.

The story of Helen Keller is an eternal inspiration to gifted and handicapped alike. (Char. Bldg.)

THE BEGINNING OF THE THIRTY YEARS WAR (MAY 23, 1618)

Calvinists and Lutherans became disunited in Germany over privileges granted in the Treaty of Augsburg (1555), strengthening the Catholics who had Habsburg's support.

German princes sought independence; Habsburg emperors wanted a whole Germany under their control; thus religious and political ambitions caused the thirty years' war (1618-1648). It started with the hurling of two Catholic representatives of the Habsburg Crown from a window at Prague. Denmark, Sweden, Spain, France, indirectly also England, were soon involved. The war wrote terrible destruction especially to Germany's political, economical, intellectual and moral life.

The treaty of Westphalia (1648) closed the war, putting Calvinists and Lutherans on equal footing; but it destroyed the unity of the empire, weakened the central authority, leaving France most powerful in Western Europe. (World History)

ELIZABETH'S DEATH CHANGES POLICIES

Elizabethan England experienced the Renaissance and Reformation. Beside fostering art, literature, science, commerce, Elizabeth inspired patriotism. She died (1603) and was succeeded by James I, King of Scotland, a Catholic. As believer in Divine Right and Absolutism, unsuccessful in wars, he made himself very unpopular. His rule laid the germ of England's Civil War, that culminated in beheading of King Charles I (1648).

EINSTEIN'S THEORY OF RELATIVITY

Euclid (Third Century, B. C.) described space as having three dimensions. Rieman and Minkovsky (Nineteenth Century) introduced time element as Fourth dimension. Einstein based his theory of relativity (1915) upon: 1, All phenomena of space, time, motion, are established only by comparison with other location, time, motion; hence they are relative. 2, Laws of nature are universal.

Some conclusions: Law of conservation of energy is reconfirmed, of matter is denied. Ether is done away with. Like electromagnetic field, so a gravitational field (not drawing force between masses) represents stored energy in space, acting on other energies such as matter and light; it diverts light rays.

Three and four dimensions-geometry,-physics give substantial numerical differences only by dealing with velocities (involving time element) near that of light (186,300 miles a second) as cathode rays, and those emitted by radio-active substances, etc. (General Science)

The "talkie" is a film having the picture and the record of the sound produced at same moment.

A light gate (above left) is operated by pulsating electric current modulated by sound by a microphone. The light gate admits more or less light, according to the sound vibrations, and is photographed simultaneously with the scene on edge of film, giving stripes of different density and length, the sound record (right).

Directing light through these stripes upon photoelectric cell, the cell will admit pulsating current, sent amplified to the loudspeaker which will reproduce the sound, that had operated the light gate in the moment the picture (now projected) was taken. (Communication)

A Famous Wrestling Match

A letter cascades in from Boston inquiring about the famous grudge wrestling match between Bob Ripley and The Bug in the Amsterdam Opera House.

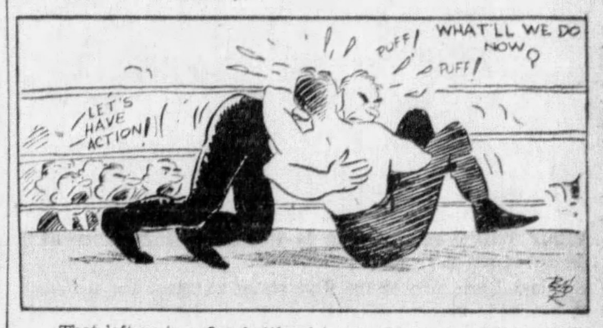
The writer apparently witnessed that match as a civilian observer of the better things of life. In his desire to remain anonymous he omits his name. And to consolidate his position he also leaves off the three-cent stamp.

He wants to know if that match was on the level. Well, all we got to say is that we wrestled for Jack Curley.

We headlined the bill. Next on the circus posters were Strangler Lewis and Wladek Zbyszko.

The referee was George Bothner. It happened about a dozen years ago. First of all, both The Bug and Ripley went to Ralph Bingham's birdlike gymnasium and learned 10 minutes of flying mares, head grapples and elbow benders.

Here's the facts. The Bug was to dobb to Rip at the finish of the 10 minutes. But when the time limit was up he had changed his mind. We crossed Rip.



That left us in a fine kettle of trout. There was nothing to do but go through our 10-minute routine again.

At the twenty-first minute both the crowd and Bothner hepped that we were repeating our act for the third time. The crowd started to come up and get us.

Bothner leaned over and said to The Bug. "For somebody's sake, do something different."

The Bug replied, "All right. Bring out the book and I'll study the next chapter."

That match was a favor to Jack Curley. He never asked for any since. The principal contestants were saved by the snappy arrival of the police who had been in the theater all night on rain checks.

The weights were Rip, 147; The Bug, 148. Now, Rip weighs over 200, The Bug, 180. Rip has slowed up so much he couldn't slide downstairs on a cellar door. And the once quick-thinking Bug is so dumb he couldn't find the waterfront on an island.

Whether or not we got paid for our services is strictly a matter between the principals and the promoter. We are still arguing about that.

An Unsuppressed Evil

The Narcotics Vices Continue to Work Havoc, Showing the Need of a Uniform State Law.

Legislators throughout the country have received in the January columns of "State Government" a strong plea for enactment of the uniform state narcotic law.

The argument is presented by Sanford Young, former chairman of the California State Narcotic Committee and in 1931 U. S. delegate to the International Opium Conference at Geneva.

Discussing the benefits which the uniform state narcotic law offers, Mr. Young said:

"Its general adoption would constitute an enormous victory in the conflict with the drug traffic.

"I earnestly recommend it as an improvement over the haphazard conglomeration of 'fact and fiction' which apparently is the basis for many of the state laws."

New York, one of the first states to enact the uniform law, has had excellent results.

Florida, not long ago, found the law effective in suppressing a marihuana traffic which other statutes failed to reach.

The states having legislative sessions this year, where the law has not been enacted, should pass the measure without delay.

And in order that the international dope menace, especially on our Pacific coast, may be adequately dealt with, Congress and the Federal directors of the budget must see to it that the Federal narcotics bureau has its necessary appropriations restored in the new budget.

The narcotics vices remain a serious evil. Legislative officials must therefore give enforcement officials effective support.

Precious Publications

The Carnegie Library Is to be Commended for Its Care in Preserving Newspaper Files.

Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie Library, reports that it is costing the library eight cents a sheet to preserve the files of Pittsburgh newspapers issued since 1870, when newsprint paper made of woodpulp first came into general use. Imported Japanese tissue is being pasted on both sides of each sheet to strengthen the paper, exclude air and prevent the deterioration of the woodpulp.

The expenditure is thoroughly justified, for the newspaper files are irreplaceable, and so, as Mr. Munn says, are the most important items in the library's collection.

The library deserves commendation for its care in preserving these valuable files, and for the excellent service it renders in making them available for the use of persons with good reasons for consulting them.

Pittsburgh newspapers dating back to 1790 are now to be found in the library. There are gaps in the files for the 1820s, but these gaps have been partly filled by the kindness of Joseph L. Mitchell, possessor of complete files from 1822 to 1825, who has allowed the library to make photostatic copies of his papers. The library's files since 1830 are about complete.

The Carnegie Library requires those who wish to consult the files to present satisfactory reasons, and to promise not to handle the papers with wet fingers or to use an open ink bottle while taking notes. This strictness is praiseworthy, for the old journals are precious, and no chance must be taken that they will be injured. Books, if lost or destroyed, can be duplicated; but the old newspaper files cannot be.

In consequence, the files may not be taken out of the library unless subpenaed by court order. It is surprising how often they are subpenaed for use in legal cases—as, for example, to establish the condition of the weather on a certain date, or when a certain towboat left Pittsburgh, or for consultation as to certain legal notices published in the papers.

The old newspapers are also valuable, of course, as historical records.

This copy of the Sun-Telegraph, if preserved, will be held as a precious thing by its possessor a century hence.

Police Do Their Part

Now Let the Magistrates Co-operate in the Effort to Abolish Racketeering.

The activity of the police against rackets, as evidenced by seizure of slot machines and the arrest of gamblers and bootleggers, confirms the impression that if freed from political interference the officers would be only too glad to suppress vice and crime.

It is now to be hoped they will get the support that they need for this crusade from the police court magistrates, including Mayor W. N. McNair when he sees fit to act as a magistrate.

Deer in Pennsylvania

Notwithstanding the Huge Annual Slaughter, The Supply of Venison Shows No Diminution.

Along with the news that two of the deer in the county's North Park have been killed and carried off by unidentified miscreants comes the report of Ernest E. Harwood, secretary of the State Game Commission, on the legitimate slaughter of deer during the recent open season. He states that 20,480 were killed by the hunters, as compared with 19,724 the year before.

What a triumph of conservation the Game Commission has achieved can be judged from the fact that at the beginning of the century the number of deer killed in Pennsylvania each year was about 300.

Now, although about 20,000 bucks are slain annually the supply shows little diminution. Indeed, two years ago it was considered necessary to let down the bars against shooting does, for the number of deer in the state had become so large that forage could not be provided for all, and many were dying of starvation. The slaughter in that season was 24,796 bucks and 70,255 antlerless deer—a total of 95,051.

John M. Phillips, of Pittsburgh, former chairman of the Game Commission, deserves a major part of the credit for bringing back the deer.

The crisis in education has NOT been met.

At the first of the year warning was given by educational authorities that MILLIONS of children are going without schooling this year, while 200,000 teachers are idle.

In more than half the states of the Union schools have been closed or their classes have been seriously curtailed—some 2,000 rural schools closed entirely and education crippled in hundreds of cities and towns.

Largely, the false economy of local politicians has been responsible. Politicians will sacrifice education rather than sacrifice political jobs.

But in many communities economic conditions have been unequal to the emergency and leadership has been lacking.

Unless the dangerous trend is reversed America will feel its malign effects two-fold—in lowered standards of citizenship and in a further spread of crime.

Juvenile delinquency is the most prolific source of adult crime and the public school is the main preventive of juvenile delinquency.

America must choose. Shall we have more schools and few jails or do we want MORE JAILS?

FEDERAL action is required to cope with the situation. Congress should grant reasonable emergency relief where needed, and Congress should also establish—for permanency and progress—a Federal Department of Education headed by a Secretary who shall be a member of the President's Cabinet.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Diary: Out, and coming upon Albert Keller, twigged him for a breakfast of eggs Florentine at the Ritz. Then tacking across town, talking with Minnie C. Vessey, Esmond O'Brien and Frank Chapman. And articled for an ashen gray shirt with thin red stripes I doubt my lady lets me wear.

So home and came upon Margaret Moore, as lovely as ever, in the lift. Did my stint but botchily. So to the Karl Kitchens reception for Mary Pickford, and on to Jane and Lawrence Tibbett's, a mighty crowd including John McCormack, John Erskine, the George Armsbys, Walter Damrosch and Martinelli.

Dinner with E. D. Coblenz and Denise, whither the Frank Masons and Mrs. Sweitzer of San Francisco and afterward, under a star freckled sky, to the Grover Whalens at Dobbs Ferry and Maxine Elliott there. Talking late with Bernard Gimble and Edward Mulrooney about this and that, and back to the city.

John Hertz tells of two workmen outside his window one day discussing in blasphemous fashion a third workman who had just departed. "He is," said one, "a blankety blank. In fact, he is a blankety blank blank." And after a ruminative second added: "And not the best of them!"

Herald Square, so busy by day, languishes in a soft triangular sprawl at night. It is a district hallowed with pleasant memories for seasoned New Yorkers. The blinking green owls rimming the coping, the brawny, shirt-sleeved men of cast iron who hammered out the hours on the big bell, the cellar whirr of the presses, the wig-wag men with red and green flags guiding traffic, the night lunch wagon into which James Gordon Bennett often stepped for a midnight snack—all are gone. That rainbow that zooms across Broadway's peacock heavens stops suddenly on the fringe of Herald Square giving it the soft and soothing benison of Trinity.

There is always suspended animation about Fifth avenue around midnight when I often walk with my dog. Even riders on occasional bus tops seem to have lost their voices. Last night the cathedral flickered faintly luminous from a moon slipping through a fretful scurry of clouds. The only sound to break the thick silence was a thin rustle of organ music trembling down the nave and far off, like a voice in a cloud, the echo of prayer. One wanted to tiptoe on.

Few personalities in the passing parade change so little as the Ohio-born Howard Chandler Christy. For 25 years he has looked exactly the same. He arises early and works steadily until 4 p. m. when he relaxes for a few companions and tea. His only vice is a battered pipe he will never desert. At one period in his artistic career, Christy was stricken blind. But today he does not even wear glasses.

Would—or Wouldn't—Women Make Good Presidents

WILL THE UNITED STATES HAVE A WOMAN PRESIDENT IN 1940?

Miss Zara Douglas, of Australia, says that chances are we will! Moreover, according to Miss Douglas, We Girls will be running all the other side shows.

"When we realize," says she, "that woman is the practical and adventurous and realistic party and that men are the muddling idealists and dreamers, the poets and painters, it seems a wonder that women have waited so long before wresting the leadership."

Sounds like a great time ahead for Us Girls, doesn't it? And what's to prevent it?

Aren't women smart? They certainly are. Plucky, plenty brave? They are indeed. Great workers, too? Without a doubt. Haven't they initiative and go-get-'em? Aren't they quick to see and seize an advantage? And how!

Then why isn't it true, as Miss Douglas says.

"WOMAN HAS BEEN THE ADVENTUROUS AND GO-AHEAD MEMBER OF SOCIETY SINCE EVE FIRST REACHED FOR THE APPLE AND HANDED IT TO HER HUSBAND."

And doesn't that prove that American women are about to be Presidents? To the contrary, I fear and suspect that it proves why they haven't been and probably won't be Presidents, for some time to come.

For though it is true that Eve, ancient or modern, reaches for the apple—

IT IS ALSO TRUE THAT, IN DOING SO, NINE TIMES OUT OF TEN SHE PASSED UP THE WHOLE ORCHARD.

What does the world need in an individual or a President? Brains and bravery? Yes, these it needs—and these women have, in abundance. But more than brains or bravery it needs BALANCE—BREADTH OF VIEWPOINT.

It isn't the fierce clutch at the personal objective that will best serve society; it's the wide gesture which encompasses the greatest need.

And the reason for this is obvious. This is, as yet, only a half baked world. Our social register is still gummed up with crooks, tramps, morons and stuffed shirts. And even the best of us are stupid and ornery. So it isn't possible for anyone to devise a code which will fit all of us. And if we want to do any good at all we must be prepared to make quick changes, and accept a half loaf if we can't get whole. Which means everlasting compromise.

BUT TO AN INTELLIGENT WOMAN, COMPROMISE IS STILL LITTLE, IF ANY, SHORT OF INFAMY. ADJUST TO OTHER STANDARDS? WHY SHOULD SHE, WHEN SHE HAS THE BEST AND ONLY ONE THERE IS?

As to Virtue and Valor, any good mother can give the average male cards and spades—BUT WHEN IT COMES TO VISION, THE DUMBEST MAN CAN MAKE THE SMARTEST WOMAN LOOK LIKE A GIBBERING IDIOT.

And this isn't because men are naturally endowed with a broader outlook than women. It's entirely a matter of training. Men have been trained to do team-work since society first began. Women have been trained to play a lone hand. Men have been trained to look at things in the large, for the general profit. Women have been trained to concentrate on details—to work for personal ends.

As workers, no man will stand the punishment which almost any woman will take, or make the sacrifices, or show the loyalty.

BUT WHEN MOST YOU NEED HER COOL, IMPERSONAL HUMANITY AND WHEN MOST SHE, HERSELF, DESIRES TO FILL THE ROLE—A WOMAN WILL GO FEMALE ON YOU AND WRECK THE WORKS FOR SOME POPEYED PERSONAL NOTION.

Why wouldn't women make good Presidents—yet?

That's why, as I see it. You don't believe it? All right; now it's your turn. Bring on your reasons.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

Love and Learn

What is there about a red velvet evening gown that makes the purest and plainest woman feel so dashingly seductive and sophisticated that she gives you an impression of someone trying to imitate Garbo, Harlow or Mae West?

At 20, a boy's most absorbing problem is how to make the women love him—at 30, his most vital problem is how to make them STOP loving him.

* * *

Mrs. Solomon says: Go to Mae West thou single one. Consider her curves, and be wise. For the FRANKLY plump may enjoy the pleasures of the feast. But the way of the reducing-dieters is harder than a racketeer's conscience and more full of sacrifices than a January sale!

* * *

A woman gets worry-wrinkles, by crossing every bridge before she comes to it; but a man keeps that beautiful serenity because he never even THINKS of crossing a bridge until he sees it being washed away. (That's why he is always so surprised when he is served with the divorce papers.)

* * *

A woman has not reached middle-age until she stops dressing alluringly to make the men want to kiss her and begins dressing stunningly—to make the women want to choke her.

* * *

The average wife's greatest problem is not how to keep from spoiling her husband but how to keep him from spoiling HIMSELF.

* * *

The only time in his life when a man actually thinks seriously about the type of woman he really wants is about six months after he has gotten legally tied up with some other type.

Men, like rooms and furniture, should be big and substantial, but a few very modernistic women seem to prefer playboys and toyhouses.

A woman likes to be trusted by her women friends—but it gives her a shock to discover that she has reached the age where she is regarded as a perfectly safe chaperone for their Boy Friends.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Portrait of a Girl

She is something of a pagan,
She is something of a saint,
And the combination makes her
(As you might imagine) quaint.

She has moments touched with laughter.
Cruel as a nymph's could be
Mocking at a luckless satyr
From a fountain or a tree.

She has hours still and pensive,
Musing in a prayerful mood
When all life, with fret and folly,
Seems a fleeting interlude.

She has days of wistful brooding,
She has times of heartless mirth,
And the combination makes her
Quite the dearest girl on earth!

Human Side of the News

The Calls in Congress for Bimetallism Bring Back Memories of Bryan and Free Silver

By Edwin C. Hill

OVER the meeting of the Seventy-third Congress hovers a wraith from the past. In the very same halls in Washington moves the spirit of one who, in the flesh, had made them ring with flights of superb oratory, while making men stand against each other in fierce division.

Today we hear Wheeler of Montana, King of Utah, Thomas of Oklahoma and 23 other Senators declare for bimetallism, the free coinage of both gold and silver at a ratio to be established by law. But it is no secret that the ratio which they desire is 16 to 1. Truly history has completed a cycle and we have come back to the nineties and to the Great Commoner, the Boy Orator of the Platte—to William Jennings Bryan.

In what Hollywood calls a flash-back, we leave the Washington of January, 1934, for the Chicago of 1896. It is July 9 and the heat is insufferable in the great barn called the Coliseum, in which the National Democratic Party is in convention assembled.

It is an era of great social unrest and hard times. The prairies are afire with political revolt. The farmer, heavily burdened with debt, sees his products selling for less than it costs to raise them. Their cry is for money, cheap money, however it is to be gotten.

* * *

Farmers Rebuffed By Republicans

THE Republicans have turned them down, declared for gold, and at St. Louis have chosen McKinley, the high tariff industrialist, as their standard-bearer. The Democracy offered itself as the champion of the agrarian West and South, and quickly they have seized control of this convention, just as they were to do in the very same Chicago thirty-six years later in the summer of 1932. Bland of Missouri, "Silver Dick" they call him, is their champion.

The steam roller rides over the gold men from New York and the industrial East. It is all so cut and dried—free silver will be the platform, and Richard Bland will be the nominee for the Presidency. And yet it was a tumultuous convention—as rough and tumble a battle as the convention which chose Franklin Roosevelt. The 15,000 spectators played their part, shouting and screaming, cheering and denouncing as the cues prompted them.

Down on the floor sat a young man, a striking and handsome figure at thirty-six, who had come to Chicago as correspondent of the Omaha World-Herald and as a contestant for a seat in the Nebraska delegation.

The angry and divided cohorts of the Democracy listen to Gov. Russell of Massachusetts as he makes the closing speech for sound money—and they receive his word in pretty much the same way as their successors, years later, were to listen to Gov. Ely of Massachusetts make the speech for Alfred E. Smith.

Scarcely had Russell finished when a cry, as if prearranged, goes surging through the hall: "Bryan! Bryan! Bryan!" The young correspondent of the Omaha World-Herald springs to his feet. His cheeks are white, which emphasizes the glittering black of his eyes and of his wavy hair. He wears a black alpaca coat, much wrinkled, and his black trousers are woefully bagged at the knees. A black stud on his white shirt, a low cut collar and a brown string tie complete the description as with the step of an athlete he bounds up the stairs to the rostrum.

* * *

William J. Bryan's Famous Speech

IT may be his splendid figure, it may be his great personality, but anyway, in a moment he has the hall stilled. And then out rolls the voice of an age from the throat of a Caruso of rhetoric!

"I come to speak to you in defense of a cause as holy as the cause of liberty—the cause of humanity. In this contest brother has been arrayed against brother, father against son. The warmest ties of love, acquaintance and association have been disregarded; old leaders have been cast aside when they have refused to give expression to the sentiments of those whom they would lead. And new leaders have sprung up to give direction to this cause of truth."

He continues, on and on. His time allotment is 15 minutes. But he passes it and there is no one to cry him down. He swings into the climax:

"You come to us and tell us that the great cities are in favor of the gold standard. We reply that the great cities rest upon our broad and fertile prairies. Burn down your cities and leave our farms, and your cities will spring up again as if by magic. But destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in the country.

"We declare that this nation is able to legislate for its own people on every question without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation upon earth, and upon that issue we expect to carry every state in the Union. It is the issue of 1776 over again.

"If they dare to come out in the open field and defend the gold standard as a good thing, we will fight them to the uttermost. Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the commercial interests, the laboring interests and the toilers everywhere, we will answer their demand for a gold standard by saying to them: 'You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.'"

Minutes of silence follow, so great is the spell of the orator. And then a single voice raises a cheer, and all is swept before the tide of Bryan and free silver.

And thus McKinley and Bryan fought it out to a victory for gold and the eclipse of the Democratic party until 1912, when the Republican schism brought about the election of Wilson.

The issue rears itself again today as probably the most important one with which the new Congress will deal. At least we can depend on it to furnish us with the most talked of, and most colorful subject of debate which the session will have.

Blow at Electric Control Seen in Edison Code

By James T. Williams, Jr.

ONE OF the most important codes now up for final consideration is that of the electric industry. It is expected that it will soon go to the President for final approval with the endorsement of the high command of the National Recovery Administration.

This code is sponsored by the Edison Institute and provides for a code authority which it sets up and to which will be delegated the power of appointing nine members out of twelve.

Differences of opinion have developed between the National Recovery Administration and the Public Works Administration concerning the control of the code authority as provided in the set-up awaiting the President's final approval.

One of the points at issue is a proviso which was inserted in Section 6 of the National Recovery Act by the Senate Committee on Finance.

This proviso reads:

"Provided that nothing in this title shall be construed to compel a change in existing satisfactory relationship between the employes and employers of any particular plant, firm or corporation except that the employes of any particular plant, firm or corporation shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining with their employer as to wages, hours of labor and other conditions of employment."

* * *

Senators Object To Proviso

IN COMMITTEE, objection to this proviso was made by Senator Wagner, of New York; Senator Norris, of Nebraska; Senator Costigan, of Colorado; Senator Wheeler, of Montana; Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin; Senator Bone, of Washington, and Senator Long, of Louisiana.

These Senators based their objection upon their earnest belief that this proviso would nullify the effect of the labor provisions amendment and the proviso was rejected on June 8 last by a vote of 46 to 31.

In the debate that followed, Senator Clarke, reporting to the Senate on behalf of the Finance Committee, said:

"Mr. Richberg was present and not only accepted the amendment but said he thought it was very beneficial to the bill."

He suggested only the insertion of the word "satisfactory" in line 2 of the proviso, so that it would read "existing satisfactory relationships between the employes and employers," etc.

The National Recovery Administrator is alleged to have been also present and to have expressed the opinion that the amendment was a constructive one and would be most beneficial.

Of course the interpretation of the much discussed proviso would depend upon the organization of the code authority which will do the interpreting.

* * *

Secretary Ickes Opposes Move

AND HERE is where the issue is joined, the National Recovery Administration contending for a code authority to be controlled by the Edison Institute, which is to appoint nine members out of 12.

To such control, Secretary Ickes, the Public Works Administrator and the general counsel of the Public Works Administration, Mr. Hunt, are vigorously opposed, and there will doubtless be much discussion of the wisdom of this set-up before any code for the electric industry receives final approval.

By the opponents of the code as it is now about to go to the White House, fear is expressed that its final approval in its present form would prevent the federal government from providing any power yardstick for the country and deliver a crippling blow to municipal power plants.

These opponents contend that as federal power plants must sell a large proportion of their current through private companies, it is essential that the code authority must be so organized as to be really co-operative in the truest sense of the word.

ISN'T IT SO?

Many a woman manages to tide over a lot of spare time at a bridge.

The more brains a man possesses, the less chance his head has of swelling.

Unlike some women, many pocketbooks have an easy time of it keeping slim.
